REFUSE GERMANY 15 MONTHS' DELAY ON DISARMAMENT

ACRID TILT AT CONFERENCE

Simons Reminds Lloyd George Some Irish Are Armed Against Government's Will.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SPA, July 7.—Admitting that there were 1,000,000 armed men in Germany and 2,000,000 rifles unaccounted for, the German Government asked the Allies today for a delay of fifteen months in fulfilling the treaty disarmament terms. This was the answer to the Allies' ultimatum of yesterday to agree to disarm or to quit the Spa Conference.

The reply of the Allies today was a flat refusal to accept the German proposal, and the allied diplomats are conferring with Marshals Foch and Wilson and will give the Germans their final word tomorrow at noon.

The session today was marked by a passage at arms between Mr. Lloyd George and Herr Simons.

The British Prime Minister remarked that it was inconceivable that the German Government should permit hundreds of thousands of rifles to be in the hands of the German population against the will of the Government.

Herr Simons retorted:

"I wish to remind the honorable gentleman that there is a part of the British Empire in which there are a great many rifles in the hands of the population against the wish of the Government."

This did not soften the tone of Lloyd George's further remarks to the Germans.

Admissions by Germans.

A surprising development was the frankness wherewith General von Seecht admitted that Germany had not disarmed and the readiness wherewith the Germans agreed that conditions in Germany were dangerous.

Despite the talk of various delegations, it appears altogether likely that the Germans and Allies will be able to agree on some formula and that the Spa Conference will not be broken up because of the attitude of the Germans on the question of disarmament.

The Allies today placed the economic discussion at the end of the program. The matters of disarmament, coal, war criminals and Danzig must be settled before they will discuss any proposition that might aid Germany. Even if the economic question is reached it does not appear that anything definite will be done at Spa, but that there will be another meeting with the Germans very soon.

Today's meeting was opened by a speech by Herr Simons, who said the German delegation had sat up all night to frame a reply to the Allies. He said the German Government was facing the distrust of the Allies on the one hand and fear of Bolshevism on the other. The Allies demanded the surrender of arms, but wanted to take away the soldiers wherewith to collect them. He added, however that the German Government was confronted by a severe economic situation which could only be solved by a satisfactory conclusion of the Spa Conference. The German Government intended to make a sincere effort to enforce the treaty.

General von Seecht then presented the German proposals. He said that when the war ended Germany had 6,000,000 rifles. In the retreat she lost 1,500,000, she had delivered to the Allies 1,690,000, the police had 117,000, the militia 600,000, and the Reichswehr 250,000.

"That means you still have 1,000,000 armed men and 2,000,000 rifles unaccounted for," observed Lloyd George.

Proposes Progressive Disarmament.

Von Seecht did not answer Lloyd George directly but went on to declare that Germany intended to fulfill the treaty and wished to surrender the rifles, but the difficulty was to collect them. The Government was ready to promise delivery of all rifles in one year. As for the machine guns, he said that at the armistice 25,000 were handed over and 48,000 had since been delivered to the Allied Control Commission. The militia had 6,000, the Reichswehr 5,000 and the police 5,000. The Government was prepared to give up all the machine guns demanded in one year. Regarding the effectives, he proposed to reduce them to 190,000 by October next, to 180,000 by January, 160,000 by April, 130,000 by July and 100,000 by October, 1921.

Lloyd George commented that these figures did not agree with those of the Allied Commission. He suggested that von Seecht and Foch should meet to agree on the figures and report to the conference tomorrow. Taking the German Chief of Staff's totals as accurate, he said, a serious situation was disclosed. Whereas the treaty required the reduction of the army to 100,000 men, there were 1,000,000 men in Ger-

President to Stay in Capital, Having Given Up Summer Plans

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—President Wilson has made no plans for leaving Washington this Summer. He has told Admiral Grayson, his physician, that he has no desire to leave, feeling more comfortable in the White House than he would at some distant place.

The Mayflower is at the Navy Yard, subject to the President's orders, and can be used whenever he wants to take a trip to Chesapeake Bay or the ocean. The President also has automobiles in which he may spin into the suburbs.

LIFTS TRADE BAN ON SOVIET RUSSIA

State Department Removes All Restrictions Except as to War Materials.

NO RECOGNITION OF SOVIET

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—All restrictions against trade with Soviet Russia were removed today by the American Government with the exception of the ban against the shipment of war materials to Russia. In authorizing this announcement, however, the State Department emphasized the fact that political recognition, present or future, of any Russian authority exercising or claiming to exercise governmental functions, is neither granted nor implied.

The text of the statement follows:

"The restrictions which have heretofore stood in the way of trade and communication with Soviet Russia were today removed by action of the Department of State. Such of these restrictions, however, as pertain to the shipment of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes will, for the present at least, be maintained.

"Political recognition, present or future, of any Russian authority exercising or claiming to exercise governmental functions, is neither granted nor implied by this action. It should be emphasized, moveover, that individuals or corporations availing themselves of the present opportunity to trade with Russia will do so on their own responsibility and at their own risk. The assistance which the United States can normally extend to its citizens who engage in trade or travel in some foreign country whose Government is recognized by the United States cannot be looked for in the present case, since there is no official or representative Russian authority with which this Government can maintain those relations usually subsisting between nations.

"The action which the United States is now taking in nowise constitutes a recognition of the validity of industrial or commercial commissions granted by any existing Russian authority. American citizens availing themselves of the present relaxation of restrictions are warned against the risks incident to the acceptance of commodities or other values, the title to which may later be brought into question.

"The situation which prevails relative to travel from or to Russia, will be unaffected by the removal of trade restrictions. Passports for Russia cannot be issued, nor will any change be made in the vise ruling now in force.

"Since it is not desirable at this time to undertake negotiations with the Soviet postal authorities, the Post Office department will be unable to accept mail from or to Soviet Russia. There has never been any parcel post convention between the United States and Russia and this mode of forwarding goods is, therefore, unavailable."

The policy which has been adopted is identical with that proposed by this Government to the Allies last Winter when the latter were contemplating an effort to resume trade relations with Russia through the Russian co-operative societies, which claimed to be independent of Soviet control and through which it was thought direct dealing with the Soviet could be avoided.

The State Department's announcement today was made through the medium of Hugh Gibson, American Minister to Poland, who is in Washington on temporary duty with the State Department. While Mr. Gibson would not say so, there is no doubt that the action taken is expected to have more influence in breaking down Bolshevist propaganda in the United States than in actually restoring a heavy exchange of goods between Russia and the United States.

The best information possessed by the State Department is that there will be no extensive trade as a result of the lifting of restrictions, but one of the most effective arguments which the Bolsheviki have been making in some countries has been that the Allies were "starving innocent women and children" in Russia by refusing to trade with that nation in an effort to force them to establish a different form of government.

PENDLETON'S ALIBI IN ELWELL MYSTERY ATTACKED BY SWANN

AUTO A FACTOR IN INQUIRY

Pendleton Asserts It Was at His Home—Garage Employes Say It Was in Manhattan.

MRS. WILMERDING QUIZZED

Tells of Acquaintance with Turfman—Shevlin Expects to Make Two Arrests in Case Today.

After obtaining evidence which he said he regarded as conclusive that the automobile of William H. Pendleton, former partner of Joseph B. Elwell, was not in its garage at Cedarhurst on the morning Elwell was murdered, but was on Manhattan Island and for a time in the Atlas Garage, District Attorney Swann issued a statement yesterday calling attention to a series of points in Mr. Pendleton's statement contradicted by other witnesses.

Neilson Olcott, counsel for Mr. Pendleton, said later that his client denied all the statements which conflicted with his and was positive that his recollection was correct in the accounts which he had given to Judge Swann.

Mr. Pendleton's statement was that he had returned home at midnight on June 10 (the night before Elwell was killed), had put his car into his own garage at that time, had gone to bed, had risen at 8:30 o'clock and driven Mrs. Pendleton to the station at Far Rockaway.

Every Assertion Contradicted.

Every part of this statement is contradicted by other witnesses, District Attorney Swann said. According to garage employes, Oliver W. Bird, Jr., a friend of Pendleton, appeared at the garage with the Pendleton car at 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder and was driven home by a garage employe, after which the car remained in the garage at 9 East Fifty-second Street until shortly after 8 o'clock, when somebody who has not been identified took the car away. The murder occurred that morning shortly after 8 o'clock.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling has been working hard to discover the identity of the man who called for the car.

Mr. Pendleton's second assertion, that he took his car from his own garage on the morning of the 11th and drove his wife to catch the 10:26 train, is contradicted by a Cedarhurst taxicab driver. This driver says he took Mrs. Pendleton to the train that morning and that she was alone in the machine.

Mr. Pendleton's third assertion, that he was in bed at home shortly after midnight, is contradicted by the telephone operator, who says she tried almost continuously from 1:45 o'clock that morning until 2:30 to put a call from the Elwell residence to the Pendleton home, where the telephone is right beside Mr. Pendleton's bed.

Mr. Pendleton asserts that he dined at the Blossom Heath Inn, at Lynbrook, L. I., the night before Elwell died. Mrs. Pendleton, however, told newspapermen who interviewed her two weeks ago that she and her husband had been to a moving picture show together on that night.

Bird's Recollection Vague.

George W. Bird, Jr., who drove the Pendleton car to the Atlas garage at 2 A. M. on June 11, according to the garage employe, was questioned by Mr. Dooling.

"Mr. Bird was somewhat vague in his recollection," said Mr. Dooling, "but he said he felt sure that it was not on the morning of the murder but sometime previous that he had left the car there. He said he thought it was three or four days earlier but he could not remember exactly. He remembered the incident, but disagreed with the garage employe only as to the date.

"Mr. Bird, you know, was on that drive to Saratoga Springs, along with Mr. Pendleton and others several days ago. The Pendletons and the Birds are very good friends.

"The fact that Mr. Bird did drive the car to the garage on the morning of June 11, however, is proved not only by the garage employes, but by the garage records and by the independent testimony of George B. Post Jr., who identified the car that morning, hailed the driver and took a ride in it."

John Doyle, the garage employe, said he had first driven Mr. Bird to a place at Fifty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue, where he had remained half an hour. On his return from the Bird residence, he said that Mr. Post, who stood in front of the same building near Fiftieth Street and Madison Avenue, had shouted to him:

"That is Penny's car."

Pendleton Not a Suspect.

When Mr. Dooling was asked what building near Madison Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street was referred to, he said:

"For certain good reasons, I do not care to answer that question."

Another important development revealed by Mr. Swann was that "Miss Wilson," who admitted she had telephoned to Elwell at 2:30 A. M. on June 11, about six hours before the murder, had said she got the impression, from the manner in which Elwell talked at the time, that some one was with him.

In giving out his version of the history

Sheriff Driven Away, Negro Is Lynched

DURHAM, N. C., July 7.—Taken from the county jail at Roxboro by a mob of more than 200 masked men a few hours after he had been arrested on a charge of attacking an 13-year-old white girl, Ed Roach, 27, a negro, was lynched early today in a churchyard three miles from the jail. Roach was hanged to a limb of a high tree, a chain being used instead of a rope. As his body swung upward, it was riddled with bullets.

Sheriff N. F. Thompson, who reached the jail soon after the mob had gathered, pleaded with the men to let the law take its course. The leader of the mob is said to have given the Sheriff three minutes to leave the vicinity of the jail. He left.

SAYS PALMER USED PARDONS IN FIGHT

MILLION PLEDGED TO WOOD

Loeb Tells of Underwriting—Rogers Gave $50,000, and Duke Also Contributed.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Charges that A. Mitchell Palmer, unsuccessful candidate for the Presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention, used the office of the Attorney General to "influence political personal friends" in the pre-convention campaign by releasing prisoners and preventing indictments of big corporations were filed with the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures late this afternoon by William Armstrong, a Chicago attorney. The committee, after a recess, resumed its inquiry in this city.

Senator Kenyon, the chairman, announced that the committee intends to "delve thoroughly into the Palmer campaign," probably before adjourning its Chicago sessions. In this connection Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis, Democratic National Committeeman, and Joseph T. Davis, a St. Louis lawyer, have been subpoenaed to appear.

The committee announced that it would take Attorney Armstrong's documents, consisting of an exhibit of fifty-two pages, under advisement, but gave no definite answer as to whether it would delve into influences exerted in the campaign other than those accomplished through the actual expenditure of funds.

It was largely through Goltra's influence, it has been charged, that Senator Reed, a member of the investigating committee, was excluded from the convention at San Francisco.

Loeb Tells of $1,000,000 for Wood.

The announcement that the committee plans to investigate Democratic campaign funds next came on the heels of testimony given early in the day in connection with the Wood and Lowden funds. William Loeb, former secretary to President Roosevelt, who described himself as a "sort of clearing house through which the Wood funds in the East passed," told how the campaign of Major General Leonard Wood had been underwritten by a group of New York men a year ago for $1,000,000. The fund was raised, Loeb said, at a conference at which George A. Whalen, Rufus Patterson, Colonel Ambrose Monell, Seth Freeman and others were present.

Monell and Whalen, he said, underwrote $250,000 each and William Cooper Procter a like amount. Loeb said that he agreed to get the rest and that J. B. Duke, the tobacco king, was a large contributor. George W. Perkins, it was testified, gave $10,000 and H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company $50,000.

In going into the Lowden campaign expenditures in Missouri, Senator Reed asked every witness whether he thought it proper that a delegate should accept money from a candidate for the nomination and then sit in the convention which nominated. He also asked each witness what he thought of the working out of the primary system.

Besides Mr. Loeb, important witnesses of the day were J. L. Babler, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, and E. L. Morse of Excelsior Springs, Mo., described by witnesses as the distributor of Governor Lowden's campaign funds in that State and "Boss of the Third Missouri Congressional District."

Ben F. Kesterson of Princeton, Mo., a paroled convict, turned reformer, said he had spent more money in the Roosevelt-Taft campaign in 1912 than in the Lowden campaign this year. Kesterson was a Taft supporter. He described a system of payment by blank checks for which, he said, he received $25 each, but which were cashed up for sums up to $250.

Charges Pardons Used in Politics.

In presenting his petition to the committee Attorney Armstrong stated that it was his understanding that the committee has power to investigate "not only as to money subscribed and used but also any other means or influence, including the promise or use of patronage." His petition asks an investigation "as to the facts showing the conduct of the Department of Justice in a large measure intended to influence political personal friends, or that it has favored them in many and various ways, in violation of law as herein set out, to induce them and their friends, delegates to the National Democratic Convention at San Francisco, to vote and

COURT OF APPEALS DEFINES CAR FARE RISE LIMITATIONS

O'BRIEN SEES CITY VICTORY

Corporation Counsel Says That Only a Few Lines Will Benefit.

ROCHESTER CASE IS CITED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 7.—New York City won and lost today in its fight against increased fares on the New York railways and B. R. T. traction lines by decision of the Court of Appeals, which lawyers agreed tonight must continue the fare question litigation indefinitely.

The court, in one of the most involved decisions ever handed down, declares that under certain franchise agreements the Public Service Commission, First District, may hear applications for increased fares separately as to lines of the B. R. T. system, but has not jurisdiction to hear petitions for increased fares relating to the system as a whole.

The court also handed down a decision in the application of the city of Niagara Falls for a writ of prohibition against the up-State Public Service Commission and the International Railroad, in which it held that where a street railway was operating under franchise granted prior to 1907, when the Public Service Commission was created, it could not charge a higher rate of fare than that specified in the franchise granted by the municipality. In such a case the court held, the Public Service Commission had no authority to entertain an application by the street railway for permission to increase its fares.

In the case of the people, on the relation of the City of New York against the Public Service Commission, First District, the court held that the commission had jurisdiction to hear applications for increased fares because the franchise granted to the railroad company was granted subject to the power of the commission to regulate its rates.

In the Brooklyn cases, involving roads which are a part of the B. R. T. system, of which Lindley M. Garrison is receiver, the cout holds that as to "some of the lines" the Public Service Commission has power to hear rate applications, but not as to other lines. This phase of the decision, lawyers say, is bound to cause extended litigation because it may eventually mean varied fares on most of the B. R. T lines.

The court holds, in the Brooklyn cases, that the following classes of franchises fall outside of the scope of the decision in the Niagara Falls case and the famed Quimby Rochester Street Railway case:

1. All franchises granted by the Legislature.

2. All franchises granted by municipal authorities prior to Jan. 1, 1875.

3. All franchises granted by municipal authorities subsequent to the passage of Public Service Commission law, July 1, 1907.

4. The following franchises were granted between Jan. 1, 1875, and July 1, 1907, the time when the Public Service Commission was created: (a) The franchise granted by the Brooklyn Common Council to Atlantic Avenue Railroad Company, March 13, 1882; (b) franchise granted by Common Council at Brooklyn to Prospect Park and Coney Island Railroad Company, Sept. 21, 1885; (c) franchise granted by Common Council, Brooklyn, to Nassau Electric Railroad Company, June 19, 1893, covering a number of lines.

While the court affirms the order of the Appellate Division preventing the Public Service Commission from hearing the application here involved, it expressly says that the affirmance is without prejudice to the right of the receiver of this system to make separate application as to the franchises which thus come within the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

Victory, Says Corporation Counsel.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien last night characterized as a victory for the city against the railway corporations the decision handed down by the Court of Appeals, in which was reversed the decision of Justice Finch and the Appellate Division, with regard to the authority of the Public Service Commission to grant an increase in fare to street railways and transportation lines in New York City.

The decision affects four lines, the Manhattan and Queens Lines, the Nassau Electric Railway, the Queens County and Suburban Railroad Company, and the Brooklyn and Coney Island Railroad Company, the franchises of which come within the period of time when the Public Service Commission was empowered by statute to grant an increase in the maximum rate of fare when it was "found to be inadequate" in order to yield a fair return.

The Court of Appeals, however, with regard to all other franchises, save those granted before 1875 and 1907, upholds the "Rochester decision" made in 1918, which holds that the Public Service Commission cannot grant an increase in

COX ASKS LOUISIANA TO RATIFY SUFFRAGE; MAY CONFER WITH WILSON ON CAMPAIGN; ROOSEVELT ON WAY EAST TO SEE HIM

Cox May Confer With Wilson Soon at White House; President to Support Him Heartily by Use of Pen

WASHINGTON, July 7.—President Wilson and Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, the Democratic standard-bearer for 1920, are expected to have a conference at the White House soon. Governor Cox has been in direct touch with the White House since his nomination and Administration officials expect an early meeting.

Former Representative T. T. Ansberry of Ohio, who is one of Governor Cox's close friends and went to the convention as a delegate from the District of Columbia, is now en route to Dayton to consult Governor Cox. From Dayton he will return to Washington, and it is likely that when Governor Cox comes to Washington for his conference he will stop at Mr. Ansberry's home.

There was further evidence at the White House today that the President was pleased with the nomination of Cox and Roosevelt. Word has gone forth that he expects all elements in the party to give loyal support to the ticket. President Wilson, it is stated, will do his full share for the election of Cox and Roosevelt. He will probably not be able to make speeches but will use his pen. It was stated at the White House today that the President in his relation to the conduct of the campaign will only be guided by the party leaders in its National committee.

JOHNSON'S SUPPORT PLEASES HARDING

BEGINS ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, July 7. — Senator Harding expressed his satisfaction today with the announcement of Senator Hiram Johnson of California that "with a candidate standing four-square upon the platform, the issue leaves those who believe in safeguarding, protecting and preserving our Americanism but one choice, and that is to support the Republican Party."

Although Senator Johnson until today remained silent on the results of the Republican Convention, Harding headquarters workers have been confident that the California Senator would have little sympathy with the move for a third party and that as soon as the Democratic Party had committed itself he would declare his continued allegiance to the Republican Party.

Senator Harding was informed by long distance telephone from the Republican National Headquarters in Chicago of Senator Johnson's statement.

Senator Harding said: "I am glad to know that Senator Johnson is going to give the ticket his support. I am glad to know of any one's support. I may say further, that I am gratified that the interest is in the platform, rather than in the nominee."

Senator Johnson's placing the platform above the candidate is strongly approved here.

Among others, Senator Borah is yet to be heard from, but it is believed here that Senator Johnson's statement will do much to clear up the situation in his section of the country.

Senator Harding told the newspaper men once more today that the Republican effort this year will be the restoration of party Government.

Referring to the report that Governor Cox favors a campaign throughout the country, Senator Harding said: "I supposed he would, but it will not make any difference in my plans."

The Senator began a rough draft of his speech today, and does not expect to complete it until July 16, six days before the date of notification ceremonies at Garfield Park, near Marion.

"Are you dictating your speech, Senator, or do you use the typewriter yourself?" he was asked.

"Neither," he replied. "My experience as a newspaper and editorial writer goes back before the days of a typewriter. I am writing my speech with a pencil. It is a habit I have acquired from my thirty years' newspaper work, and I still find that, using a pencil, I write as I think."

Too Early at His Office.

When George Christian, Jr., Senator Harding's secretary, and other workers at the Harding headquarters in the house next the Harding home arrived at the offices with the key to the door shortly before 8 this morning, they were surprised to find Senator Harding locked out, sitting on the porch waiting for them. He had been waiting there since 7 o'clock, he said, expecting to have an extra hour to devote to work on his speech of acceptance before the mail could be opened and office routine begun.

"I acquired the habit of getting on the job early in the days of The Marion Daily Star," Senator Harding said, "and I made it a practice to arrive at the office before the compositors got there. Then I could go home early and have the evening to myself."

Senator Harding received word today that the entire Taft family has pledged

COX MAY ASK MOORE TO RUN CAMPAIGN

'WET' ISSUE NOT DESIRED

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—The next meeting of the Democratic National Committee will be held in Columbus or Dayton, Ohio, dependent upon the convenience of Governor Cox. At that time the committee will elect its Chairman, who will be manager of the campaign. Following precedent, the committee will choose as its Chairman anybody recommended by the Presidential candidate.

After informal conferences today between members of the committee who remain here, it was said by them that if the selection of the Chairman was left to the committee Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut would be re-elected unanimously, provided he was willing to undertake the management of the campaign. It is assumed by Democratic leaders that Governor Cox will offer the chairmanship to Edmond H. Moore of Youngstown, committeeman from Ohio, who managed the Cox preconvention campaign. Doubt is expressed about Moore accepting this responsibility. He is telling his friends that he has already given too much time to politics and cannot continue to devote himself exclusively to political matters. His preference is for the position of advisor to Cox without official connection with the National Committee or campaign management.

George White of Marietta, who was assistant manager for Governor Cox, left today for home. He is to meet Governor Cox Monday and at that time the selection of a manager for the campaign will be discussed. Some of Cox's friends here were impressed by Mr. White's work in behalf of Cox and are anxious to have him selected for the Chairmanship. Mr. White succeeded Cox in Congress and they are close friends.

If Cummings should not care to be re-elected or Governor Cox should urge somebody else for Chairman, members of the committee, according to what some of them said, will insist that Cummings have a prominent part in the campaign. His keynote speech impressed the convention and, according to messages received here, Democrats throughout the country were also impressed. If Mr. Cummings does not continue as Chairman, some of his fellow-committeemen said, he must become a leading speaker in the campaign. Arrangements are already being made to have him make his convention speech in New York and Chicago.

Wants League an Issue, Not Liquor.

It became apparent today that if any effort was made to have Governor Cox go before the country as a wet candidate, it will be resisted by prominent Democrats, including members of the National Committee. Those who resent the view that the liquor question may be made an issue of the campaign take the stand that the wet and dry question is pigeonholed. The fact that both Republican and Democratic platforms are silent on the subject is regarded by them as taking the matter out of politics, at least for the time being.

Democratic leaders who take this position insist that the League of Nations is the paramount issue upon which the two parties must go before the voters. There has been a recrudescence of sentiment in favor of the League principle since the Democratic hosts began gathering in San Francisco, and the heartiness with which the delegates received Chairman Cumminga's discussion of the League from the viewpoint of President Wilson and the manner in which opposition to the League plank was flattened out in the convention have greatly impressed some Democratic leaders. These men are now ready and anxious to have "the great and solemn referendum" of the American people for which President Wilson called in his letter to the Jackson Day dinner in Washington on Jan. 8.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN EXPECTED

FLOOD OF CONGRATULATIONS

TALKS ON GOLF AND HOMES

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 7.—Governor Cox, the Democratic Presidential nominee, declared himself today on the suffrage issue. In response to a telegram from Frank J. Loney, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Louisiana, Governor Cox expressed his opinion that it was the duty of the Louisiana Legislature to ratify the woman suffrage amendment. His message follows:

"I have your wire as Chairman of the State Central Committee of Louisiana on the subject of ratification of the suffrage amendment by the General Assembly. I can only express my opinion. It is that the Legislature owes it as a duty to the Democratic Party to ratify at once."

A deep silence on campaign plans will be the rôle of the nominee, at least until his running mate, Assistant Secretary Franklin D. Roosevelt, arrives here and these two go into conference with the small army of Democratic leaders reported facing Daytonward.

While the Governor had nothing to say regarding the campaign, word came into his headquarters telling of the organization of "Cox for President" clubs, the first having been organized today at noon in Lincoln, Neb., Bryan territory; and Charles F. Murphy wired: "There is every reason to believe that you can carry New York State."

Tacitly it is admitted here that Mr. Roosevelt's mission to Trail's End, the Cox home in the suburbs of Dayton, will be for something besides the conveyance of personal congratulations. It is understood that plans for the coming campaign will be mapped out—a sort of rough draft subject to revision by the campaign managers.

One thing appears tonight practically certain, and that is that Governor Cox will not follow Senator Harding in his reported intention of conducting a "front porch campaign." The hint in the home city of the Ohio Governor is that he will personally lead an exceptionally strong campaign, a drive that will smack of Roosevelian vigor.

Twice today Governor Cox gave evidence of his determination not to waste time in talks until talking would accomplish something. The vanguard of newspaper correspondents reached this city this morning and immediately began attempts to pry something out of the veteran of Ohio politics. They camped on the lawn of Trail's End; they paraded the verandas; they invaded the offices of the Governor's newspaper, The News, and all they got was a smiling reiteration of the statement that talking time hadn't come.

One of the questions on which the Governor apparently had not made up his mind was that of resigning the Governorship. As to his plans, he remarked that they had not yet been made. All such things, he said, depended upon the date of his formal notification of the nomination.

There seems to be considerable doubt whether Dayton or Columbus will be the scene of the official announcement of the convention's action. The Ohio capital's Chamber of Commerce is reported working for the honor, while Dayton's citizens, led by Mayor Switzer, are going ahead with plans to spruce up the city for the occasion.

Dayton Plans Holiday Celebration.

As testimony to the remarkable personal popularity of the Governor in Ohio, especially here, plans were practically completed today to declare next Wednesday a holiday, with all the inhabitants, regardless of politics, joining in a tribute to "Jimmy" Cox. A nonpartisan committee of business men and labor officials is in charge of the scheme, and efforts, it is said, will probably be made to have similar demonstrations in other Ohio communities.

While the Democratic nominee was reticent about his plans, there was no reserve observable when the name of his running mate was mentioned. In discussing Mr. Roosevelt Governor Cox said:

"He is a good stumper and a very vigorous, upstanding, courageous and progressive Democrat. His speech before the Democratic National Committee in Chicago last Winter made a very strong impression. He spoke here last Winter on 'Americanization,' and his address at that time was very favorably commented on all over the country. His service in Washington has given him a wide experience and a wide acquaintanceship."

all day and this evening. Among them was the following from Henry Watterson:

"Your nomination revitalized Democracy. It will stir the Democratic heart of the nation with a reflection of the triumphant past and the forecast of a radiant future. To the bosom of one old Kentuckian it brings a flood of fighting memories along with the assurance of glorious victory."

"Heartiest congratulations," wired Champ Clark from Bowling Green, Mo., while ex-Secretary Franklin K. Lane telegraphed thus:

"I sincerely congratulate you and the country. Do give us a campaign that is constructive, that will challenge the interest and the support of new voters. The people want to hear a definite word as to home affairs as well as foreign."

Governor's Praise of Golf.

Several hundred men and women were on hand at the Dayton Country Club tonight when Governor Cox, fulfilling a promise some time ago, spoke at the close of a golf tourney. When the Democratic candidate arrived he was greeted with cheer after cheer. Although he had planned to speak very briefly, the ovation given him seemed to stir him and, after his introduction by Lee Warren James, President of the Chamber of Commerce, the Governor said:

"Golf is not by any means a rich man's game. There was a time when it was, perhaps, but now, what with daylight saving and other things the office worker can get out and play from nine to eighteen holes before dark comes on and after a day's work. I really think that every community should have a municipal golf course, and men of large means should contribute to this end.

"Why I've got so now that I can judge a man's physical condition better by the sort of game he plays than I could if I were feeling his pulse. The great thing about golf, too, is that it takes a man out into the country, and when he gets out there he begins to want to own his own home, and that's a hobby of mine—seeing that people get out into the country and own their own homes—for that is something that goes to stimulate and strengthen patriotism."

"If golf balls," he said, after an interruption of applause, "were a prerequisite to the seat in the most exalted chair in the nation, then I'd be fairly sure to remain there for a half dozen terms. The arrangements for this gathering were made long before the convention. Six days ago those who had charge of the affair became doubtful whether I'd come, but I made up my mind to be present whether I had to wear crape or ribbons.

"Senator Harding and I spoke during the Winter at a meeting of the Ohio members of the Association of Ohio Daily Editors. After the Senator had spoken one of the members of the association took the platform to propose that Harding and Cox might well be selected to head the tickets of the two leading political parties. I mentioned to Senator Harding at the time that it might look as though he and I had 'framed up'—arranged to play the game together—that he might warn the Republicans that Ohio would go to Cox if he were not nominated, while I could offer a similar 'scare' to the Democrats by pointing out the Harding danger.

"But, regardless of the consequences of the November election, Senator Harding and I will always be the same splendid friends we have been for these many years."

These remarks brought a great deal of handclapping, and when it had somewhat subsided the Governor reverted to golf again.

"We must put our shoulders to the task of making golf a poor man's game," he said, "and some of you 'tightwads' should let loose and build with your own money golf courses in your communities."

After his talk Governor Cox motored the five miles back to Dayton, going directly to his home.

Tomorrow the Governor will visit his birthplace in Jacksonburg, a village south of Dayton.

Many Congratulatory Greetings.

DAYTON, July 7 (Associated Press).—It was stated today by those in close touch with the Democratic Presidential candidate that he contemplated conducting his campaign chiefly from Columbus, where he will necessarily have to be much of the time in connection with his duties as Governor. His Dayton friends, however, believe that his home city will be one of the principal nerve centres in the campaign, and that no small part of his campaign work will be conducted from his newspaper office. It has been the practice of the Governor to come home each Friday from Columbus and spend the week-end with his family at Trail's End and at his newspaper office.

The Governor spent most of today at his newspaper office receiving callers and reading messages of congratulation, which have poured into his office in a constant stream since early Tuesday morning. Among them were felicitations from all the candidates who were contenders for the honor that came to the Ohio Governor, Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, Cabinet members, Governors, political leaders of both parties, representatives of labor, business men and personal friends.

Among the telegrams received was one from William G. McAdoo, his chief opponent for the nomination. It said: "Hearty congratulations and assurance of my cordial support." Another from Senator Carter Glass said: "Please accept my congratulations on your nomination."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Vice Presidential nominee, sent the following telegram in response to the Governor's of last night: "The sincere congratulations and warm regards of your teammate are yours. I will stop off on my way East to convey them to you in person."

Another highly prized message came from Jake Daubert of the Cincinnati Reds. It said: "It was in the stars that the Reds should win the pennant. It is in the stars that you should be President." The first part of the message was the Governor's own language in congratulating the Reds on winning the pennant. Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, also sent congratulations.

The Governor and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination, had played golf together at Augusta, Ga. In his message of congratulation Dr. Butler advised him not to "let politics entirely cut out golf."

Views on Owning One's Home.

Tonight the Governor talked golf with the contestants in the Ohio golf tournament at a dinner at the Dayton Country Club.

"There is an erroneous impression that golf is a rich man's game. It is not. A set of clubs doesn't cost much." He said that the game encouraged outdoor life, and particularly country living.

"If I have one public hobby that is more outstanding than any other it has been the preachment of 'more homes.' You can preach patriotism to a man and appeal to his sense of duty, but you can't make the sort of appeal to him that he gains from his own reflections after he owns a home.

"He buys a lot, and quite often borrows money to build a home. His hopes are centered in the enterprise, and he works for it, and it becomes his own particular interest in his general allotment of God's footstool. When he finally achieves his objective and owns his home, he realizes it is his, and that he is protected in his ownership by his Government; that under the laws, he is given the right to transfer what he has earned to the next generation, and realizes that this generation, too, will be protected.

"He gets a real object lesson of the relation that exists between the Government and the individual."

Pleased with His Running Mate.

"Cox and Roosevelt—that's catchy, isn't it?" he commented as he first learned from the Associated Press who his associate on the ticket would be. The Governor had left his newspaper office in the city before the Vice-Presidential nomination was made, and the office had forgotten to telephone him the result.

The Governor admitted that he was not intimately acquainted with Mr. Roosevelt, but declared him to be a "vigorous, upstanding, courageous and progressive Democrat." He commented particularly on two addresses made by the Vice Presidential candidate, one before the National Democratic Committee in Chicago last Winter and the other in Dayton on Americanization. He said that Mr. Roosevelt's service in Washington had given him a wide experience and a wide acquaintanceship.

In his first public address after his nomination, in Middletown last night, Governor Cox declared, in commenting on the industrial unrest in the world, that "any attempt to exploit class hatred is equally as dangerous as the Bolsheviki in Europe."

He asserted that the Golden Rule worked better than the bullet or the bayonet, and that in all industrial disputes there was a middle ground which must be followed in order that justice be done to all.

"Those in public places must guard the freedom of the many from the exploitation of the few," he said.

Deplores Stirring Class Hatred.

In his first public address after his nomination, in Middletown last night, Governor Cox said:

"If I should become President of the nation, I feel that I possess one equipment which I would not give for any other—that I lived through the life of the under man. I now feel that I am the representative of that class."

Speaking of the unrest in the world, the Governor said:

"Any attempt to exploit class hate is equally dangerous as the Bolsheviki in Europe. Those in public places must guard the freedom of the many from the exploits of the few."

Governor Cox said that during his six years as Governor of Ohio there had not been a shot fired by a man in uniform in any of the industrial disputes.

He declared that in all industrial disputes there was a middle ground which must be followed in order to do justice to all.

GOV. COX'S TELEGRAM DELIGHTS SUFFRAGISTS

They Wish Him to Urge Action by Tennessee as Well as Louisiana.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Militant suffragists were delighted today with the report that a telegram had been sent by Governor Cox, the Democratic Presidential nominee, urging the ratification of the suffrage amendment by Louisiana.

"A fine start," was the comment of Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's Party. In an interview Miss Paul intimated that she believed the Democratic rather than the Republican Party would force ratification by furnishing the needed thirty-sixth State.

The suffragists intend to use their influence with Franklin D. Roosevelt, the newly nominated Democratic Vice Presidential candidate. They will ask him to do what he can for them in Democratic States. An appointment with Mr. Roosevelt will be arranged at an early date.

While the suffragists are centring their efforts at present upon the Democratic nominee, they have not forgotten Senator Harding. The National Woman's Party announced tonight that Senator Harding had consented to receive a delegation from that organization on July 22, the day of the formal notification of his nomination.

"By taking action on the day following his nomination to secure ratification by a Southern State Mr. Cox is making an excellent beginning," said Miss Paul in her interview. "He is evidently striving to make the suffrage plank of his platform an actuality. If his efforts continue with sufficient vigor there is little doubt of ratification by at least one of the three possible Democratic States—Louisiana, Tennessee and North Carolina."

The Louisiana Legislature, asked by Governor Cox to ratify the suffrage amendment, is now in regular session. The same Legislature defeated ratification on June 15, 1920, by a vote in the Senate of 23 to 19 and in the House of 67 to 44. It is entirely possible, however, for a resolution similar to the one defeated to be introduced at any time and passed by a majority vote.

Arrangements for a suffrage delegation to go to Dayton, Ohio, to urge upon Governor Cox that he exert pressure upon the Tennessee Legislature, are being completed.

A telegram received this afternoon from Dr. Gillette Hayden of Columbus, Ohio, State Chairman for the Woman's Party, reported that she had already wired Governor Cox for an appointment.

Representatives from all States, particularly those adjoining Ohio, will be requested to join the delegation. State Chairmen of States near Ohio who will be asked to take part or send representatives include: Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd of Chicago, Mrs. W. C. Bobbs of Indianapolis, Miss Edith Callahan of Louisville, Mrs. Nelson Whittemore of Detroit, Mrs. A. R. Colvin of St. Paul, Miss Mary Ingham of Philadelphia, Miss Sue White of Jackson, Tenn., and Mrs. W. G. Brown of Kingwood, W. Va.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 7.—"This Assembly will have a chance to vote on a real suffrage measure before tomorrow," said Senator Williamson after receiving the message from Governor Cox urging ratification by the Louisiana Legislature of the Federal suffrage amendment.

Reading in the House tonight of the telegram from Governor Cox brought no open movement to obtain action on the ratification resolution before sine die adjournment tomorrow night.

The nominee's telegram was transmitted to the House by Frank J. Loney, Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, who himself sent a telegram urging ratification.

Reading of the Loney telegram drew from Representative Dupre a statement on the floor that he would not permit dictation by the State Chairman.

"I say this telegram (the Loney telegram) is an insult to the intelligence of every member of this Legislature," said he amid the cheers of suffrage opponents.

An attempt to obtain action on the ratification resolution may be made tomorrow, but, as a suspension of rules in both houses, requiring a two-thirds vote, would be necessary to bring up the resolution, leaders believe there is slight hope of adoption.

The bill proposing to extend the suffrage to women by State amendment was defeated in the Senate today, the vote being 27 to 14, or one short of the required two-thirds.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 7.—Governor Bickett of North Carolina today issued a call for a special session of the Legislature for Aug. 10, at which ratification of the suffrage amendment will be considered.

The Governor did not mention suffrage in the call for the special session, but he has telegraphed President Wilson that he will recommend to the special session that the amendment be ratified.

ROOSEVELT STARTS BACK TO THE EAST

Nominee for Vice President Will Remain in Navy Department Several Weeks.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—The exodus of Democratic National Convention hosts numbered into the thousands today, among the notables leaving being the Vice Presidential nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Secretary Daniels.

Mr. Roosevelt started for the East, while Secretary Daniels left on the New Mexico, flagship of the Pacific Fleet, for Bremerton, Wash., whence he will begin a tour of Alaskan waters.

Among those remaining over today besides Governor Smith of New York were Secretary of State Colby, Secretary of Agriculture Meredith and Senator Owen of Oklahoma. They were waiting to have train reservation arrangements completed and expected to leave within twenty-four hours.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 7.—Franklin D. Roosevelt said here today he would not resign as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for several weeks. It had been reported that he planned to resign at once.

Ambassador Davis, at London, cabled his "congratulations and good wishes."

William F. McCombs, former Chairman of the National Committee, wired: "You are aware that I expect great things of you upon your election and inauguration. You will fill this high office with distinction."

Others who sent congratulations to Mr. Roosevelt included Secretary of Labor Wilson, Governors Bamberger of Utah and Parker of Louisiana, former Senator Hollis of New Hampshire, Thomas E. Watson of Georgia and Mayor Peters of Boston.

TRENTON, N. J., July 7.—Governor Edwards sent today the following telegram of congratulation to Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"Earnest congratulations to yourself and our party on the excellent selection of a running mate to our next President, Governor James M. Cox."

William G. McAdoo wired yesterday the following message to Mr. Roosevelt: "Please accept my warmest congratulations and best wishes for success."

COX SENDS GREETINGS TO MANITOBA'S CHIEF

SANDUSKY, Ohio, July 7.—A letter from Governor James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for President, to Sir James Aikins, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Manitoba, Canada, principal speaker at today's session of the Ohio State Bar Association at Cedar Point, was read to the convention this afternoon by President Bennett. The letter, dated July 5, read as follows:

"I cannot express to you my regrets that circumstances prevent my greeting you in person and speaking the welcome of our people in this Commonwealth.

"I have long preached the doctrine of a better understanding between the English-speaking governmentalities of the United States and Canada. In the affairs of civilization, and more intimately of humane welfare, our division is only governmental. In Ohio you will find a cordial feeling for you and your countrymen, and an understanding of how you have suffered during the stress of war.

"Let us hope that as our soldiers fought side by side, so shall the two great powers of this hemisphere support in union and harmony, the ideals which will guarantee a better and a happier world.

"I am, with great respect,

"Most cordially yours,

"JAMES M. COX, Governor of Ohio."

PARIS PRESS THINKS COX WILL SUPPORT LEAGUE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 7.—What comment is made by the French press today on the selection of Governor Cox as Democratic candidate for the Presidency is to the effect that it will tend to reduce the importance of the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations as an election issue.

The writers see in the contest of the two Ohians a straight fight between two great parties in which there will be more attention to home than to foreign politics, and except in the anti-Wilson organs there is careful abstention from any partisan expression of opinion.

From his rare and judicious speeches on the treaty and League, moderate papers, such as the Petit Parisien, deduce with satisfaction that Governor Cox "favors a treaty to conclude peace and a League to maintain it." Philippe Millet a shrewd commentator on foreign affairs, writes in the Paris Midi: "What is perhaps best in the choice of Governor Cox is that he is eager, like the majority of his countrymen in and out of politics, to hasten the coming of peace."

The Echo de Paris comes to the conclusion that whichever candidate is elected there will not be a great difference in the foreign policy of the United States.

The Journal des Débats tonight says that whatever happens America will retake her place in the union of civilized people.

"For the moment she is entirely occupied with party politics," it says, adding: "But in a few months, when she will have chosen her President, she will begin to interest herself in world affairs. At the present stage of civilization the isolation of so great a nation is impossible, at least for any length of time. We ardently desire the return of the great transatlantic republic.

"Meanwhile, do not let us lose sight of the forest among the trees. Whoever may be the new occupant of the White House, the United States will, as soon as he is elected, cease to be entirely occupied with internal politics. For the rest of the world that will be of immense importance, and it is only regrettable that there are still some months to wait."

LONDON, July 7.—Newspapers of London, in commenting on the Chicago and San Francisco conventions this morning, devote more attention to future relations between the United States and Great Britain than upon the bearing the conventions will have on the domestic affairs of America.

The Times, recognizing that affairs of Europe, especially of Great Britain, will be much discussed during the campaign, says: "It would be wise to frankly ask ourselves whether it is strange if the progress of European affairs since the armistice should have induced in American minds a feeling of bewilderment bordering on alarm."

Most newspapers touch very lightly, or ignore, the Irish plank adopted at San Francisco. The Telegraph professes "not to be greatly perturbed by this diluted patronage, nor by the much more fervid sympathy for Irish independence which some American politicians thought proper to exhibit." The newspaper indorses the confidence expressed by John W. Davis, American Ambassador, in a recent speech, that "the current which carries the destinies of the two peoples on a common course will continue to set steadily onward."

NEW PARTY LEADERS OFF.

Heads of Committee of 48 Go to Chicago for Pre-Convention Conference.

J. A. H. Hopkins, Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight; L. C. Trieschmann, head of the Connecticut delegation; Frank A. Pattison, New Jersey leader, and Frank Stephens of Delaware are on their way to Chicago to confer with Western leaders of the movement prior to the national convention of the committee in Chicago on Saturday.

Delegates from all of the Eastern States will depart for Chicago on a special train today. Those in charge of the convention expect an attendance of about 600 delegates.

Following in part is a statement issued at the headquarters of the committee, 15 East Fortieth Street, yesterday:

"The need for a new political party has again been emphasized by the action of the Democratic Convention. Just as the Republicans failed to offer a platform or a candidate in any way commensurate with the demand of the average citizen, so the Democrats have proved that they are bankrupt of solution of the real problems that confront us all.

"The pronouncements of both parties on questions of cost of living, transportation and other matters directly affecting our common happiness are so frivolous as to insult the intelligence of the voters. The country understands this and the great bulk of the people will turn hopefully to a new party that will attempt an intelligent solution of our domestic difficulties. It is the business of the Chicago Convention to agree upon a platform that will offer such a solution. The selection of a candidate is by no means as important as the principles that he will support in the campaign."

SAN FRANCISCO WON DELEGATES' HEARTS

A GREAT CITY SEEN BY ALL

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—San Francisco is itself again. The irruption of assorted Democrats, which overran the city for ten days, has passed on, save for a few boom managers, officials of the National Committee and newspaper men, who are no longer candidates for California hospitality. They are weary of days and hours, blown buds of barren flowers, desires and dreams and powers, and everything but sleep.

But the rank and file of the unterrified Democracy has gone on its unterrified way and it is noticeable that most of it has gone home by way of Canada, where there is not only admirable mountainous scenery, but the possibility of certain refreshments, which can be obtained more readily under monarchical rule than in the land of the so-called free.

So for six long months San Francisco will have nobody to be hospitable to but the casual tourist. There is no more extraneous and adventitious excitement in prospect until the National Association of Fruit Canners meets here in January.

Today the hotel lobbies seem deserted after the crowds that packed them last week. In the Palace, where three days ago every room held an important conference—important to those who took part in it, at least, whether the theme was combination on a dark horse or merely a fortunately and surreptitiously acquired bottle of bourbon—the maids and sweepers are cleaning out the wreckage, and the Commonwealth Club lunch is once more the chief event of the day. In the St. Francis the sedentary statesmen, who held all the easy chairs in the lobby last week, have passed into Canada and history and relinquished the chairs to pretty girls waiting for the boys who are going to take them to tea.

In the Fairmont the difference is less noticeable, for a few extra Senators and Governors were lost to sight in the great open spaces that monstrate lobby; yet even there a placidity reigns today which was not perceptible forty-eight hours ago.

Success as an Advertisement

Ten thousand convention visitors have evacuated San Francisco, but ten thousand new California boosters are going to be absorbed into the rest of the country.

As an advertisement of San Francisco and its inhabitants the convention has been a big success. It has been a success in every way, for that matter. The expected jams and mishaps have not taken place, thanks to the Democratic National Committee and the Local Citizens Committee. The convention visitors have been well and cheaply housed and fed; the convention hall was a revelation in comfort, and the foresight of the telegraph companies made possible the transmission of news to the rest of the country with a degree of success looked for last January. But the Californians wanted the Convention as an advertisement of their State, and incidentally of some of their aspirations, and from that point of view it has been a special and particular success.

Every Easterner is familiar with the California expatriate. The more widely he has travelled the more familiar he is. The four corners of the earth and most of the space in between seem to be populated very largely by native sons and daughters who protest that California is the undisputed garden spot, the original location of the Garden of Eden, but display a strange reluctance to go back and live there.

Naturally this discrepancy between words and acts tends to create a certain skepticism about the merits of California; but those who attended this convention are willing to believe the assertions of the Californians hereafter, even if their actions sometimes belie them. The mystery of why the Californians won't go home is still unsolved, though it has been plausibly suggested that they have been sent out to do missionary work for the Golden State on the foreign field, and feel that they would be recreant to their duties if they laid their burdens down and went home to enjoy the earth's paradise.

But the State has made good with the convention visitors. Some of them were rather reluctant to admit it, for they had behind them a long record of resistance in the siren song of the wandering Californians, and they disliked to confess that the prejudice of a lifetime had turned out to be mistaken. But admit it they did and manfully.

What Makes the City Great?

There remains the question of what makes California great, or rather San Francisco, for some of the skeptical die-hards still refuse to believe anything about Southern California till they see it. There is the bay and the mountains, of course. But the ancient truism that God made the country and man made the town is borne out well by San Francisco.

No being, gifted with divine discrimination, would ever have thought of trying to build a city on these fog-swept sandhills that was left to the magnificent impertinence of the Forty Niners.

And San Francisco has an aristocratic disdain of appearance. The business district has the undistinguished ugliness of the business district of most American cities. There is nothing comparable to the sky line of New York or the massive lake front of Chicago. In the residence quarters there are a few splendid houses, some unusual and attractive apartments, a sprinkling of pretty bungalows, but nothing like the genteel respectability of Boston, or the opulent and caressing comfort of such cities, as Hartford and Buffalo.

San Francisco is what it is, and if you don't like its looks, it lets you pass by indifferently. You must go behind the appearance to see what is there.

Walt Whitman, in some famous verses, the exact phrasing of which has escaped the correspondent's memory, gives his definition of the great city. Among other things, it is the city where men and women are on an equality. This has been true for a long time in San Francisco, and the rest of the country is gradually catching up.

It is the city where the people continually rise against the never-ending insolence of elected persons. That fits San Francisco unusually well, perhaps because elected persons here are apt to be more than ordinarily insolent, perhaps because San Francisco got the habit of rising in the Vigilante days and has ever since felt uncomfortable in a sitting posture.

At any rate, pretty nearly every one of old Walt's specifications will fit the San Franciscans as neatly as one of their own one-piece Jersey silk bathing suits, and the substance of his remarks is that the great city is the city which is inhabited by a great race.

There is nothing original about it, though Walt went into detail more successfully than others who have commented on the subject, but it is the unanimous opinion of everybody who came here for the convention that the Californians really are a great people, though they say it as shouldn't.

Perhaps they are still riding along on the supererogatory merit accumulated by their Argonaut ancestors; perhaps, on the other hand, they are worthy descendants who have never had any particular opportunity to show their quality. But they are a great people, and they look it. They have an air of serene self-confidence that does not infuriate, like the self-confidence of the old Bostonians, nor amuse, like the self-confidence of the old Philadelphians—an assurance impossible to the residents of Chicago and rare enough in New York—a city of "arrivistes." Their men have an easy boldness, their women a confident poise, that cannot be acquired in one generation.

New Yorkers who have attended this convention may, perhaps, be pardoned for feeling that only a New Yorker, among Americans at least, can properly appreciate San Francisco. Everybody here has admitted that it is a good town, but New Yorkers, perhaps, know more about what a good town really is than does the rest of the country. To be sure, there is a good deal about San Francisco that surprises and all but dismays the New Yorker. New York, of course, is probably the most moral city in the country, aside from that small feverish section that is gradually dying under the water cure as out-of-town buyers discover that they can make their purchases from the catalogue.

In the dining rooms of the best hotels in San Francisco the best people dance cheek to cheek in a fashion which would cause their arrest for disorderly conduct, if not for assault, on Manhattan Island. Lace stockings, discredited in New York by their adoption by shop girls who want to be mistaken for movie actresses, are favored by the upper middle class in this city—people dance with swoops and dives and plunges that would be enough to bring out the bouncer in any dance hall in New York.

And Those Bathing Suits.

And the bathing suits are of such a character that it is fortunate that Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O'Grady attended the sessions of the convention instead of touring the coast resorts. A member of Mayor Hylan's Police Department would have shivered under the shock.

The standard of morality seems to rise as you go Eastward. In Chicago girls may swim without stockings, though skirts are required. In New York there is not much difference between a bathing costume and street dress. But in California they argue that if you are going swimming you ought to dress to swim, and that in a country where there is so much scenery to start with a little more scenery will attract no special attention. Yes, it is a shock to the New Yorker, the police of Long Beach and Rockaway would faint with futile indignation if anybody ever brought them out here.

Yet California seems to survive a condition that would furnish the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton with enough material for a year of sermons. They have John Roach Stratons out here, but they don't seem to be afraid of them. Perhaps it is only one more token of Californian assurance. New York hasn't enough confidence in its inhabitants to take any chances with them at all, but California seems to feel that if you give them an ell they won't care to take more than an inch, that if you give them enough rope they won't want to hang themselves.

What success California had in "selling" its grievances, as well as its merits, to the visiting Democrats will not be known for some time. California wanted in part to tell its guests about the Japanese question and it succeeded to the extent of getting into the platform an expression of mild approbation for an exclusion policy. But platform expressions are less important just now than a real appreciation in the Eastern mind of the intensity of California feeling on the subject, an appreciation that will be reflected in Eastern opinion the next time there is a crisis.

Californians have felt hitherto that they stood almost alone, and that of the little support they had in the East some was of a character not above suspicion. If they have not made their visitors see the Japanese question with their eyes, it is largely because they have been too busy being hospitable to do real missionary work. Yet they have won at least this much—they have convinced those who came here that California is a country worth holding—a country that must be held, whether against peaceful penetration or against any other form of alien menace.

Yes, they have put themselves over. In the Arabian Nights there is a tale of a wanderer from a far distant land who came to the Court of the Caliph of Bagdad and held forth on the merits of his native place in this fashion:

"There is no country like our country. Everything that is in it is better than anything that is in any other of all the countries; and its inhabitants and people are a good people, with comely faces."

Beyond question, that man was a Californian; and he was telling the truth.

Cox-Roosevelt Club Organized.

The first Cox-Roosevelt club in Lower Manhattan established temporary headquarters yesterday morning in Room 406, Tribune Building. Twenty charter members, who were active workers in the Cox campaign, got together and elected David Robinson President and Francis P. Burns Vice President. About ninety members were enrolled.

EVERY ONE PLEASED, SAYS MARSHALL

He Is Because He Knows What the White House Is—Longs to Return to Private Life.

LOS ANGELES, July 7.—Vice President Marshall, who arrived here today from the Democratic Convention, said that he "guessed every one was pleased with the result at San Francisco."

"My part in it pleases me," he added. "I told every one I did not want anything political. I have had eight years in Washington and I am satisfied.

"I know what the White House is. I believe the man who wants to get into the White House and does will want to get out as soon as possible.

"I want to get back into private life so I can walk down the street and look the citizens in the eye without wondering whether they are pointing with pride to me or viewing me with alarm."

Mr. Marshall said he and Mrs. Marshall would "loaf" in Los Angeles a day or two and then go to Coronado Beach.

COX DECLINES INVITATION.

Can't Appear with Harding Before St. Louis American Legion.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—Governor James M. Cox has been invited to speak here from the same platform with his Republican opponent, Senator Warren G. Harding, July 23, at the dedicatory ceremonies of a war heroes' memorial cemetery. Senator Harding has announced that he will probably begin his campaign here that day. The invitation was telegraphed to Governor Cox today by the local branch of the American Legion.

DAYTON, Ohio., July 7.—Governor Cox today wired the St. Louis branch of the American Legion that it would be impossible, because of pressing business at home, for him to accept the invitation to speak with Senator Harding at the dedicatory ceremonies in St. Louis on July 25. He expressed keen regret at not being able to accept the invitation.

to support him in the present campaign. The Taft support was pledged in a letter from Hulbert Taft, editor of The Cincinnati Times-Star, who wrote Senator Harding:

"You have the best wishes of all the Taft family, and, of course, can count upon our most earnest support in the campaign."

In reply, Senator Harding said:

"It gratifies me very greatly to know that I have the best wishes of all the Taft family and The Times-Star."

Another letter today was from Wilmer R. Harne, who unionized the Marion Daily Star office a number of years ago. Since leaving Senator Harding's paper Harne has been running a printing establishment of his own at Hagerstown, Md.

"I asked you how you felt about the printers organizing," Harne wrote the Senator, "and you told me if they wanted to organize they should do so and that if they did not they didn't need to. I am the 'Shorty' Harne, the crippled printer, that did the trick. I am now in business for myself and I shall make it a point to do you all the good I can."

Youngster Sends Him Five Dollars.

"I am not old enough to vote," Hurt Cole of Nicholasville, Kentucky, wrote Senator Harding, "nor financially able to contribute as I should like, but I am going to work to help place Kentucky in the G. O. P. column in November." Attached to his letter was a draft for five dollars, which Senator Harding turned over to the National Committee, after writing young Cole thanking him for his interest.

Frederick E. Schortemeier, of Indianapolis, Secretary of the Indiana Republican State Committee, called on Senator Harding bringing an invitation for him to address the Indiana editorial meeting at Turkey Run, Ind., July 30, but he was told that it would be impossible for the Senator to attend.

He also carried an invitation from Mayor Charles Jewett of Indianapolis, to Mrs. Harding to attend the Indiana State Horse Show at Indianapolis during the first week in September and act as one of the judges of the saddle class. Mrs. Harding has been known as a skilled horsewoman and a lover of horses.

There have been no signs as yet of any move on the part of women suffragists to picket the Harding residence.

Senator Harding's office is in a house separated from his own by less than forty feet of lawn. Two Marion policemen are on duty guarding the Harding home both front and back while "Jimmy" Sloan, the Secret Service guardian of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, sits on the porch of the Harding office with watchful eye on all who enter the headquarters. Except for the presence of Sloan and the two policemen there is nothing that would single out the Harding house from the other modest but comfortable homes along Mount Vernon Avenue.

Mrs. Harding rides downtown in the morning to market and receives a few callers in the afternoon, mostly friends and relatives living in Marion.

Suffrage pickets would have the street and sidewalks to themselves, and except for occasional glimpses of Senator Harding crossing the lawn from his home to his headquarters the only persons they could picket would be Jimmy Sloan and the two policemen, whose only diversion is talking to delivery boys, reporters and passers-by.

HARDING MEN WANT SENATOR ON STUMP

They Tell National Committee Candidate Should Tour the West and Middle West.

HERT PROMISES KENTUCKY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The Republican National Committee was informed today by Ohio men close to Senator Harding that they were opposed to the "front porch campaign" idea for the Republican Presidential nominee.

They take the attitude that Senator Harding is not needed in his own State during the campaign and they want the West and the Middle West to get a chance to know the Senator as well as they do. Therefore they favor a "swing around the circuit" for the candidate instead of the passive campaign that has been advocated in some quarters. They are willing to let the National Committee decide. But they want it to know what they think.

It was "Ohio Day" at the National Headquarters, where Chairman Will H. Hays is interviewing the various State leaders and getting first hand information regarding the situations in the various States.

H. M. Daugherty, who was Senator Harding's campaign manager, and George H. Clark, Chairman of the State Committee, held a long conference with Mr. Hays. A. T. Hert, Kentucky National Committeeman, and I. A. Caswell, Minnesota Committeeman, also told of the situation in their States.

The Ohio leaders assured Mr. Hays that the nomination of Governor Cox would not prevent the Republicans carrying Ohio.

Declares Ohio Surely Republican.

"We have not the slightest apprehension about Ohio," was the way Chairman Clark put it. "Of course, to give figures or to claim a certain majority at this time would only be deceptive, but I believe that I know the vote in the State pretty well and I haven't the slightest fear that it will go Democratic. The largest element in the voting strength is composed of the 50,000 farmers, and they will be found, as usual, in the Republican ranks."

Ohio leaders told Mr. Hays confidently, however, that until the primaries in August it would be impossible to get an exact line on the State, as the nomination of certain candidates for Governor or Senator might interfere in some way with the general situation. They assured him that Governor Cox had carried the State at the last two elections on largely personal issues and would not have the same advantage this year.

Committeeman Hert repeated to Chairman Hays the promises he has frequently made that Kentucky would be in the Republican column on election day.

"The attitude of the Democratic convention on the subject of liquor will work to the benefit of the Republican Party in Minnesota," said Committeeman Caswell. "The Republican nominees are acceptable to the Republicans of my State."

Henry L. Stoddard, owner of The New York Evening Mail and one of the leaders of the Progressive Party in the 1912 campaign, was in the city to assure the party leaders of the support of the followers of Theodore Roosevelt.

"More Progressives will vote for Harding than did for Hughes," he said. "So far, I have heard of only one Progressive who will support the Democratic ticket, and that is Bainbridge Colby, who is in the Wilson Cabinet."

Some Democrats Dissatisfied.

The vanguard of the Democratic forces returning to their homes from the San Francisco convention arrived in Chicago today. It included Judge Samuel Seabury, of New York, and a group of Eastern delegates who remained a few hours between trains.

These delegates were not all satisfied with the result of the convention, regarding it as a blow to President Wilson and the progressive wing of the Democratic party with which most of them were affiliated. They expressed the belief, however, that the Democratic ticket stood a good chance of winning.

"The whole strategy of the convention was devoted to the object of trading the West for a group of Eastern states," said one of the delegates. "With a vet candidate it was believed certain that the Democrats would carry Connecticut, New Jersey and Ohio, and probably New York. Personally I believe that the first three states named will be surely Democratic and that the chances of carrying New York are good. As for the Western states, they were abandoned by the convention strategists as hopeless because they were dry."

THE ORIGINAL HARDING MAN.

Robert L. Miller of Washington Claims That Distinction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—"The original Harding man" is Robert I. Miller, President of the Harding and Coolidge Republican League No. 1 of the District of Columbia.

This is the testimony of Senator Harding himself, for he has just presented to Mr. Miller a life-size photograph which he autographed as follows:

"To Robert I. Miller, the original Harding man."

Mr. Miller has had this photograph framed, and it hangs in the reception room of his home.

JOHNSON FOR PARTY ON LEAGUE ISSUE

SAYS FIGHT IS NOW CLEAR

Holds Both Parties, for Different Reasons, Have Rejected League with Reservations.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Support of the Republican Party "with a candidate standing four-square upon the platform" is the only choice left for "those who believe in safeguarding, protecting and preserving our Americanism," Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California declared in a statement at his home here today.

"For more than a year the contest over the President's League of Nations has been waged in Congress," Senator Johnson's statement read; "it has been the all-engrossing and paramount issue. Of necessity this issue came to the conventions of the great political parties. Both Republicans and Democrats, in their platforms, have indulged in the usual political verbosity, but nevertheless these platforms, in direct opposition to each other, sharply define and fairly present the question for decision in the November election.

"The Republican Party declared that the President's covenant 'failed signally to accomplish' its purpose, and contained stipulations not only intolerable for an independent people, but certain to produce the injustice, hostility and controversy among nations which it proposed to prevent, and 'repudiated to a degree wholly unnecessary and unjustifiable the time-honored policies in favor of peace declared by Washington, Jefferson and Monroe.'

"The Republican Party stands, therefore, firmly against the President's covenant as presented, denounces it as breeding war rather than promoting peace, and reaffirms the time-honored, nation-old policies of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe.

"The Democratic Party, on the other hand, rejected every effort to modify or qualify the President's proposed League of Nations, indorsed the President's attitude and took its position in favor of the League as presented. It is true that the Democrats, in effort to placate, say something about reservations which might make clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States, but the language is meaningless and does not at all alter the essential position of the Democratic Party for the League as presented.

"The two parties acted in similar fashion in one respect, but from different motives and for different reasons. Both rejected the pleas for the adoption of the League with reservations, the Democrats because they were for the League as presented, and the Republicans because no reservations devised by the human mind could anticipate the contingencies which might arise in the future from an instrument of such potential possibilities for harm.

"Thus the issue finally comes from the forum of congress to the final arbitrament of the American people. The overshadowing question of the campaign, therefore, is whether we enter the maelstrom of European and Asiatic politics and diplomacy and become a part of the cynical imperialism of the Old World, or whether America shall live her life in her own way, independent, but covered, mindful always of her obligations to humanity and civilization, but free to act as each crisis shall arise, and maintaining always the policy of Washington and Jefferson and Monroe, of friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none.

"With a candidate standing four-square upon the platform, the issue leaves those who believe in safeguarding, protecting and preserving our Americanism, but one choice, and that is to support the Republican Party."

CRITICISE THE GRANGE ON POLITICAL POLICY

Farmers' National Council Charges it with Supporting Laws "Which Robbed Them."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Announcement several days ago by the National Grange that it would take no part in partisan politics during the coming campaign today developed a rejoinder from the Farmers' National Council, of which George P. Hampton is Managing Director and Benjamin C. Marsh is Secretary.

"The National Grange," says the statement, "has issued a statement on the Grange and 'partisan' politics, in which it attempts to stigmatize as partisan politics the efforts of the forward-looking farmers and members of organized labor to defeat for re-election members of Congress who have failed to protect the rights of the American people and opposed them, and have even served the predatory interests, and to elect men who, it is well known, will serve the public interest, and not private interests.

"The Grange statement asserts that the principle which actuates the Grange 'is the greatest good of the greatest number.' This principle is not copyrighted by the National Grange, and doubtless the forward-looking farmers of America, who number millions, will question whether the National Grange has been completely loyal to this, their avowed principle.

"The Cummins-Esch transportation bill opened the doors of the public treasury to a few privileged railroad stockholders at the expense of the entire American people, but the Grange indorsed this measure, which was really the greatest good to the smallest number and the greatest evil to the greatest number.

"The Grange indorsed the bill for the sale of the people's ships for scandalously low prices to private profiteering interests. It is difficult to square this action of the Grange with the principle which it claims actuates it.

"It is, of course, true that no large farm organization as such goes in for partisan politics, or even for political purposes. It is equally true that farmers realize that they can do much to improve their conditions through co-operative efforts, but they know, too, that they can be robbed by political action of any benefits resulting to them and to the public through such co-operation. Therefore progressive farmers will continue to unite with other progressive forces throughout the country to restore government responsive to the people, and we know that many members of the Grange will do the same.

"It is not inappropriate in this connection to call attention to the fact that of the six hundred and twenty-odd thousand members of the Grange, only about 250,000 are bona-fide farmers, and that a majority of these live in half a dozen States. We believe that a great majority of the members of the Grange will consult their rights in the coming election, and will not be bamboozled by partisanship or by affiliation in any farm organization into refraining from exerting their right to pry the predatory interests of the country loose from their strangle hold on the American people."

Attorney Armstrong charges:

"That to accomplish this end the Department of Justice has been instrumental in causing pardons to be issued to persons who have been found guilty of violating the internal revenue laws of Congress, who offered to pay in cash to the Government the sum of $150,000 in full settlement, after they had been found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment as well as fined for violating the criminal laws of Congress, which cases were dismissed by the United States District Attorney at Chicago on April 23, 1920."

He also attributes as a part of the Attorney General's campaign to "exert influences" the "saving of the New York Central Railroad Company as well as a large coal company, with nearly all the chief executive officers of the same, from punishment and imprisonment after being indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Chicago on July 31, 1914." These cases were dismissed, it is pointed out, by District Attorney Charles F. Clyne on June 17, 1920.

Armstrong charges the Attorney General's office with blocking the efforts of a citizen to obtain information regarding the report that a Democratic member of Congress entered into an agreement "to collect one or more fictitious claims against the Government for the sum of $327,178.15, growing out of the late war."

No Decision on Calling Armstrong.

Several minor charges are made by the attorney in the lengthy exhibit setting forth his contentions. Chairman Kenyon said he was not sure whether Armstrong would be called as a witness but that the committee would go into the Palmer campaign thoroughly before it was through with its work.

Goltra, it was said, still is in San Francisco. In that case it probably would be four or five days before he could reach Chicago and in that event, Chairman Kenyon said, the committee might have to adjourn and summon him at a later hearing.

Jacob L. Babler, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, was the first witness called when the full committee, consisting of Senators Kenyon, Edge, Reed and Pomerene, opened the hearing in Judge Evans's chambers in the Federal Building. The two Lowden delegates who admitted having kept $2,500 each of the campaign money—Goldstein and Moore—both testified that they had paid the money back. The checks were produced to prove their assertions. It was shown that the checks had passed through the clearing house on June 27.

It was brought out that five others who had received Lowden campaign money had returned it after the Senate committee had begun its investigations. These were Roy Davis, a Professor at the University of Missouri, who paid back $200; Roscoe Patterson of Springfield, Mo., who returned $1,000; E. S. Brown of Edina, Mo., returned $1,000; the Tabernacle Baptist Church (colored), S. A. Moseley, pastor, of St. Louis, which sent back $100; and M. E. Rhodes of Potosi, Mo., who returned $100.

In a sworn statement Walter Hukried of Warrenton, Mo., a Lowden worker, testified that he had received $2,050 from E. L. Morse, Lowden committeeman in Missouri. He said that he gave $300 to John T. Moore of Ozark, Mo., and $100 to William K. Kitchen for traveling expenses to and from conventions and made other expenditures of which he did not keep an account. Hukried declared that he had no apologies to make for the manner in which he had used the money given him, and that he had made no illegitimate expenditures. He cited the campaigns made by Roosevelt and Taft in Missouri in 1912 as more extravagant than those of 1920, and declared if it was proper for Taft and Roosevelt to make large expenditures it could not be considered improper for Governor Lowden or any other candidate to do the same.

Rogers and Duke as Contributors.

When William Loeb, Eastern treasurer for General Wood, took the stand, there was a hush of expectancy. Mr. Loeb started out by saying that he was first called into conference with Messrs. Whalen, Patterson, Monell, Freeman and others to give his opinion as to what the Wood campaign would cost.

"I estimated the expense at $1,000,000," Loeb told the committee. "Colonel Monell underwrote $250,000, Mr. Whalen $250,000, William Cooper Procter $250,000, and I agreed to get the rest."

Mr. Loeb said that $406,000 passed through his hands, but that the men who gave it to him might have secured it from some one else.

General Wood, he testified, was present at the opening of the meeting, but when the money was underwritten, J. B. Duke, the tobacco official, the late George W. Perkins, with $10,000, and H. H. Rogers, with $50,000, were the only campaign contributors whose names Mr. Loeb could recall. "I contributed $300, myself," he testified.

Mr. Loeb produced before the committee a check book showing stubs for five cashiers' checks for $5,000 each. He testified that he could not remember to whom they were sent.

"I believe one was sent to a Georgia organization, one to a man named Bean in Florida, one to a Colonel Smith, one to Maryland, and the fifth to the District of Columbia," he added. "There were no letters requesting money received at headquarters. The requests came in by telephone and I simply placed cashiers' checks in the envelopes and sent them out."

Asked by Senator Reed why cashiers' checks were sent instead of checks payable to individuals, Mr. Loeb replied: "Mr. Hitchcock told me to do it that way. I asked no questions but did as I was told. He said that was the customary way."

Mr. Loeb testified that at first the Wood managers confined their attention to lining up various State and national Republican organizations for General Wood, but that later when volunteer organizations offered their services it was decided to switch and appeal directly to the people. He said that at this point dissatisfaction arose with the management of John T. King and that it was thought a new manager should be installed. Mr. Loeb said the management was offered to him, but he declined because of pressure of personal business.

Mr. Loeb testified that $225,000 was sent to Chicago headquarters, $130,000 to Colonel Stebbins at the Eastern headquarters, and $35,000 to Norman Gould at New York. He said that $6,000 was returned to Colonel Procter last week. This remark brought a laugh from Senator Reed, who remarked that "the Colonel seems to be getting back at least some of his money."

Fought "Oligarchy and Organization."

Tracing the history of the Wood campaign, Loeb said that General Wood consulted him as early as February, 1919, and that he acted as adviser to Plattsburg men "boosting" the General.

"They are amateurs," he said.

Mr. Loeb said he did not think $1,000,000 was too much to fight "oligarchy and organization."

"Whose oligarchy and organization?" Senator Reed asked.

"I don't know who they were for, but I do know they were against Wood," replied Loeb.

Senator Reed asked many questions regarding the Wood managers in mid-Western States.

"There was a galaxy," said Loeb.

"Who were the stars in this galaxy?" Reed inquired.

"I think Judge Stanley, National Committeeman from Kansas, and James McGraw, former National Committeeman from Oklahoma, might be called stars," Loeb said.

Senator Reed repeatedly asked about money spent in Missouri. Loeb answered that he knew nothing about the Missouri campaign.

"A million dollars," he said at one point, "is a small amount for a national campaign. I want it plainly understood," he added, "that not a promise was made by the General or his friends to a single contributor."

Previous to Mr. Loeb's testimony, Major A. A. Sprague, Western Treasurer of the Wood campaign, was on the stand. Senator Reed questioned him regarding $148,000 alleged to have been sent from Wood headquarters to Colorado. Major Sprague declared that he had no knowledge of the money.

The hearing will be continued tomorrow.

Procter Gives Denial on Underwriting.

CINCINNATI, July 7.—Colonel W. Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, who managed the campaign of General Leonard Wood, said today that he knew absolutely nothing about the underwriting of the Wood campaign fund for $1,000,000, as he was not present at the meeting.

PREPARE TO SELECT THIRD PARTY TICKET

ASSAIL BOTH OLD PARTIES

Leaders Declare Neither Republican Nor Democratic Candidate or Platform Satisfactory.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 7.—With the expectation that Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will be the Presidential choice of the third party convention, which is to open here on Saturday, National leaders of the Committee of Forty-eight, which issued the call for the meeting, arrived today to begin its preliminary work. Among them were J. A. H. Hopkins of New Jersey, Chairman of the committee; Amos Pinchot of New York, George L. Record of New Jersey and James McGill of Valparaiso, Ind.

Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Pinchot gave out statements denouncing the candidates and pitforms of the Democratic and Republican parties, which, they declared, showed the necessity for a third party.

"The Democratic Convention, like the Republican Convention, was highly satisfactory to the men and women of America who want a new party," said Mr. Pinchot. "The Democratic platform is a decidedly eloquent document that is full of sound and means nothing at all. So is the Republican platform.

"As to Mr. Cox, like Mr. Harding, he was chosen because he is a mediocre man whom the financial world can trust, because he has a record of political conformity and friendly relations with the same gentleman who at the Blackstone Hotel selected Mr. Harding to head the Republican forces."

"The Republicans and Democrats staged a Punch and Judy show over the League of Nations, with Wall Street pulling the strings," said Mr. Hopkins. "The people will not be diverted by this sham battle over fake issues. They demand action on pressing domestic issues and will vote for the new party, as it is the only one that offers a constructive solution of economic difficulties and a Constitutional Government responsive to the people."

All of the leaders expressed themselves as satisfied that the convention would bring together important groups. The organizations which they hope to enlist and which have been invited to send delegates to the convention include the Labor Party of the United States, National Non-Partisan League, Single Tax Party, Triple Alliance of the Northwest, People's League of Missouri, World's War Veterans and National Public Ownership League.

A. W. Ricker, manager of the Chicago headquarters, says that more than seventy delegates have forwarded their credentials, and that every State in the Union will be represented in the convention. It is declared that not only will a national ticket be placed in the field, but also candidates in Congressional districts throughout the country, appealing to voters who are dissatisfied with the "reactionary and equivocal platforms" of the two major parties.

A referendum vote on the Presidency shows Senator Robert M. La Follette the leader for the nomination, but he has not announced his willingness to accept. Others who received votes were Frank P. Walsh, Governor Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. Frank P. Walsh is to be at the convention with the plank for "Irish Freedom" which was rejected in the other party conventions.

REED FELICITATES COX.

Expresses Belief That He Will Uphold the "Policies of the Fathers."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 7.—United States Senator J. A. Reed sent a telegram last night to Governor Cox of Ohio, congratulating him upon his selection as the Democratic Presidential nominee. The telegram follows:

"I send my sincerest and heartiest congratulations to you upon your great victory against what seemed to be overwhelming odds. I congratulate the country because I am firmly convinced that you will always maintain and defend our nation and will never consent to the surrender of any part of its sovereignty or the abandonment of those great international policies of the fathers, under which we have achieved unexampled greatness and power."

Senator Reed, in a message to Edward H. Moore, National Committeeman from Ohio, declared that the nomination of Governor Cox had "sent a thrill of delight through the Democracy of Kansas City which is prophetic of victory in November."

CHICAGO, July 7.—Senator James M. Reed of Missouri, who was barred from sitting in the Democratic National Convention, announced here today that he would "support the Democratic ticket and always be a Democrat, though always maintaining my present position on the League of Nations."

REFUSE GERMANY 16 MONTHS' DELAY

many armed with rifles and in addition 2,000,000 rifles held by the people. The fact that there were many revolutionaries in Germany did not make the situation less serious.

This situation forced the Allies to believe that they had good grounds for suspicion. The treaty allowed Germany to retain 2,000 machine guns, but von Seecht admitted that 6,000 were being used by the Government. The treaty allowed 250 trench mortars, whereas the army was now using 4,000. The treaty allowed Germany 290 cannon, whereas the Germans held five or six times that number.

The British Premier went on to say he thought the German Government should be ready to understand that the Allies were justified in requiring disarmament.

As for von Seecht's proposal that the execution of the treaty provisions should be delayed fifteen months, he said this would mean that masses of armed men would remain in Germany for more than a year. It was impossible to agree to this. Germany should not require more than three months to fulfill the provisions. Why did not the German Government insist upon the surrender of these arms and make retention of them a penal offense? The Allies would agree to such a proposal and would take counsel with their military advisers this evening and give their answer tomorrow at noon.

Herr Sivons said Lloyd George was too severe in his criticisms of the German Government.

Lloyd George replied that in 1871 Paris dealt effectively with the Communists and asked why Germany could not do the same. Then the session ended.

Tonight the Germans appeared in a nervous frame of mind. It is not known what the Allies' response will be, but it is very evident that they are prepared to go a long way rather than that the conference should break up.

Hugo Stinnes, the German coal magnate, arrived at Spa tonight to take part in the discussion on the German coal situation with regards to deliveries to France.

Turkish Treaty to Be Modified.

After the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council this morning it was announced that it had been decided that the Turkish treaty would not be changed in its main principles, but that a committee of experts would be asked to redraft portions of it to meet some of the more reasonable and apparently just claims of the Turks. The revised version will be presented as soon as possible and the Turks will then have ten days in which to sign.

The two sessions of the Supreme Allied Council which have been held here have not settled the vexed question of the division of the German reparation among the Allies. The claim of the Italians was met by a shifting of figures which Belgium regards as unsatisfactory. It has been agreed that Belgium shall have eight per cent. of the indemnity, but the Belgians do not appear willing to surrender their priority claim to the first 2,500,000,000 marks, which was consented to last Summer.

In Brussels Lloyd George was won over to the Belgian point of view for two days, but on arrival here he no longer held the same opinion. It is said that the Allies' prosperous and blooming Belgium which he motored through from Brussels persuaded him that that country was in no such need of the priority payment as had been represented.

The trouble is this: The Allies are planning an international loan to help France especially, and in which Germany will have a share. If the Belgians were to receive the whole of their 32,500,000,000 out of the first payment it would make a serious hole in the amount in the first German instalment and the alternative suggestion now is that they should receive 1,500,000,000 from each of the first five payments instead of the whole amount at once.

To this the Belgians have not yet consented and their consent seems conditional on their eight per cent. being increased, a plan which would upset the whole allied calculations.

Official Report of Proceedings.

SPA, July 7 (Associated Press).—The following official communication dealing with the conference was issued this evening:

"The conference met at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon to receive the German reply regarding the surrender of materials and the reduction in effectives prescribed by the Treaty of Versailles.

"Dr. Simons immediately rose and set forth the extreme difficulties the German Government had to face in giving satisfaction to the Allies and the dangers which threatened it. He nevertheless recognized the necessity for furnishing precise data concerning materials in existence in Germany and the dates on which, in the German Government's opinion, the arms and effectives might be reduced to the figures prescribed in the treaty and insisted upon by the Allies. He said he would leave it to General von Seecht to speak on this point.

"General von Seecht thereupon handed in a detailed note on the position regarding guns, rifles and machine guns, and proposed that a proportional reduction in materials and effectives should be carried out within a period of fifteen months. Mr. Lloyd George replied on behalf of the Allies and described the anxiety over the situation which existed in Germany according to the statements the German Ministers had given to the conference.

"Several millions of rifles, he proceeded, still remained in possession not only of the troops but also the population, as well as thousands of machine guns, trench mortars and guns. The number of soldiers under arms under various forms and pretexts exceeded 1,000,000. It was beyond comprehension that a situation so dangerous and abnormal should be tolerated by any Government, he said.

"The Allies could not allow that situation prolonged another fifteen months, and it must be settled by a vigorous effort in the shortest practicable time, he declared.

"The military, naval and air experts will meet this evening to verify by statement and counter-statement the figures submitted by General von Seecht, and, after having taken the opinion of their military advisers, the Allied Governments will tomorrow morning make known their final decision."

Want 12,000 Guns Destroyed at Once.

The allied demand on the Germans is for the immediate destruction of 12,000 cannon, which the allied commissioners in Germany have under guard, together with 50,000 machine guns. Germany desires to destroy the guns at the rate of 1,000 a month. The Allies hold that this is not sufficiently rapid and express fear that the machine guns will fall into the hands of insurrectionists.

The German Minister of Defense, Herr Gessler, during a recess of the conference said to the German newspaper men: "If we are compelled to disarm, then it must be done. But we will not be responsible for internal order in Germany."

Immediately after the conference Premier Millerand declared to the correspondent it was most essential that there be complete accord between the Allies, and that Germany had found that accord existed. The first evidence of this, the French Premier said, was when the Allies declined to discuss disarmament in the absence of the responsible German authorities.

CONCESSIONS GERMANS ASK.

Experts Considering Suggestions Made in 50,000-Word Document.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

SPA, July 7.—Following are some of the demands the German diplomats will make for concessions preliminary to any definite offer from Germany, as forecast in the recent 50,000-word memorandum which has been turned over to the allied experts for consideration:

First, they will ask that, inasmuch as under the treaty they must accord to their late enemies the benefits of the most favored nation principle, Germany shall enjoy similar privileges in all allied countries.

Secondly, the eGrmans will argue that economic advancement for Germany is impossible so long as the Allies hold over her head the threat of military measures. Knowing in advance that the Allies will not sign away outright power of making reprisals, the Germans will ask that no such steps be taken suddenly, and that they shall have ample notice and opportunity to thwart such a movement by both.

In the third place, the Germans will argue that the economic supremacy of the German Government at home must be established. They will say that the present control of the Allies and the effect it has upon Germany's waterways and railroads is of no material value to the Allies and results only in a harmful diminution of the authority of the Berlin Government.

The fourth point to be made is that if Germnay is to pay she must be allowed to collect import duties in gold or on a gold basis, and she will ask that preferential treatment for Alsace-Lorraine and Poland be done away with in order that she may be sure of a solid customs wall. She will also ask for a more definite guarantee of communication between Germany and Poland, or between Germany proper and East Prussia. As for Upper Silesia, the German diplomats will argue that if that is lost to Germany it will mean a great reduction of her ability to pay the Allies.

On the subject of the cost of maintaining armies of occupation the Germans will ask that a definite sum be fixed and will say that last year's cost, 3,000,000,000 marks, is too high. This request will be aimed particularly at the Americans, whose expense for occupation is far above that of the other occupying nations.

It will be argued by the Germans that, while they are being forced to restore property taken from invaded France and Belgium, the cost of these same articles is appearing in the reparation figures, and that they should receive protection on this count.

A strong plea will be made for ships. The Germans will attempt to show that their pre-war prosperity was largely due to their not having to pay out money for freights and to their receipt of great sums for freight carrying. Germany, the argument runs, cannot exist without large shipping facilities, if she has to pay for all her tonnage it will represent an enormous burden and decrease her ability to pay the indemnity. It is calculated that Germany needs 13,600,000 tons of shipping annually over what she possesses if the terms of the treaty are to be carried out. The Germans will ask not only for the retention of a certain tonnage, but that ships which they have been forced to build for the allied account be left for their own use.

They will agree with the statement of the Allied economic memorandum that the issue of paper money should be curtailed, but will argue that the German Government will have no other way of meeting expenses until Germany has had in establishing herself, and the threat will be made that if the Allies force payments ahead of Germany's ability she will simply issue more paper money to meet the situation.

A very important demand will be that the proceeds of the liquidation of German property abroad shall be turned over to Germany for present use.

The memorandum prepared by the Germans says:

"The collapse of German finance is the natural result of the war and its consequences. In this respect there is no difference in principle between the position of Germany and that of other countries. The fundamental difference in Germany's situation is due to the fact that as a result of the Peace Treaty she is not able freely to choose ways and means which could lead to recovery of her economic life nor put her financial affairs in order. Without financial order Germany cannot meet her liabilities. If freedom of economic action is given back to Germany there is hope that her people, trained to work, will put all their strength into economic reconstruction."

BERLIN, July 7.—The latest news reaching here from Spa has created a pessimistic impression. "Fruitless Negotiations," in the Vorwärts; "Conflict Between Lloyd George and Gessler," in the Lokal-Anzeiger; "Atmosphere of Distrust," in the Berliner Tageblatt, are characteristic newspaper headings. The correspondent of the Tageblatt wires:

"At no moment since the armistice has the pressure of the hostile elements of France and England been so strong as at the opening sittings at Spa. At the same time the course of the discussions, which were exclusively led by Lloyd George, suggests a desire really to negotiate."

The representative of the Anzeiger telegraphs:

"The negotiations have reached a serious stage. At one moment it looked as if they would be broken off, as Lloyd George interpreted the speech of Gessler as meaning that Germany would not fulfill the Versailles Treaty. Only swift intervention by Simons saved the situation."

The Lokal Anzeiger, in a fierce attack on the Entente attitude at Spa, says: "The patience and self control of the German representatives have limits. If Lloyd George considers it appropriate to use a tone suited to the subjected Hindus, he must be responsible for the consequences. In any event our representatives have the whole German people behind them if they refuse to continue negotiations that are absolutely inconsistent with the honor of the German name."

Die Post states that official circles here regard the position as very serious and are reckoning with the possibility of the negotiations being broken off.

TCHITCHERIN FOR LONDON.

Soviet Foreign Minister to Replace Krassin in Trade Parley.

COPENHAGEN, July 7.—A rumor is current in diplomatic circles today that M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, will go to London to resume the negotiations for the reopening of trade between Russia and the Allied countries, for which it is considered that M. Krassin, the Bolshevist Minister of Trade and Commerce, lacks the necessary political and diplomatic ability.

M. Litvinoff, according to the report, will act as the Soviet Foreign Minister in the absence of Tchitcherin.

LONDON, July 7.—The British Labor delegation, which recently returned from Russia, has issued an interim report. It declares there is urgent need for immediate peace with Russia, and that persistence in the policy of blockade and intervention is madness and criminal folly which can only end in European disaster.

CRAVATH WORRIES FRENCH.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SPA, July 7.—The presence of Paul Cravath of New York at Spa is worrying the French delegation.

Mr. Cravath is understood to be representing the Kuhn, Loeb and Warburg financial interests in Germany. He came to Spa from Berlin in the Germans' special train. Since his arrival he has been in close contact with the Germans in their hotels and also he had several conversations with Roland Boyden, American Reparations Commissioner; Sir John Bradburg, British Reparations Commissioner and others.

He has not met M. Marsal, the French Finance Minister.

COURT OF APPEALS ON CAR FARE RISE

fare in violation of the franchise made with the city.

Calls Decision Sweeping.

Mr. O'Brien said:

"The opinion is an emphatic victory for the contentions made by the city administration with regard to the 5-cent fare question, for the reason that the Court of Appeals has reaffirmed in terms so clear as to permit of no further speculation the principles laid down in the now famous "Rochester decision," rendered by this court in 1918 and reaffirmed in October of last year.

"While it is true that the Court of Appeals, by the decision just handed down, excepted from the scope and effect of the 'Rochester Decision' certain old franchises granted by the municipality prior to January 11, 1875, and franchises made since 1907, when the Public Service Commission Law was passed, these exceptions will have little or no effect upon the general 5-cent fare situation in New York City."

In the Manhattan & Queens case a writ of prohibition was granted by Justice Finch restraining Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon from raising the fares on that road above five cents. Justice Finch based his decision upon the Rochester case, which action was affirmed unanimously by the Appellate Division.

Analyzes Court's Opinion.

Continuing, Mr. O'Brien said: "The Court of Appeals has reversed the decision of Judge Finch and the Appellate Division, holding that the franchise was granted in 1913, therefore being under the Public Service Commission law of 1907, which empowered the Public Service Commissioner to raise fares to insure adequate return to street railways. But in this opinion the court makes it very clear that this decision is not to be applied to any other situation not now before the court, and indicates that even as to franchises granted since 1907, some of them, by their terms or references contained therein, may be so connected with contracts made prior to 1907 as to bring such later franchises within the scope of the 'Rochester decision.'

"In the three cases involving branches of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, indicated by Receiver Lindley M. Garrison, which branches were the Nassau Electric Railroad, the Queens County & Suburban Railroad Company and the Brooklyn & Coney Island lines, the Court of Appeals affirms the order of the Appellate Division which dismissed the writ obtained by Receiver Garrison to review the action of the Public Service Commission in refusing to permit an increase in fares to 8 cents on these railways, but without prejudice to the right of the receiver to make separate application as to franchises that come within the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission as indicated in the opinion of the Court.

"In these decisions affecting the B. R. T. cases, the Court sets forth the scope and effect of the decision previously rendered in the Rochester case and distinguishes the cases coming within the class of that ruling and those which do not."

Thinks Increases Barred.

"It is gratifying to have the court so clearly set forth its position. There will no longer be an ocasion for much speculation as to where the power of the Public Service Commission begins and ends with respect to the 5-cent fare proposition. There is little solace in these decisions of the Court of Appeals for those who hoped to see that tribunal diverge from the position it took in the Rochester case, in the City of New York. The franchises which fall outside the scope of the Rochester ruling are so few and so interwoven with franchises, which are plainly controlled by the Rochester decision, as to make it practically impossible to work out any increase in fares upon any of the systems of the street railways within the city.

"This is particularly true of the decisions in the B. R. T. cases, for in briefs submitted by the Public Service Commission in those cases to the Court of Appeals, the commission puts itself on record to the effect that it was impracticable for it to work out from these franchises any plan to increase fares.

"Should Receiver Garrison conclude to renew his application in connection with these franchises to the Public Service Commission for leave to increase the fares on those roads, it will still be incumbent upon him to prove that the roads were not receiving a fair and adequate return under the 5-cent fare.

"In the event of such a proceeding the city will be a party and hold the right to review in court such action as the Public Service Commission may take."

Suit Denies Nixon's Authority.

The suit by the city for a writ of prohibition against Public Service Commissioner Nixon asked that he be restrained from hearing the application by Receiver Garrison of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for permission to charge an eight-cent fare on the company's subway and elevated lines. The city contended that the Public Service Commissioner had no authority to hear rate applications and the lower courts upheld the city.

Terence Farley, counsel for the Public Service Commission, took exceptions to statements in the papers submitted by Corporation Counsel O'Brien, in which the latter said he believed the Commissioner intended to grant the increase. He said that the Corporation Counsel knows in his heart and soul that the Commissioner had no intention to do anything in the present instance."

In his argument for the writ the Corporation Counsel said that the action of Commissioner Nixon in the cases of the Manhattan and Queens Traction Company and the Richmond Light and Railroad Company in which bare increases were granted, gave sufficient reason for the application for the writ of prohibition.

PENDLETON'S ALIBI ATTACKED BY SWANN

of Mr. Pendleton's car on the night before and on the morning of the murder, Mr. Swann said:

"I want you to understand that we are not accusing anybody. We have no grounds for accusing anybody. But these contradictions must be ironed out in the interest of justice. I don't see why the contradictions should exist.

"I do not suspect that Mr. Pendleton is implicated in the crime. I can't see any motive for it at all."

Mr. Swann's statement follows:

"Pendleton testified that on Thursday night, June 10, 1920, he dined at Blossom Heath Inn, at Lynbrook, near Long Beach, and that he went to bed about 12 o'clock at his home in Cedarhurst; that he had previously placed his car that night in his own garage, adjoining his house at Cedarhurst; that the following morning, Friday, June 11, he took the car out of the garage and took Mrs. Pendleton to the 10:26 train for New York.

Contradicted by John Doyle.

"Against that, testimony, there is the statement of John Doyle, the night man of the Atlas Garage (Gus Manouilles, proprietor), 9 East Fifty-second Street (Telephone Plaza 5295), that early in the morning of Friday, June 11, at about 2 A. M., Pendleton's Hudson car was brought to that garage by a man that he recognized as Oliver W. Bird, residing at 64 East Eighty-sixth Street, and that he drove with Bird in that car to a place on Madison Avenue, near Fifty-fifth Street, where Bird entered the building and remained a half hour.

"John Doyle then drove with Bird to Sixty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, and Bird then went to his home, 64 East Eighty-sixth Street, where Bird was left.

"Doyle then took the car toward the garage and at Fifty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue he met a man (George B. Post, Jr., of Post & Flagg), who called out from the sidewalk, 'That is Penny's car.' Post was in front of the building which Bird had previously entered. Doyle stopped and took Post into the car and drove to Sixty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, and then took the car back to the garage; that the car remained in the garage from that time until after 7 o'clock in the morning, when he (Doyle,) left the garage.

"Another witness, who is employed in the daytime at this garage, Sam Plaze, has informed the District Attorney that the car was there on three different days that week; that he worked on the car; that it was there in the morning of June 11, when he arrived there at about 8 o'clock, and that later that morning, while he was working upstairs, somebody took that car away. The car has not been in the Atlas Garage since the morning of June 11.

Another Flat Contradiction.

"Another flat contradiction is the following:

"Pendleton testified that on Friday morning, June 11, he went to his own garage adjoining his house at Cedarhurst and took out his car and drove his wife to the railroad station, taking the 10:26 train. That he then drove around Cedarhurst Village for about an hour, but he could not name any person to whom he talked in the village. He testified that he went to the railroad station at Jamaica and telephoned to Mrs. Bird and waited for her until about 11:30, and that he then drove her in his Hudson car to the race track, where Bird met him later.

"Against this we have the testimony of the proprietor of the taxicab service at Cedarhurst that on that morning—Friday, June 11—he answered a call from Mr. Pendleton's house and took Mrs. Pendleton in his taxicab to the railroad station to the 9:26 train for New York. He verifies that by the entry upon his books, it being a credit item.

"If Pendleton was in New York early Friday morning, June 11, as the written evidence indicates, it is not unreasonable to assume that Pendleton was the person who from Elwell's house endeavored to get his own house on the early morning of Friday, June 11, possibly to notify Mrs. Pendleton that he either would be late in getting home or that he would not return home that night.

"Telephone Central states that some man at about 1:45 A. M. made two efforts over Elwell's house telephone to raise Pendleton's telephone at Cedarhurst (telephone Far Rockaway 1841-r, but that no one answered Pendleton's telephone. Pendleton's home telephone stands on a small table immediately at the side of his bed.

"The fact that Elwell's bed had not been occupied that night indicates that he had not gone to bed but had sat up. Miss Wilson said that when she telephoned to him about 2:30 A. M. that morning his short answers indicated to her that some one else was present with him in the house."

Olcott Issues Statement.

Nellson Olcott, lawer for Mr. Pendleton, said:

"The answer to the statement is that Mr. Pendleton denies it. He is quite positive in what he has already said a number of times. He has been confronted with all those statements, with the exception of the one of the taxicab driver, who says that he drove Mrs. Pendleton to the station that morning. I don't think that the driver's remembrance of what occurred on that particular day should be accepted on so important a matter, especially as he drove Mrs. Pendleton in the same way on many other occasions. As for the other statements conflicting with his, Mr. Pendleton vigorously denies them.

"Mr. Pendleton said that he drove Mrs. Pendleton to the station and then went to a local fish market and then home. That is rather prosaic, but under the circumstances, rather convincing. After returning to the house, Mr. Pendleton took several friends to luncheon at a club out there. We have a number of witnesses to corroborate the story, but we have not told their names, because we were requested by Mr. Dooling not to do so. The two maids, for instance, bear out his story that he rose at 8:30 o'clock that morning.

"I am afraid the District Attorney is barking up the wrong tree. We are entirely ready to stand on our statements and to prove them anywhere."

When Mr. Dooling was told of this statement, he said:

"Oh, yes, the story of the two maids is quite interesting. But I saw one of the maids, before she had been seen by others. Her recollection of things had changed somewhat between my first and second interviews with her."

John Doe Inquiry Not Feasible.

Mr. Swann considered the suggestion of having a John Doe inquiry into the Elwell murder to compel witnesses to tell their stories under oath, but he decided that it was not feasible.

"The trouble is that we don't know who is guilty and have not even sufficient grounds for suspicion against an individual," he said. "It is true that a witness who lied to us might be afraid to lie under oath, where he could be prosecuted for perjury. But, on the other hand, if we tried to put all the witnesses on the stand, we might find that we were calling on the guilty man and that we had conferred immunity on him. I don't believe that a man or woman guilty of murder could waive immunity. Their constitutional right not to testify against themselves cannot be taken from them, even with their own consent."

District Attorney Swann said he had subpoenaed Mrs. Pendleton, Mrs. Oliver W. Bird, Jr., and several others, who will be questioned at the Criminal Court Building today.

When Mr. Dooling was asked if there was any reason, more specific than those previously put forward for thinking that it was Mr. Pendleton himself, who had been at Elwell's house at 1:45 on the morning of the murder and had sought to telephone from there to the Pendleton residence, he said:

"There are 6,000,000 people in this city. Can you conceive of any one of the 6,000,000 seeking to telephone to 1841 Far Rockaway with the exception of Pendleton himself?"

"How about Elwell?"

"He was not home at that time. He was still at Forty-second Street and Broadway with the party with which he had been spending the evening."

"Could not the telephone girl have made an error?"

"It is not very likely when she made a memorandum of the call at the time. There is other information on the subject, also, which I cannot disclose at this time."

Mrs. Wilmerdin Questioned.

Mr. Dooling had an interview yesterday with Mrs. Josephine Wilmerding, an acquaintance of Elwell's.

After this interview Mr. Dooling said:

"Mrs. Joseph Wilmerding came here at the District Attorney's invitation today and saw Mr. Swann, Mr. Talley, Mr. Joyce and myself. She stated that she had known Mr. Elwell, that she first met him in February, 1918, at Palm Beach, where sh ewas then living with her aunt and uncle, that Elwell entertained a great deal and that she recalled that among his visitors down there was a gentleman named William H. Pendleton, who she thought had been a visitor or a guest at Elwell's for about a month.

"She returned north in about the month of March, 1918, and understood that Mr. Elwell remained in the South until June; that his lateness in leaving there was occasioned by his building operations or the sale of some real estate.

"She stated that, after he came up here in June, she had seen him a couple of times at different places in New York hotels, &c., and met him at public functions. She said that she and her sister had gone to his home one evening and spent a little time looking at the furnishings. Later, in the Summer of 1918, Mr. Elwell was a guest at her grandmother's home at Narragansett Pier for the weekend.

"She was divorced in 1917 before she met Mr. Elwell and at a time when she had not heard of him. The last time she saw Mr. Elwell was about the month of January, 1919, when she was recovering from an operation for appendicitis. She was then in a private sanatarium in this city and he made a visit lasting about two minutes. This was on the eve of his departure for Palm Beach.

Denies All Insinuations.

"She denies categorically all the charges and insinuations made in the affidavit and cables supposed to have been signed by Anne Kane and the cables attributed to her. She denied ever having seen Anna Kane and would not know her if she came into the room at this minute. She knows nothing of the garments found at the house.

"She met Mrs. von Schlegell last Winter at the Ritz before Mrs. von Schlegell obtained her divorce. She recalls only talking to her once. She had also seen her on one or two other occasions, but not to speak to because they were not thrown in each other's company. There was no feeling in the matter. She understands that Mrs. von Schlegell spoke of meeting her in Palm Beach, but she has no recollection of that.

"She says that she never had any quarrel or any controversy with 'Miss Wilson' or anyone else about Elwell; that at first she thought he was a very pleasant, agreeable person, and took him a little more seriously than she did later. Subsequently she rather satisfied herself that he was very gallant to every lady and from that time on she did not take him seriously. She disclaims any particular interest in him or strong attachment for him at the time.

"She cannot conceive of any reason for Anna Kane to have made the statements attributed to her. She never heard of Elwell having a pistol. She didn't believe that he would have committed suicide. She knew that he had made provision for the future in the shape of a trust fund.

Knew of No Enemy of Elwell.

"She said that at one time he had referred to his activities in the American Protective League and indicated that in the course of his activities, he might have antagonized somebody. She did not know of anybody who might have been an enemy or antagonistic to him. She had never met Mrs. Kiefer or Mrs. Hardy.

"She has also said that she regrets exceedingly that she has been given so much prominence in connection with the death of Mr. Elwell; that it is particularly distressing to her grandmother, who is advanced in years, and to other members of her family; that she has always been willing to tell the authorities all she knew and that if she can be of any help she will be very glad to place herself unreservedly in the hands of the authorities. She said that the very best people at Palm Beach were entertained by Elwell. Parties of twenty-five or more would go out on his boat and take a sail. People moving in good circles accepted his hospitality."

Mr. Dooling said he had questioned William Barnes, an employe of Elwell, several days ago, regarding a report then current that Barnes had a hold on Elwell because he knew the circumstances under which Elwell had cheated a man out of $50,000 at cards.

"He denied positively that he had ever heard anything of the kind," said Mr. Dooling. "The person reported to have been cheated is a well-known man, who could not possibly be suspected in connection with the murder."

Two Arrests Expected Today.

While the District Attorney's office thus was busy checking up the details of Mr. Pendleton's story, prohibition agents under James Shevlin were delving deeper into the bootlegging end of the mystery. New information was obtained by Agents Lord and Mangin. As a result the arresting of two men is expected today.

Mr. Shevlin refused to discuss the new evidence, but it is understood to connect the slain turfman and half a dozen of his friends with a scheme through which liquor was withdrawn from warehouses on permits containing the forged signature of Charles R. O'Connor, State prohibition enforcement director.

The names of both men are said to have been mentioned in the investigation conducted by August Hasenflug, counsel for Mr. Shevlin. The new evidence was obtained by checking up statements one of the men made to Mr. Shevlin several days ago.

Mr. Shevlin had expected to arrest the men yesterday, but his agents found that both had left the city. When the men, warrants for whom are said to have been issued by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, are arrested, they will be brought before Francis G. Caffey, United States Attorney for this district, who henceforth will have full charge of the interrogation of witnesses in the case.

Although no evidence has been obtained to show that Elwell was the central figure in the illicit liquor plot, it is understood that he not only received liquor from the illicit purveyors, but also helped the conspirators dispose of thousands of dollars worth of liquor to his intimate friends.

May Connect Plot with Murder.

The prohibition officials admit they have not run down all their clues and still see a possibility to connect the murder with the illicit liquor traffic. Much depends, they explained, on the examination of a man who has been sought by Mr. Shevlin for five days. The prohibition agents want to question this man about statements made by William H. Barnes, Elwell's former secretary and steward of the Studio Club. Barnes said he had obtained about $4,000 worth of liquor, part of which was distributed to several places known to the missing witness.

Mr. Hasenflug said Agents Lord and Mangin had been sent to Barnes's home at 149 East Fifty-fifth Street and to the Studio Club at 384 Park Avenue to request Elwell's one-time Secretary to appear at Mr. Shevlin's office for further questioning. Barnes was not at either address. Later he was found at the Studio Club.

"I suppose they called at the club in my absence," he said, and explained he had been away for a few hours in the afternoon.

Mr. Hasenflug said he expected to question H. H. Porter, President of the American Water Works at 60 Wall Street, regarding statements made by Barnes several days ago involving him in the steward's illicit purchase of liquors.

Helps Make the Curl Stay In Your Hair
The slimerine method not only produces the loveliest, natural looking curls and waves, but it helps keep the hair in curl no matter how hot or how moist the day, or how hard the wind blows.
All one need do is to wet a clean tooth brush with liquid slimerine, draw this through the hair before doing it up in curlers, and the hair will dry in just the sweetest waves and crinkles. This will also keep the hair beautifully soft, silky and lustrous. A few ounces of liquid slimerine will last for months.

VILLA IN ARMISTICE AGREES TO GIVE UP

Ceases Hostilities Until July 15 and Will Surrender When Terms Are Signed.

OSUNA IS REPORTED KILLED

National Bank of Mexico to be Restored as the Only Note-Issuing Institution.

MEXICO CITY, July 7.—The War Secretary's office today confirmed reports that an armistice between Francisco Villa, the rebel leader, and the government had been agreed to.

Confirmation has been received of the death of General Carlos Osuna, the insurgent leader who operated in the State of Tamaulipas, according to a dispatch from Laredo to the Secretary of the Interior, the Democrats says today.

General Venecis Lopez is given in the dispatch as the source of the confirmation. Osuna was reported to have died on a farm in Tamaulipas of wounds received when his forces were defeated recently by the troops of General Arnulfo Gomez.

At the War office it was said that General Calles, the War Minister, had ordered that efforts be made to determine definitely whether the body was really that of General Osuna.

Decision has been reached to re-establish the former National Bank of Mexico as the sole bank empowered to issue notes.

The capital of the bank will be fixed at 50,000,000 pesos, but the Universal declares, it will be authorized to issue notes amounting to 150,000,000 pesos.

A representative of the government is expected to leave for the United States soon for the purpose of conducting negotiations looking to the financing of the project.

Banks which have in the past been authorized to issue notes will be required to redeem their paper within eight years, and may receive aid from bond issues.

The government today authorized the sending of letters attached to packages, each carrying the proper postage, to the United States, Canada and Cuba.

Villa Agrees to Surrender.

EL PASO, Texas, July 7.—An armistice has been signed by Francisco Villa and he has agreed to surrender under certain conditions, according to dispatches from Torreon, published today by The El Paso Times.

Villa has agreed to cease attacks on towns, garrisons and trains, according to the dispatches. The armistice agreement was secured by Elias L. Torres, representative of provisional President De la Huerta, who left El Paso two weeks ago for Villa's camp in the mountains near Saucillo, Chihuahua. Torres is now at Torreon en route to Mexico City with letters from Villa to the provisional government.

According to The Times corespondent at Torreon, Villa recognizes De la Huerta as provisional President and agrees to surrender when his terms and conditions are approved in writing by De la Huerta and Generals Elias Calles, Alvaro Obregon and Benjamin Hill.

The armistice agreement provides that Villa cease all operations until July 15. The conference at which the armistice and surrender terms were discussed were attended by all the principal Villa lieutenants and the signing of the armistice was the signal for cheers for Obregon and De la Huerta.

Sporadic Revolts Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Several apparently small revolts against the new régime in Mexico were reported to the State Department today through various channels, official and otherwise, but there was nothing in the reports to indicate concert of action, or that the uprisings were more than sporadic affairs.

Consul Slocum at Nuevas Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, telegraphed the State Department today that General Ricardo Gonzalez, a nephew of General Pablo Gonzalez, with 50 to 200 men, had revolted at Monclova, cutting the railway lines south of Monclova on July 4 and advancing as far north as Barroterran, where they are now located, holding coal mines.

Federal General Morales left Piedras Negras last night with 200 soldiers to attack the revolting force. There are reports at Piedras Negras of another Federal column advancing from Saltillo, but no meeting of these forces has been reported.

There were also reports at Piedras Negras that General Jesus Guajardo had revolted at Gomez Palacio, near Torreon, with 300 men, and advanced toward the United States border over the old Mexican International Railway line. General Porfiro Cordena, who was appointed Military Governor of Coahuila by General Pablo Gonzalez during the revolt at Mexico City, but replaced by the Obregonista Governor, General Louis Gonzales, is reported to be under arrest at Piedras Negras.

Advices from the American Consul at Tampico to the State Department said it was officially acknowledged at Tampico that General Carlos Osuna and General Iamrabee Agadir were in rebellion. General Osuna is reported to be between Tampico and Monterey and General Agadir on the San Luis Potosi line.

Although it is known here that serious efforts are being made to eliminate Villa as a factor, no official word has reached here today of the armistice said to have been signed by Villa.

The State Department is said to have received from Julia Carranza, daughter of the late President, a document entitled "Protest to the World against Alvaro Obregon for the assassination of my father, Venustiano Carranza." A copy of this document declares that she has issued this protest "in this hospitable country, as my country is deprived of the liberty of speech by the ruling militarists, and there is no responsible government." She makes the charge that "Alvaro Obregon is the one responsible for the death of my father. Messages and other proofs which exist show he was the only one who instructed Herrera to have the President of Mexico disappear. When a legally constituted government is established in my country and justice is not administered by blood-stained hands, I will present to the courts all the proofs that are necessary and demand the punishment of those responsible for the death of my father. I have not only the clothing of my father, but also proofs that Herrera received instructions to proceed as he had done, committing the dreadful crime with all coolness."

REFUSES OIL TO NAVY.

Union Company Declares Government Offers Too Little for It.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Refusal of the Union Oil Company to deliver 100 barrels of engine oil to supply a destroyer at $1.60 a barrel, the price fixed by the Navy Department, even under threat of seizure, has been referred back to the Department, Captain U. U. Cheatam, navy supply officer at Mare Island Navy Yard, reported today.

Under the Levert act the Government claims the right to fix prices and commandeer oil, according to Thomas A. Hays, assistant to the president of the Union Oil Company, but he declared it was unjust for the navy to attempt to use a war-time measure to exact a more favorable price than other customers were paying, the market figure being $2.60.

Captain Cheatham said he transmitted the Navy Department's demand and threat to the Union Company and that further action rested with Secretary Daniels.

"The navy may take the oil from us and fix its price, but it cannot compel us to continue to refine oil at navy prices or sell at navy figures," said Hays.

BRANDEIS ELECTED HEAD OF ZIONISTS

Nordau as Honorary President Also Chosen as London Conference Starts.

PLAN AID FOR PALESTINE

Immigration and Finance Topics of Speakers to 250 Delegates of All Civilized Lands.

LONDON, July 7.—Louis D. Brandeis, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, was elected President of the International Zionist Conference which convened today, as the first Zionist gathering in seven years, to formulate a political program which will be urged for Palestine. Dr. Max Nordau of London was chosen Honorary President.

"The great opportunity has come to the Jewish people," said Justice Brandeis in adressing the conference at the afternoon session. "The nations of the world have publicly recognized the Jewish homeland in Palestine. They can do no more. The rest lies with us.

"We must create executive and administratice machinery adapted to the work in hand. The task is heavy, but we shall be buoyed up by the irresistible appeal and beauty of Palestine.

"We shall toil, confident that with the impulse for justice to all, Israel will, in her old home, restored in fulfillment of prayer and striving, develop a civilization which will bring light to the troubled world, and that the nations will again call her blessed.

"There is no time for day-dreaming. Every Jew must bear his part. Let us proceed, for the need is urgent."

Forty-two American and four Canadian delegates were present among the 200 representatives of every civilized country. Dr. Nahum Sokoloff of Berlin, in his opening speech as Chairman, said the conference must consider the questions of immigration and finance.

"Although for the many massacres in the Ukraine, not heaven nor the mercy of the angels could find palliation," he declared, "the Jews do not cry for vengeance, but will face the task of restoration soberly and inoffensively.

"Compared with these murderers," Dr. Sokoloff added, "Nebuchadnezzar was a nobleman."

During his denunciation the entire audience arose solemnly as an indorsement of his views. He urged a policy of mutual help and solidarity toward the Arab and Christian communities in Palestine.

Professor Chayim Weizmann, the noted Zionist, in his address to the conference made an eloquent appeal to Jews throughout the world to cooperate with the Zionists in the reestablishment of Palestine. Professor Weizmann stated that a Jewish colonization organization already had been formed, open to private initiative, from which much might be expected.

He emphasized the fact that all work in Palestine would be effected in strict co-operation with the Arabs. The Professor declared that at least 50,000 Jewish immigrants would be settled in Palestine during the next twelve months.

M. Ussishkin, who headed the Zionist commission in Palestine during the last few months, said that no less than £4,000,000 would be required for the Zionist effort in Palestine for the first twelve months of the new administration.

The American Zionists will make a united effort to have their program, adopted in Pittsburgh in 1918, accepted by the conference as the guiding principles for Palestine. This program includes public ownership of land, a co-operative commonwealth and equal rights for all, in every phase of life in Palestine.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN TO SUCCEED BORDEN

Canadian Minister of the Interior to Be Prime Minister—Two Others Retire.

OTTAWA, July 7.—The resignation of Sir Robert Borden as Prime Minister of Canda has been accepted by the Governor-General. It is to take effect on Saturday.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, who was recommended by Sir Robert as his successor, has accepted the invitation of the Governor-General to form a new Ministry.

The announcement of these changes is accompanied by the statement that two ministers of the Borden administration, N. W. Rowell, President of the Cabinet Council, and Martin Burrell, Secretary of State, are retiring from the Government.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen is the youngest man to be called to the Canadian Premiership. He is only 46 years old.

Though born in Perth County, Ontario, he is regarded as a Westerner, having lived in Manitoba since his youth. He has represented Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, in the Canadian House of Commons since 1908, and has held the Cabinet posts of Solicitor General, Attorney General, Superintendent of Indian Affairs and Minister of the Interior. He is a member of the old Conservative Party, which has recently been merged, with the Coalition Liberals, into the National Liberal Conservative Party.

WOMEN ASK WILSON FOR CANNING SUGAR

Needs of New York State Housewives Neglected, Says Appeal to the President.

SHORTAGE LAID TO HOARDING

Department of Agriculture Says Supply Is 15 Per Cent. Greater Than in Former Years.

An appeal to President Wilson to aid the housewives of New York State in obtaining sufficient sugar at reasonable rates to take care of their requirements during the canning and preserving season, now beginning, was made yesterday by Mrs. Blanche Wylie Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets; John J. Dillon, formerly State Market Commissioner and Mark C. DuBois of Poughkeepsie. In the letter they pointed out to President Wilson that the needs of the commercial canners and preservers had been taken care of through the Federal Government, but that the housewives have not received adequate consideration.

"The housewives of the State of New York," the letter begins, "are appealing for sugar to enable them to preserve their usual complement of fruits for the season.

"Much will go to waste unless the housewives are able to obtain a prompt and fairly liberal supply of sugar for preserving, and at a price to make the housewives' work economically possible. This whole supply is of greater importance and of far greater economy to the people than the commercial products. It saves waste, conserves labor and keeps the profit in the hands of the producer and consumer.

"We feel that you have an interest in the needs of the housewives of the country. May we ask you to utilize the functions of your great office to see that the housewives have a full supply for their canning needs, for the season now upon us, and to formulate some effective policy to prevent a repetition of the present deplorable condition in the future?"

There has been no actual sugar shortage in this country this year, according to an announcement yesterday by the United States Department of Agriculture. The seeming shortage is laid to hoarding. The department says it will be wisdom on the part of housekeepers to can the usual amount of fruits and vegetables even if part or all of the fruit must be canned without sugar.

"From all present indications," the statement says, "sugar will be more abundant next winter, when the fruit will be used on the table. There will apparently be an increased acreage of both cane and beet sugar this year in the United States, Cuba, and in other countries in the Northern Hemisphere. In spite of world shortage of sugar and a decrease of 400,000,000 pounds in domestic production, there has been used or hoarded during the current year in the United States 15 per cent. more sugar than in former years."

The Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday returned indictments against Henry Borchers, owner of a chain of five stores on Long Island, and Henry Vette, a grocer, of Babylon, L. I., alleging profiteering in sugar. The men were arraigned before Federal Judge Chatfield. Borchers was held in $5,000 bail and Vette in $2,500 bail, both trials being set for Oct. 6.

KING WILL CASE UP AGAIN.

Gaston B. Means Testifies to Finding Alleged Second Instrument.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Gaston B. Means, principal figure in the fight to probate the alleged second will of James C. King, lumberman, told on the stand today of finding the document in a tin box while searching for papers pertaining to the affairs of Mrs. Maude C. King in August, 1915.

The alleged second will leaves Mr. King's millions to his wife, while the first will, which the Probate Court accepted, left the money to found a home for aged men. Mrs. King has since died. Means was tried and acquitted on a charge of murdering her at Concord, N. C.

Mrs. King's sister, Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, and Means are fighting to have the second will probated, as the money would then go to Mrs. Melvin. Means is said to have a contract calling for payment to him of $900,000 if the will is probated.

Means told the court of meeting Mrs. King and Mrs. Melvin in 1914 and of his subsequent business relations with them here and in New York.

Attorneys for Means and Mrs. Melvin asked the court to order the Northern Trust Company, trustee of the King estate, to turn over all correspondence and "receipts for money paid" to Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling of New York and C. B. Ambrose, who, they alleged, offered rewards to their witnesses if they would not testify. The court reserved ruling.

SHIPS TIED UP AT HAVANA.

Secretary Alexander Calls a Conference to Relieve Congestion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—On account of the increasingly acute situation caused by the congestion of goods on vessels in the harbor of Havana, Secretary of Commerce Alexander today called a conference of interested persons to meet here next Friday to discuss the situation and try to discover some remedial measures which may be applied in order to break the tie up. Public officials and representatives of leading commercial and shipping companies and organizations have been invited to be present.

The congestion at Havana, where, according to unofficial advices, as many as 125 vessels are tied up, is due to a number of causes. With the present shortage of tonage it was felt that the time had come to prevent, if possible, the constant tying up of a considerable aggregate which was lying useless owing to the fact that there was no docking space available, or because of some other delay. One trouble is reported to have been that many merchants use the docks as warehouses owing to inability to secure sufficient space elsewhere for their goods.

FLIES BY RADIO COMPASS.

Seaplane Thus Finds Its Way to Battleship Ohio and Return.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Guided entirely by radio compass signals, the naval seaplane F-5-L today left Norfolk and flew ninety-five miles on a "bee line" to pick up the battleship Ohio at sea, with no knowledge at the time of taking the air of the vessel's location. The seaplane then navigated its return to Norfolk entirely by radio compass.

Navy Department officials, to whom the flight was reported, said it was the first time radio compass apparatus had been used to direct aircraft to a ship.

EXCUSES POLICEMAN FOR TUCKER'S DEATH

HIS COURSE "IMPRUDENT"

Police Department May Discipline Patrolman for Falsely Accusing Egan and Gleason.

In so far as the District Attorney is concerned no action is likely to be taken against Patrolman John Wissel of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, who on Tuesday confessed to a superior officer that he, instead of two men he had arrested and accused of homicide, was responsible for the death of Charles Tucker. Tucker was one of six occupants of an automobile which Wissel and another patrolman had stopped Monday afternoon at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-sixth Street after hearing several shots fired from it. At that time Wissel arrested Charles Gleason of 447 West Forty-seventh Street and Cornelius Egan of 502 West Twenty-ninth Street, charging them with the death of Tucker.

As related by Wissel in his confession, his own weapon was accidentally discharged while he was searching the occupants of the machine for firearms and the bullet struck Tucker in the heart. He said he was afraid to admit that he had caused the man's death.

Assistant District Attorney John R. Hennis, after questioning Wissel yesterday, said that Wissel had been "imprudent" in falsely accusing others of the death of Tucker, but that the homicide seemed to be excusable from the facts in the case.

"The nature of a homicide, that is, its excusability or its inexcusability, must be determined from all the circumstances leading up to and constituting the act," Mr. Hennis explained. "From the circumstances the nature of it becomes fixed and unalterable, so that if it is excusable by its nature at the moment of commission it always remains so."

Mr. Hennis said it was now up to the officials of the Police Department to take disciplinary measures against Wissel if they see fit. The police did not indicate yesterday whether Wissel had been suspended or would face charges for his conduct. Inspector Boettler is conducting an investigation, but did not give out his conclusions.

John Cavilora of 500 West Forty-fifth Street and Frank Ruchlehano of 442 West Forty-fifth Street, with Gleason and Egan, were arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court yesterday. Egan was charged with violating the Sullivan law and was held in $1,000 bail for trial in Special Sessions. The three others were held on a charge of suspicion of grand larceny in connection with possession of the automobile and were held in $1,000 bail each for further examination.

$50,000 SHIP SALE SURVEY.

Advertising Campaign by Board to Follow Study of Markets.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The nation-wide survey to determine the best methods of advertising the sale of the Government-owned merchant fleet and shipping materials will begin tomorrow. The Shipping Board announced tonight that it had appropriated $50,000 for the survey, which will be accomplished in four months.

Preliminary plans were approved by Chairman Benson at a conference today with a committee of the Advertising Agencies Corporation of New York, which is to make the survey for the board. It is planned to make a thorough study of conditions of the various markets of the country, both for ships and for materials, James O'Shaughnessy, Chairman of the committee, stated after the conference.

On completion of the survey, recommendations will be submitted to the board. Mr. O'Shaughnessy said, covering the advertising mediums to be employed, the character of appeal to be made and the extent to which the campaign is to be carried on in different parts of the country.

$25,000 for the John Hall Memorial.

Under the terms of the will, filed here yesterday, of Catharine R. Neuhoff, a Plaza Hotel guest, who died at Warrenville, Pa., about the middle of June, $25,000 is bestowed upon the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church for the John Hall Memorial Chapel; $5,000 is given to the church's Sunshine Day Nursery, and $10,000 to the Mt. Union College at Alliance, Ohio. The residuary estate is cut up into sixty parts and divided among eighteen beneficiaries. Her husband, Karl W. Neuhoff of the Plaza, receives $100,000 and the personal effects. Frank R. Smith of Dallas, Texas, is to have a life income from a $50,000 trust fund and one-twelfth of the residuary estate, while Lester R. Ruth of Alliance, Ohio, receives a life income from a $25,000 trust fund and one-eighth of the residuary estate.

CARUSO DISCHARGES DRIVER

Wife of Tenor Insists Chauffeur Is Not Under Suspicion.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., July 7.—George Fitzgerald, for seven years chauffeur for Enrico Caruso, was discharged last night, but his dismissal did not become known until this afternoon. When a reported called at the Caruso home Mrs. Caruso insisted that there was no connection between the gem robbery and Fitzgerald's discharge. She said that she had not liked the chauffeur and his dismissal had been a subject of conversation between herself and Caruso for some time.

Pocketing an extra month's salary, Fitzgerald left Southampton on the first train this morning. It is understood that he went to West End, N. J., where his parents live. Fitzgerald was arrested shortly after the robbery charged with violating the Sullivan law. He asserted that the gun was the property of the Carusos and that he carried it only at night at their direction.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Georgie Lee Hall has been engaged by Sam H. Harris to play the leading role opposite William Collier next season in "The Hottentot."

"Dearie" is the title of a new musical comedy which Lee Morrison will produce early in the season. The book is based on "Wildfire," by George Broadhurst and George Hobart, which served Lillian Russell as a starring vehicle. The music has been composed by Melvin Franklin, and the cast includes Letty Yorke, Georgie Hewitt, Leonore Novasio, John E. Young, Tyler Brooke and Will Archie.

Rachel Barton Butler, author of "Mama's Affair," will leave next week for Los Angeles, where Oliver Morosco will produce her latest play, "Mom," one of the early comedies to be seen on Broadway.

"The Passing Show of 1918," featuring Willie and Eugene Howard, will bring to a close this Saturday in Detroit a season which has lasted two years. The piece will go on tour in August.

Mollie Adams is now playing in "Not So Long Ago" the part formerly taken by Mary Kennedy. Miss Kennedy is now playing in support of Henry Hull in "Greater Love."

COATES A SYMPHONY GUEST

English Conductor, at Petrograd in War, Invited Here by Damrosch.

Albert Coates, formerly director at the Petrograd Opera, and now conducting at Covent Garden, as well as at concerts of the London Philharmonic and London Symphony, has been invited by Walter Damrosch to be the guest of the Symphony Society of New York next Winter. The English musician, as announced last night by Manager George Engles, has accepted the invitation, and he and Mr. Damrosch are now conferring in London as to the program he will present here in December.

Mr. Coates was engaged at the Russian Imperial Opera during both the late Czar's régime and the Bolshevik revolution. He is, indeed, a native of Petrograd, but of British parentage and educated in England, to which country he and his wife returned last May.

GILDA VARESI IN NEW PLAY.

To be Star in Miss Byrne's Drama Produced by Pemberton.

Brock Pemberton, who recently resigned from the staff of Arthur Hopkins, has become a producer and accepted a play by Dolly Byrne, entitled "Enter, Madame," for his first production. He will present it in New York on Aug. 16, with Gilda Varesi in the principal rôle.

Miss Varesi was last seen here as the blind girl in "The Jest," and during the run of that Italian drama at the Plymouth she scored the remarkable achievement of playing John Barrymore's rôle for ten performances when he was suddenly taken ill.

MUSIC NOTES.

Giovanni Martinelli will sing on Friday night at the Stadium, before sailing for Europe. Barbara Maurel sings tonight, replacing Rafael Diaz, who is indisposed.

Nicola Zerola, Sascha Jacobsen and an Indian soprano, Watawaso, will appear at Long Beach on Friday, July 16, in a benefit for the Milk Fund for Italian Babies.

Hume Derr, a niece of Frieda Hempel, with Nina Gordani, Kathleen Schofield and others, will assist the Junior League's pageant at Dobbs Ferry on Saturday for the Cardiac Children's Fund.

You Can't Judge Luggage by its Appearance

THIS may seem strange to you. But consider a Wardrobe Trunk.

That shiny outside. Is it part of the construction of this trunk, an element of strength—as in the Belber Wardrobe. Or is it merely a finish!

And the lock, the corner braces, the rivets—do they actually give strength, as in the Belber Wardrobe? Or do they merely look strong?

And is the bag "genuine cowhide"? How thick is it? Is it solid cowhide—as in a Belber Bag? Or is it a paper-thin "split"?

You see how easy it is to "save" money at your own expense!

You see the need, too, of finding some bed-rock luggage standards.

In luggage, as in everything else, the surest standard is the honest purpose of the finest maker.

That maker is the Belber Company—the people who started nearly thirty years ago with a small plant and a big ideal. And have today built up the largest business in fine luggage in the world.

The Belber name is the dominant guarantee in the luggage trade.

Ask any responsible merchant here in town. Most of their fine trade is done in Belber Traveling Goods.

THE IRISH REVOLT.

There is a remarkable picture in this week's MID-WEEK PICTORIAL of how soldiers arched a civilian passing through a street in a disturbed district in Ireland. The other pictures on the Irish revolt include etchings of guards in Dublin, human barricades of Royal Irish Constabulary, soldiers in ambush, wire entanglements, erecting wire defenses, protecting police barracks, &c. There are eighty other etchings in this week's MID-WEEK PICTORIAL covering the big news of the world, politics, sports, the drama. On news stands torday.—Advt.

The Magazine of a Remade World

The Home is the Unit of American Life

The highest function of the home is the education and development of its children.

Today Education follows the line of least resistance instead of deliberately choosing the hardest road to understanding. Its ablest agent, Fiction, is recognized by the educators of today who know an educational process need not be hard and irksome to be worthy.

A clear discernment of the educational possibilities of working with instead of against the natural desires and tendencies of Youth is one of the proudest achievements of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE. Each month it is eagerly welcomed into more than three-quarters of a million representative homes.

THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE can claim no contribution to American life equal to its recognition of the influence of Fiction as an agent of Education. The responsibility involved in this point of view it fully accepts.

The dramatization of the life of today in a way to captivate the interest, sympathy and understanding—and leave a clear and true impression of the intellectual, social and economic activities of America—is resolutely accepted by THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE as its greatest obligation.

The skill, faithfulness and acceptability with which that obligation is discharged is attested by the fact that, in steadily increasing numbers, American fathers and mothers recognize the educational character and influence of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE.

The fact that its influence as a magazine of education is recognized by the highest and most discriminating authorities is evidenced by the fact that the best residential schools in the country use its advertising pages.

Detailed information regarding the residential schools listed on this page, all of which use the advertising columns of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE, may be obtained by addressing: Educational Bureau, THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE, 33 West 42nd Street, New York City

FAIR PLAY FOR MR. WILSON.

Is it too much to hope that President WILSON may now get fairer treatment from his political opponents? He will have but eight months more in office. During that period would it not be decent to let up in the ferocity of attacks upon him? No one will ask Republicans to like him personally or to approve of him politically. Let them cherish to their hearts' content their private hate of the man and their intense hostility to the policies of the President. But he is Chief Magistrate of the United States. He has for nearly a year been fighting for his life in the grip of a dangerous illness. He has borne his suffering without complaint, yet during that time the public attitude of his enemies toward him has been brutal in the extreme.

Isn't it time for a different feeling to show itself? Mr. WILSON'S work is virtually done. Even if it be thought to be ending in bitter disappointment, he is entitled to the consideration due not only to his office but to a tragic figure. Let no one think that his clear mind was not aware of what was coming. Mr. CREEL has just published words which the President uttered on his way home from France:

> It is to America that the whole world turns today, not only with its wrongs, but with its hopes and grievances. The hungry expect us to feed them, the roofless look to us for shelter, the sick of heart and body depend upon us for cure. All of these expectations have in them the quality of terrible urgency. There must be no delay.
> It has been so always. People will endure their tyrants for years, but they tear their deliverers to pieces if a millennium is not created immediately. Yet you know and I know that these ancient wrongs, these present unhappinesses, are not to be remedied in a day or with a wave of the hand.
> What I seem to see—with all my heart I hope that I am wrong—is a tragedy of disappointment.

If any do not perceive in this both clairvoyance and dignity, there is no use in arguing the point with them. But from now on the President deserves, if not kindly treatment, at least decent consideration and fair play.

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

For other than artistic reasons it is desirable that the final decision as to the war memorial shall not be made at a sparsely attended meeting in midsummer. It is true, and it cannot be too often insisted upon, that "only "time can develop the full strength "of the artistic talent and imagina- "tion of the community." To embody an ill-conceived idea in eternal marble would be an eternal calamity. But, even granting that a decision reached on July 22 were the best possible decision, the situation would still be unfortunate.

As yet none of the many proposals has met with any considerable approval. The simple fact is that, of all the great cities of the world, New York lends itself least easily to the erection of a work of art insuring "for all time the elements of dignity, space, beauty and solemnity." Whatever the project, from a water gate at Battery Park to a memorial hall in Madison Square or a sculptural group in the open spaces between the Hudson and Spuyten Duyvil Creek, there are two opposing arguments for each one that is favorable. However wise the decision, a large majority of the public will feel inclined against it. If the decision is made hastily and in the absence of many of those best qualified to judge, the public will conclude that something has been "put over." Disappointment will turn to resentment. Regrettable in any circumstances, the fact would be fatal to a project which depends for success upon the enthusiasm and the liberal gifts of the people. Instead of contributing the minimum sum of fifteen to eighteen millions of dollars, the outraged citizens of Manhattan would be far more likely to express their disapproval.

While pleading for necessary delay, however, it is necessary to point out that consideration of plans and designs should continue. There is always the danger that a liberal impulse will subside, a noble passion grow cold. The time between the meeting of July 22 and next October or November should be a time of unremitting effort. The members of the committee should be in constant touch with the various projects, should be stimulated to weigh them one against another. Above all, they should be prevailed upon to attend the meeting in the Fall. Only by such means can "the full strength "of the talent and imagination of the "community" be developed; only by such means can the community be aroused to the requisite liberality in contributing funds.

RUM IS NOT THE ISSUE OF THIS CAMPAIGN.

It would be a degradation of our politics, a cause for national shame and humiliation, if the liquor issue were brought to a place of prominence in this Presidential campaign. Mr. DANA once spoke of the "noble strifes of politics." Can there be a noble strife over the ignoble issue of rum? Can any decent person imagine without disgust that 30,000,000 people are to be asked to go to the polls and vote upon that miserable issue when questions of the greatest weight and moment they could possibly be called upon to decide have been presented for their judgment? By their platform declarations, by their candidates, the two parties have put before the people the supreme issue of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations. None could be graver or greater or more worthy of the serious consideration of an intelligent electorate. The nations wait upon our decision; the interests of civilization, the future of the world, are involved in that momentous issue. Domestic questions of importance await settlement. The costs of Government must be reduced, oppressive taxes that rob the people of their substance and obstruct the channels of trade must be repealed and a sounder system of taxation established. There are problems of the railroads, of labor, of our foreign trade; there are many subjects of vital interest to the people concerning which the two parties differ. These are issues worth talking about, worth fighting for.

There is and can be no issue of liquor in this Presidential election. The organic law of the land excludes it. The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution prohibits "the manufac- "ture, sale or transportation of intox- "icating liquors within, the importa- "tion thereof into, or the exportation "thereof from the United States and "all territory subject to the juris- "diction thereof for beverage pur- "poses." There may be an amendment to the Volstead Enforcement act, but that is a matter for the decision of Congress; the President will be called upon only to sign or veto any bill presented to him for that purpose. The Supreme Court pointed out that the permitted amount of alcohol in beverages may be increased or diminished by legislation, but it cannot be increased to or beyond the point where the beverage becomes intoxicating. That is prohibited by the language of the amendment. It is conceivable that at some future time Congress may find a way of ascertaining that light beers and light wines are not intoxicating, and may make permissive a larger percentage or volume of alcohol than is now lawful. But neither Governor COX nor Senator HARDING has anything to do with that matter except that as President one of them who shall be elected might be called upon to pass upon legislation relating to it.

Very wisely, very properly, the platforms of both parties are silent about liquor. The men who wrote them rightly felt that the law of the land is established and must be respected. Mr. HARDING has said nothing about prohibition; Governor COX has said only that he was not to be considered a "wet" candidate. Neither candidate is "wet," neither candidate is "dry." It is not a question for their determination, for any action whatever on their part. Rum is not an issue in the campaign.

THE SWISS LOAN AS AN EXAMPLE.

The International Chambers of Commerce at the conference in Paris last week resolved that it is "the duty of "the seller to extend credit to allied "buyers during the reconstruction "period." The Swiss loan announced yesterday shows both that we are responding to our duty and that we are profiting doubly by doing so. But why should a nation with such unquestioned credit as Switzerland pay a rate so apparently exorbitant as 8 per cent.? The reason is that there is profit also to Switzerland. It is a question merely of business expediency on both sides, and the rate for the loan, while an essential part of the business, is only a minor consideration. The electrification of Swiss railways is not a matter of such urgency that Switzerland is under compulsion to pay whatever interest is demanded. The controlling consideration is that nowhere else can Switzerland get what the loan will supply if spent here. England is making larger loans, and selling on credit on open account. But no other country than ourselves is supplying electrical machinery at the proper price. The price of the goods and the furnishing of them is more important to Switzerland than a lower rate where nothing is supplied except money, or credit in a depreciated currency in a bare market.

On the other hand, the 8 per cent. is important here only to the lenders. To the country at large the spending of the money here is more important than the interest rate, for the principal will be disbursed as quickly as the goods can be had, and the interest is less than one-twelfth of the principal. This explains why the Paris conference is right in saying that it is the duty of the sellers to finance the buyers. Sellers are producers or distributers, and deserve encouragement over foreign borrowers who are not buyers here. Foreign borrowers who take the money away throw a burden on our gold supply which is not felt when the proceeds of loans are kept within our domestic circulation. The reason why the business needs a loan instead of bank accommodation, as is usual in foreign trade of even larger proportions, also is clear. Bills of exchange are commonly used in foreign trade, and they are usually bought and sold rather than discounted. The purchases and sales offset each other and supply the funds for the business, making inconsiderable demands on bank resources, whether of deposits or credit. Also, bills of exchange represent business approximating barter, or exchange of goods for goods, or of goods for money, on the spot, with the smallest practicable allowance for necessary differences of time in exchange. But there is a lack of normal business in foreign exchange bills now, and dealings are subject to abnormal fluctuations.

Not the size of the loan, but the necessity of making it a long-time operation, is the explanation why so moderate a sum must be a loan and not bankers' advances. We are buying so little abroad in comparison with what we sell that bankers are not able to find the funds for the bills they buy with the proceeds of the bills they sell. Bankers must keep their funds liquid and turn them over often. Twenty-year business is not for bankers, public or private. Thus the rate paid is the market rate, not the bankers' rate, and there is in it nothing of reproach for any party to the transaction. The connection between dear goods and dear money is not different from the connection between high wages and the high cost of living. Borrowers and workers alike must by now appreciate that they cannot expect one side of the bargain to be on a high level and the other on a low level.

THE TURKISH NATIONALISTS.

The occupation of Belcos on the Bosporus by the Turkish Nationalists can be only temporary, a diversion of guerrilla warfare. It is something for the faithful in Constantinople to talk about, but there is no hope for them in such forays. In the interior, where he may choose his position in a rugged country, MUSTAPHA KEMAL may check temporarily the troops of the Allies and inflict losses upon them. He will not be able, however, to prevent the carrying out of their strategic plan, for his forces are not well organized and equipped; he is so weak in field artillery that he cannot risk his fortunes in a pitched battle. By guerrilla tactics he may defer the rout of the Nationalists, and in the pestilential climate of Asia Minor in the Summer months he will have an ally not to be despised by his enemies.

Details of the allied plan of campaign to punish the Nationalists for not accepting the treaty dictated to Turkey were published in Paris in the end of June. Secrecy was not essential. French and British as well as Greek troops were to be used, the heavy work to fall on the Greeks, who coveted the opportunity to try conclusions again with their ancient enemy and prove that the army of VENIZELOS was invincible. The Greeks under General PARASKEUPOULOS were to march north from Smyrna and south from Panderma on the Sea of Marmora, effect a junction and seize the Panderma-Smyrna Railway. The objective and converging point of the Allies was to be some place in Anatolia to which the Nationalists were to be driven, and where they would be forced to surrender if they still maintained an organization, the British advancing from the Sea of Marmora and the French from the east, the Greeks in greater number in the centre. It was assumed that Brusa, which is near the coast of the Sea of Marmora, would soon fall or be evacuated by the Nationalists. A report comes that it has been evacuated. The railway from Ismid, where the Turks were lately in some force, to Eskishehr, would have to be seized, and if they still offered resistance it would be necessary for the allied forces to push on to Angora; but it is doubtless the hope of Marshal FOCH and Sir HENRY WILSON, the British Chief of Staff, that the Nationalists will have enough of fighting early in the campaign and yield to the inevitable, surrendering at discretion or dispersing and leaving MUSTAPHA KEMAL without an army.

As the French and British have not made preparations on an extensive scale for a campaign against the Nationalists, the official view seems to be that, while it is well to have a plan on paper, the enemy will crumble under the blows of the Greeks and the end will come soon. It is the opinion of Smyrna that the peasants in MUSTAPHA KEMAL'S army are weary of war and have no stomach for fighting in a cause that is at best a forlorn hope. The movement which they have been called upon to support is nationalist only in the sense that ex-Ministers and ex-officers who flourished under the old régime are willing to make a last stand for the system by which they profited, although it is not to be denied that in their ranks are certain sturdy fanatics. It is doubtful whether the peasant soldier will long stick to guerrilla warfare when he learns the truth and realizes that the advance of the Greeks cannot be contested by a Turkish army with greatly inferior equipment.

"MISTAKES OF FOUR YEARS AGO."

Senator HARDING has written a soothing letter to a troubled labor leader. This gentleman, Mr. JAMES L. FEENEY, formerly President of the Central Labor Union of Washington, had urged the Republican candidate to say nothing at all about labor unions unless he could say something "good." He had reminded Senator HARDING that Mr. HUGHES, in 1916, "made votes for the Democrats by assailing the Adamson law." In reply, the Republican nominee assured Mr. FEENEY that "I do not think we shall "make some of the mistakes which "characterized the campaign of four "years ago."

Whatever those mistakes were, they did not prevent Mr. HUGHES from getting heavy majorities in all the great industrial States except Ohio. If he "made Democratic votes" in New York or New Jersey or Illinois, he did not make nearly enough to cut into his big margin—110,000 in New York, 58,000 in New Jersey, and so on. The plain truth is that Mr. HUGHES, far from hurting himself, helped his canvass by the firm stand which he took against political dictation by labor unions or by any other class. The Adamson law was passed virtually under duress; a general railroad strike was the threat which, like a cocked pistol, was held at the head of Congress. It was the first of a series of attempts by the railway unions to intimidate the lawmaking power. These grew so extreme, particularly in the demand that the Plumb plan be adopted, and in the summons of Congress to defeat the Esch-Cummins bill, that Congress simply had to resist them. The public has grown increasingly resentful of this arrogant and selfish attitude. The political "mistake" would be to yield to it, not to oppose it.

Evidence accumulates abroad as well as in this country that the railway unions have overplayed their hand. A strong reaction against them has set in. In England, for example, it has been quietly taken for granted that the unions were to have their way in getting the nationalization of the English roads. But a few days since the Minister of Transport, Sir ERIC GEDDES, informed the House of Commons that the Government had decided against the plan. The study which the Ministry had given to the subject had convinced them that State management of railroads was universally both costly and inefficient. An official report on the Italian experience came to the conclusion, declared Sir ERIC, that "politics corrupted "railway management and railway "management [by the State] cor- "rupted politics." This truth is now pretty deeply rooted in the American mind. To go against it would be the blunder.

AN EXPERT OPINION.

HIRAM JOHNSON, leading "bitter-end" opponent of the League of Nations, sticks to the bargain made with him by the Republicans at Chicago. As was planned and expected, he will support the candidates of that party. For those who believe in preserving our Americanism, he says, there is no choice but to give support to the Republican Party "with a candidate that "stands four-square upon the plat- "form."

Senator JOHNSON'S opinion of the Republican platform is of the highest value. That platform has been almost universally accepted as a declaration of war against the League of Nations. Ex-President TAFT argues, nevertheless, that the Treaty will be ratified and the United States will become a member of the League under the next Administration, which he expects will be Republican. HIRAM JOHNSON is not of that opinion. He analyzes the platform, quotes the statement that the Covenant "fails signally to accomplish" its purpose, and points to other assertions made in the platform that it will be certain to produce injustice, hostility and controversy among nations. The "Republican "Party stands, therefore, firmly "against the President's Covenant as "presented, denounces it as breeding "war rather than promoting peace "and reaffirms the time-honored and "nation-old policies of WASHINGTON, "JEFFERSON and MONROE." In his view "the two platforms are in direct opposition to each other."

This is an expert opinion. There is no higher authority. Not only is Senator JOHNSON an implacable foe of the League, and therefore little likely to be deceived by cunning platform phrases, but the platform declaration concerning the League of Nations was written and inserted with the express purpose of satisfying him and keeping him in the party. The Republicans were mortally afraid that he would bolt. The League plank accomplished its purpose. Senator JOHNSON remained a Republican, he will support Mr. HARDING "standing four-square upon the platform."

This authoritative interpretation of the Chicago platform will profoundly interest Republicans who want the Treaty ratified, want the League of Nations established with the United States as one of its members. But it puts the candidate in a difficult position. Senator HARDING has opposed the Covenant "as presented"; he voted sturdily with the other Republican obstructionists in the Senate to prevent ratification. There is some probability that as the campaign proceeds he will find it expedient to modify his position, to offer some grains of comfort and hope to Republicans who favor the League, for the Democratic platform and the Democratic candidate demand ratification of the Treaty and acceptance of the Covenant. Many Republicans of high standing felt that the Chicago Convention should have declared for the League and let HIRAM JOHNSON bolt if he wanted to. A good many members of that party will be under powerful temptation to vote with the Democrats for justice among nations and for peace in the world. But the watchful eye of the California Senator will be fixed upon Mr. HARDING. If he attempts any qualification of the platform utterance, if he departs a hair's breadth from the line of true doctrine accepted by Senator JOHNSON as a basis of the agreement with him, he may expect to hear of a political earthquake in California.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

America Again Discovered.

Among the many Englishmen who recently have paid to the United States the compliment of coming over here, traveling about a bit, and then writing for the edification and instruction of other Britons a description of America and the Americans is HENRY W. NEVINSON. He is a pacifist somewhat more amiable than the majority of his tribe, and it is in The Manchester Guardian—the pacifism of which usually lacks any amiability at all—that he presents the results of his observations. Some of them are right and some wrong, but they are all interesting—the mistakes rather more so, perhaps, than the accuracies.

Mr. NEVINSON'S article begins with a fine broad generalization, highly characteristic of tourist critics. "All Americans," he writes, "travel at night." The only reason for this he can think of, for he regards our sleeping cars as diabolical inventions, is that we cannot bear to look at the advertising signs that abound along our railway lines. He found, as a consequence of ourmaking all our journeys after dark, that while we know much about our cities, we know nothing about the country that lies between them.

Not to fall into this lamentable state of ignorance, Mr. NEVINSON did some of his traveling by daylight. Hence was he able to make, among other revelations, the startling and important one that "the Hudson," as seen from a New York Central train, "looks about three times as broad as the Thames at Richmond," and "on the further side are cliffs of precipitous rock, not very high and covered with woods along the summit." From the car window, also, he saw "frequent spinneys, copses and woods" whence the natives get fuel and the material out of which they build "houses of planks laid lengthwise." These planks are called "clapboards," which word we pronounce as "clabbud."

Vermonters, he discovered, accent the name of their State on its last syllable and give hardly any sound to its first one, and the traveler shrewdly guessed that the name was somehow related to the Green Mountains.

Cornell Earned Approval.

It was only while at Ithaca that Mr. NEVINSON grew really enthusiastic about things American. No university in the world, he says, is more beautifully placed than Cornell, and the view from the plateau where the university buildings stand seemed to him as fine as anything in Gloucestershire! Of everything there he approved except the limitation of the number of girl students to 1,000, a restriction for which he could imagine no reasons except that the boys didn't want to be beaten at examinations too often, or to be obliged to be eternally and wearisomely careful about keeping clean their collars and their language. He didn't say, as he well might, that the nearly unanimous dislike of American college boys for "co-eds," as such, can be pardoned only because a similar feeling exists in other countries and seems to be a trait common to male humanity of collegiate age the whole world over.

Mr. NEVINSON visited Albany, but brought from it only what he thought the knowledge that there, not long ago, a State Legislature "passed laws to destroy the very elements of freedom in thought and speech." He is fair enough to add that the laws to which he thus feelingly referred were vetoed by a Governor.

Utica Is Really Bereaved.

JOHN REDFIELD PROCTOR, who died last Sunday, was of a fame chiefly restricted to his home city of Utica, but there he had a really unusual amount of it, and his passing has moved the citizens of the place to expressions of respect, affection and gratitude that are remarkable even more for their obvious sincerity than for their number. Commonly there is something of the perfunctory, of the forced, in the manifestations of grief at the death of a "first citizen," and many speak a grief they do not feel. But there is nothing of this in what the Uticans are saying and their newspapers are printing about Mr. PROCTOR. Besides living there for fifty years, he had conferred many and great benefits upon his fellow-townsmen, standing first among his benefactions being a series or system of public parks in extent and beauty surpassing those of any except a few State and national capitals.

Mr. PROCTOR'S career was typically American. His ancestors could be traced back to the Mayflower, but for his start in life they gave him next to nothing except intelligence, health and well-regulated ambition. His early activities were diversified, and included that of conducting several hotels, the best known being at Richfield Springs, but before middle life he turned to banking and other more serious forms of business, and in all he was successful.

His relation to Republican politics went back to ROSCOE CONKLING'S day, and his influence was often felt, but he never sought or held office other than acting now and then as delegate to a convention. In that capacity he was at Chicago when Mr. HARDING was nominated. He returned in seeming good health, but exertions and exposure there may have been the cause of his death, for an attack of laryngitis turned to pneumonia, and at his age—he was born in 1844—he could not overcome the malady.

While alive Mr. PROCTOR refused to let Utica erect a statue in his honor, but it will do so now, as well as celebrate a "Proctor's Day" every year.

This Scheme Would Never Work.

One of the Southern delegates in the San Francisco Convention proposed, and several others from the same part of the country urged, that with each ballot the name of the candidate receiving the smallest number of votes should be dropped from the list. At the time no end of the wearisome balloting was in sight, or seemed to be possible without the adoption of some as yet untried expedient, and this one at first appealed to a good many of the tired delegates. By the wiser ones, however, its impracticability was promptly seen and the proposal was rejected.

The reason why the seemingly promising plan would not work is that when one lowest candidate was dropped there would be nothing to prevent anybody who chose from introducing another name—anybody's name—as that of an aspirant for votes, and so the process could be continued indefinitely.

And, anyway, it wasn't the low candidates that delayed action; it was the high ones, and, as was noted by Mr. GODFREY GLOOM, what the convention did was to drop high candidates, not low ones.

WOMEN AT CONVENTIONS.

At San Francisco They Were Interested in the Platform First.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The crucial difference between the women who attended the Chicago Convention and the women who went officially to San Francisco is that the former went to support favorite candidates, whereas we supported vital principles.

Our women Democrats were far less preoccupied with the problematical nominee for the Presidency than with the platform to be established in the progressive interests of the people.

The citizens of this country have no longer any patience with politics as a mere business, but will accept politics only in the directing of principle. We take but little stock in the pretended "direct wire" theory uniting our policies with the Federal, State or municipal Governments. The only telegraphic influence in which we women really have implicit faith is that wireless leading us to the Supreme Ruler of the world, who is God Almighty. We see no reason why, if advisable, a constitutional amendment should not be amended as well as the Constitution itself. After all, the Constitution was made for man, and not man for the Constitution.

Just so far as we believe in the fatherhood of God, just so far must we believe in the brotherhood of man.

This world has been too long saturated with hatred and venom. It must now be watered with the dew of human kindness.

The Republican Convention was opened with a Hymn of Hate, never equaled by the expression of any boche in the early days of international conflict. No utterance of a von Tirpitz could excel the poisonous oratory of a Lodge.

And finally, we as Democrats have neither the desire nor the intention of offering any apology to the American people for the conduct of the war, but we shall certainly demand of those Republicans who are in legislative control a detailed accounting of how they on their side have been conducting peace.

ELISABETH MARBURY,

The Armenian Language.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be of interest to your readers to know that the Armenian language has been taught in our leading American universities for many years. Now that Armenia is liberated and reconstruction has already begun, philologists and antiquarians are encouraging the study to an even greater extent.

It is not generally known, perhaps, that there are many more facilities for the study of this delightful language than any other. What appears so difficult is really not difficult at all.

For example, it has no system of diphthongs and compound vowels like that of English and French. All consonants and vowels keep their pronunciations in the syllables. It has an abundance of consonants, no gender, and is free from many other difficulties, such as present themselves to the student of any other language.

The uses of articles are exceedingly simple. The alphabet has thirty-nine characters, and well-informed philologists and antiquarians aver that its accents are very simple.

MISSAK TURPANJIAN.

West Hoboken, July 5, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the letter headed "Hungarian Complaints," published in your paper, I beg to ask why, if, the Rumanians were so cruel while in Budapest, does Mr. Sugar "admit" that many Hungarian refugees find their "promised land" in Rumania?

So far as "written documents" are concerned about the Rumanian Army's good behavior, those 100,000 signatures of the people of Budapest sent to the Paris Peace Conference to instruct the Rumanian Army, not to leave Budapest, is significant in the memory of the whole world.

I am satisfied with the service of Rumania's Army to humanity, and I am proud of it!

THE CALLING SEA.

There's a soft caress in the air tonight
With a little west wind blowing,
And a-bob is every harbor light
In the racing Spring-tide flowing.
Oh, I'm fain to feel the dancing boards
Under my feet again,
With my tiller set for the open sea,
That's calling me so plain.

There's a wild sea-tang on the wind tonight
Born of tarry fish-nets drying—
Of salt and tangled ropes of weed
Along the tide-mark lying. . . .
Oh, I'm fain to get aboard once more
And watch the shore-line wane,
Along with the night and the open sea

ELKS REVIEW WAR WORK.

Chicago Parade Follows Memorial Service for 1,037 Dead.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks closed the third day of a week's convention here with a parade and pageant tonight through the downtown quarter. Thirty-five States were represented by floats, prepared at a cost of $75,000, and escorted by cowboys and crack drill teams, with 100 bands and delegations in uniform.

Today's meeting of the Grand Lodge was marked by memorial services for 1,037 Elks who lost their lives in the war. Special services for two Past Grand Exalted Rulers, Justice Henry Melvin and James L. King, were conducted by the Rev. Dr. John Dysart, newly elected Grand Chaplain.

The Grand Lodge also heard the report of the National Elks War Relief Commission, of which John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, is Chairman.

"The Elks was the first organization to realize the need of hospitals at home and abroad," Mr. Tener said. "They assessed themselves $2,000,000, built a reconstruction hospital at Boston and equipped two base hospitals in France. The work of the commission did not end with the armistice.

"While the Government had established the Board of Vocational Education, the law made no provision for immediate financial help. When the Elks' commission learned of this it created a fund of $250,000, from which money was advanced to wounded soldiers until they received their checks from the Government."

The Jackson, Mich., Zouaves won the Elks championship and a prize of $650 in a drill competition today. Philadelphia Patrol won second place and Milwaukee Lodge third.

ONE BID FOR VON STEUBEN.

Shipping Board Gets Offer of $1,500,000 for Former German Ship.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Only one bid for the former German passenger ship Von Steuben was received today when tenders on the vessel were opened by the Shipping Board. It was for $1,500,000 from F. Eggena, of the Foreign Trade Development Cruise, and action on it was deferred.

Purchase of the vessel is sought for a round-the-world cruise to stimulate American foreign trade and develop American commercial interests in foreign markets. Terms of payment offered are $150,000 ten days after acceptance of the bid, and four installments of $150,000, $250,000, $350,000 and $600,000, completing the payment of the purchase price on Dec. 20.

The Von Steuben was the former German commerce raider Kron Prinz Wilhelm, of 14,907 gross tons, built in 1901 at Stettin, Germany.

More Than 4,000,000 Workers Involved in Labor Conflicts Last Year.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Strikes and lockouts in the United States in 1919 totaled 3,374 and affected more than 4,000,000 workers, according to a review issued today by the Department of Labor. Approximately one-half of the strikes occurred in five States—New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois.

Although there were thirty-seven more labor conflicts reported last year than in 1918, the total for 1919 was materially under that of 1916 and 1917. On the other hand, no strike in 1918 involved as many as 400,000 workers, while no less than nine walkouts last year interrupted the labor of more than 60,000.

The department's review attributed the absence of violence in labor controversies during 1919 to less frequent use of strike breakers.

5 SEEK BEAUX ARTS PRIZE.

City War Memorial Subject of Contest for Foreign Scholarship.

The annual Paris prize of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects, providing $3,000 for study abroad, will be awarded on Tuesday at the Beaux Arts Institute of Design, 126 East Seventy-fifth Street. This year's prize is the gift of Joseph C. Baldwin, Jr. By special arrangement with the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, it enables the winner to enter the first (most advanced) class of the Ecole without going through the second class, a privilege which is not afforded to any Frenchman.

There are five contestants in the final competition. The subject is the proposed war memorial for the city of New York at the northern end of the Island, on the wooded knoll between Dyckman Street and Spuyten Duyvil Creek. The competition is in no sense a form of competition for the war memorial. The Paris Prize committee has merely taken the war memorial as the subject.

CHINESE PLEA TO BRITAIN.

Commercial Student Bodies Oppose Anglo-Japanese Treaty Renewal.

SHANGHAI, July 6 (Associated Press).—Sir Beilby F. Alston, British Minister to China, has reached this city on his way to England for a leave of absence. He is taking with him a petition to the British Government presented to him here by a score of leading Chinese commercial student bodies, opposing a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty.

The document says the conditions which led to the negotiation of the treaty no longer exist, and declares the danger from Russia and Germany has been removed. America, it asserts, is the only power with strength sufficient to endanger peace, and "it is unthinkable that that country would alter its established policy overnight."

PLAN TO PROTECT THE SCHOOL BUDGET

CHANGES ARE PROPOSED

More Pay Asked for Teachers in Evening Elementary Classes—Health Play Schools Open.

The first of a series of public conferences on the school budget for 1921 was held by the Board of Education yesterday. Colonel Paul L. Loeser represented the Board of Estimate. The purpose of the conferences is to discuss the best method in making up the budget, President Anning S. Prall said, so that it will be hard for the Board of Estimate to reject or alter it.

"It will be sufficiently elastic," he added, "for the Education Department to work under unhampered, and, at the same time, the details, which Controller Craig desires, will be so complete that should the Board of Estimate not accept it we can take it to the courts."

President Prall said that the Controller had diverted to the city an unused balance of $912,000 belonging to the Education Department, and that the profits derived from the sale of articles made by the Manhattan Trade School for Girls had not been allowed the school. It was agreed that the line system of the past two years was cumbersome and that it would be better to base the estimate for teachers' salaries upon the average number of teachers per year, to group them, as those from kindergarten to Grade 6B, for instance, instead of the line system. This grouping, it was said, would let the Board of Education change teachers from one grade to another within the same group and avoid the necessity of asking permission to do so, as long as the number of teachers and the total sum required for their salaries remained fixed.

Thus in the group named there are about 17,000 teachers, who receive in salaries from $1,500 to $2,800 each. The total asked for this group would be about $40,000,000.

The first budget estimates considered were those of the evening elementary schools. Morris E. Siegel asked for a total of $510,000 for them for 1921. It was decided to reduce the amount asked for by $22,000. A 20 per cent. increase over last year was allowed for the normal growth in the evening schools' work. For Americanization a large increase is provided.

Mr. Siegel said that the census of Manhattan and The Bronx showed that there were 200,000 persons who did not write or speak the English language.

He suggested that the pay of teachers in evening elementary schools be increased to $5 a night, in order to obtain a sufficient number of teachers.

The Summer health play schools opened yesterday with an enrollment of 1,000 children. The schools were organized four years ago by the Association for Child Study, of which Mrs. Howard S. Gans is President. They are held at the Ethical Culture School, 33 Central Park West; Hudson Guild, 438 West Twenty-seventh Street; Stuyvesant House, Stuyvesant and Ninth Streets, Emanuel Sisterhood Headquarters, 320 East Eighty-second Street, and the Park Community Council at Public School 37.

Mrs. Lauretta H. Munns will have charge of following up the recommendations of the doctors with regard to the children who are considerably under normal weight. The school will provide properly balanced lunches each day. Miss Gibbs of the National Arts Club will be the kitchen supervisor. The school has also gymnasium work, dancing, choral singing, arts and crafts, carpentry, kindergarten work, drawing, sign making, cobblery and sewing.

WOMEN EDUCATORS' AIM.

Demand Equal Representation with Men On All Boards.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 7.—The National Council of Administrative Women, meeting as part of the National Educational Association convention here today, pledged its women members to secure equal representation with men on all boards and committees of "all organizations in which both men and women are admitted, including especially State and National education associations."

Leading women members were said to favor Fred M. Hunter, Superintendent of Schools of Oakland, Cal., for the presidency of the Education Association, in return for the Hunter leaders placing at least two women in important posts on their ticket.

According to reports, Olive Jones, President of the New York City Principals' Association, was to be the nominating committee's choice for member of the Board of Trustees, and Cornelia S. Adair, President of the New York League of Teachers' Associations, the committee's choice for treasurer.

C. G. Pearse of Milwaukee, at today's general session, urged the need of "sports to build bodies." He contrasted the life of the pioneers with modern city life, and cited figures from the selective draft to indicate physical unfitness in the present generation.

The Council of Administrative Women lasted an appeal to each State Council to aid a plan which it outlined for recruiting teachers.

Americanization was the theme of addresses at a banquet of the American Citizenship League today to the convention guests.

SEES ROSY MEXICAN FUTURE

Commercial Envoy to Canada Declares Investments Safe.

Luis Murua Martinez, commercial representative of the Mexican Government in Canada, who left Mexico City seven days ago, in an interview in the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday said that business conditions were improving daily in Mexico.

"It is the plan of the new Government," said Mr. Martinez, "to protect foreign capital already invested in Mexico and to make conditions there so attractive from the commercial viewpoint that new capital will be attracted from outside. Money already invested in oil fields, mines, ranches and other businesses not only is safe but surely will render large returns to the investors. Everybody's mind is on business and there is no symptom of revolution.

"There has been no commercial representative from Mexico in Canada for several years, and it is a good sign of the aggressive,

2,445 PASSENGERS SAIL ON OLYMPIC

PROMINENT PEOPLE ON LIST

Inventor of Ship's Oil-Burning Device Makes Bid to Equip Leviathan with Same.

The White Star liner Olympic, commanded by Commodore Sir Bertram Fox Hayes, will sail today for Cherbourg and Southampton with the largest number of cabin passengers on one steamship since August, 1914. She has 730 first, 515 second class and 1,200 steerage passengers, making a total of 2,445.

Among the prominent persons on the first cabin list are: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Munn, Washington; Mrs. H. R. Rea, Pittsburgh; Mrs. H. B. Duryea, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Eaton Cromwell, Philadelphia; Countess de Jonghe, Bronxville; Daniel and Murry Guggenheim, New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Jr., New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Burden, New York; Mrs. Archer Brown, New York; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stanchfield, New York; Jay Witmark, New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Libbey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Washington; I. Kumagae, Japanese tennis champion; Prof. L. F. Rusbrook Williams, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. Storrs Wells, New York; Lloyd B. Sanderson, New York; Mr. and Mrs. James B. Seligman, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner, Jr., New York; John G. Milburn, New York; Count Orlowski, Paris; Irving Berlin, New York; Rev. Henry W. Coffin, New York; Dr. and Mrs. Murray Danforth, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Firestone, Akron; Miss A. B. Jennings, New York; Miss Virginia Van Ingen, New York; the Rev. Samuel Zwemer, D.D., Cairo; Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, New York, Dr. J. Kanno, in charge of a party of seventeen Japanese athletes, is also aboard en route to the Olympic contests at Antwerp.

W. A. White, the inventor of the low pressure oil feeding apparatus with which the Olympic is equipped, will sail today for Southampton after holding several conferences with his New York agent, William T. Tread, at Whitehall Street, who has put in a bid to recondition the Leviathan and convert her into an oil burner for $10,000 000. Mr. White said that there is one feeder the size of a pin hole for each of the 150 fires on the Olympic. The fuel is sprayed by powerful fans after it has been heated to a temperature of 180 degrees. The oil is a slightly higher grade than that which is used on roads. The firemen have only to turn on taps in the stoke holes and rub the carbon off the bars when it collects too thickly. The men keep clean and cool and never suffer from poisoned hands or dizziness from the heat. One of the chief benefits of oil fuel, he added, is that the steam is always kept at full pressure without any difficulty on account of bad coal or falling off in the efficiency of the firemen. On non-oil burning vessels it is difficult for the captains to keep within their schedule time from port to port.

The White Star liner Cedric will also sail this afternoon for Naples and Genoa with 158 first, 350 second class and 1,100 steerage passengers.

MASONS IN MASS MEETING.

Rabbi Silverman Says Order Creates a Real Brotherhood.

The growth of masonry in the United States during the last year was estimated at between 90,000 and 200,000, bringing the national total close to 2,250,000 by speakers at the convention mass meeting of the National League of Masonic Clubs in Carnegie Hall last night. Townsend Scudder, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of New York, presided. The speakers included Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street; F. W. Hamilton of Tufts College, Louis A. Watres, Walter L. Stockwell, Robert J. Travis, and Charles H. Johnson, Junior Grand Warden, New York.

Dr. Silverman said Masonry was a great leveler of men through the creation of a real brotherhood. Men were not true Masons until they lived up to the law of fraternity, he said, adding that Masonry cuts the Gordian knot of class, social and religious prejudice and declares all its members equal.

Pointing to some of the tenets of Masonry in this country, Mr. Johnson declared that the order stood squarely behind the public school system and free education for the young.

"Masonry also believes in the dignity of labor," he added. "It teaches that the true Masonic employer should pay his employe a satisfactory wage, and that the true Masonic laborer give an honest 100 per cent. return for that wage."

At the morning session of the league, held at Masonic Hall, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, a resolution was submitted by Wilfred M. Thompson, Vice President of the New York Masonic Club, indorsing a movement to erect a $3,000,000 building by the Army and Navy Club of America.

Court Denies Le Bower's Petition.

Supreme Court Justice Donnelly denied yesterday an application by Herbert F. De Bower, head of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, to strike certain allegations from the complaint of his former wife, Mrs. Helen De Bower, who divorced him in Chicago, in a suit to set aside an agreement by which she was to get only $150 a month alimony when she obtained her divorce. She contends that he misrepresented his wealth when he induced her to accept $150 a month, and believes she should receive $2,500 a month. She believes that De Bower has an income of $150,000 a year, and says that the woman for whom he left her, and whom he subsequently married, is spending $65,000 a year for luxuries and living expenses.

RUTH ESCAPES WHEN AUTO IS SMASHED

Babe and Other Tourists in Accident En Route from Washington—Will Play Today.

YANKS HOME FOR 21 GAMES

Injured Players Doing Well and All Will Be Available Within a Week, Says Huggins.

Babe Ruth's name has not been added to the long list of Yankees now under the doctor's care. Reports from Wawa, Pa., yesterday had the home run king of baseball injured in an automobile accident, but Miller Huggins announced last night that Ruth and the other members of his automobile party had fortunately escaped injury when Babe's new car ran off the road while on the way from Washington to Philadelphia.

Ruth will be in his accustomed place when the Yankees take the field against the Detroit Tigers at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. He reached New York last evening, but Huggins had learned all the details long before Babe's arrival. Ruth talked with the Yankee manager over the telephone during a stop at Philadelphia, and gave the assurance that none of the party had been injured in the automobile accident. Babe was accompanied by Mrs. Ruth, Coach Charley O'Leary, Catcher Fred Hoffman and Outfielder Frank Gleich.

The car which figured in the accident was purchased by Ruth only three weeks ago. He drove it to Philadelphia for the series there and then continued on to Washington, where the Yankees opened a series on Sunday and played until Tuesday. With Mrs. Ruth and the three players Babe left Washington Tuesday evening and planned to reach Philadelphia shortly after midnight. It was in attempting to make a sharp turn that Ruth's car ran off the road, but none of the party was injured.

Begin Long Home Stand.

The crippled Yankees, minus several regulars but still showing the way in the American League pennant parade, will begin a long home stand at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The sojourn at home will continue until July 26, inclusive, and the Hugmen will engage in twenty-one games, including one double-header with the Browns and two with the Chicago White Sox. The Tigers, who open here today, will be here for four games in as many days and on Tuesday next the St. Louis Browns will open a five-game series with a double-header. Monday will be an off day for the Yankees.

The White Sox, now crowding their way into the thick of the pennant hunt, will be here for six games, including a pair of double-headers, on Saturday, July 17, and some more capacity crowds are likely during this important series. The Cleveland Indians, who have been making the pace most of the season, will be at the Polo Grounds from July 21 to July 24, inclusive, and judging from the demand for reservations there will be few vacant seats at the Brush Stadium while Speaker's team is here. After the Indians come the Boston Red Sox for a Sunday and a Monday game and then the Yankees will hit the trail westward for their second invasion of that section.

Huggins expects that all the players now on the crippled list will be back in uniform during the coming week and he is hopeful of increasing the lead before the home stay is ended. With Hooper, Hendryx and Hoyt out of the Boston lineup it is likely that both the Indians and White Sox will be successful in the Hub and both teams should do well at Philadelphia. Washington is the only Eastern team that may be counted upon to furnish any aid to the Yankees while the Western clubs are playing in this section.

Aaron Ward, the latest of the Yankees to join the casualty squad, was not as seriously injured as at first supposed, and Huggins declared last night that he probably would be able to rejoin the team by next Monday. Shawkey and Mogridge, the original pitchers, are expected back in a week's time, and Peckinpaugh may be able to play before the end of the week. Duffy Lewis is now taking light exercise and he probably will be able to take his place in the outfield within a week or ten days. Bob Meusel has been playing with a badly bruised hand, but he has remained in the game owing to the fact that so many other players were more seriously injured.

Meanwhile Fewster has become available and is playing a strong game, showing no ill effects of his severe injury last March. The fine form shown by Rip Collins and the improvement in the work of Carl Mays have eased the pitching problem, and Sam Vick is playing a good game in the outfield and hitting well. The string of accidents has served the good purpose of showing just how strong a reserve squad Manager Huggins has at his disposal.

Reception for Ruth.

A reception for Babe Ruth, with a presentation by the Knights of Columbus of New York to the Yankee slugger, has been scheduled for tomorrow at the Polo Grounds. Babe is a member of the organization and the brother Knights have arranged a big testimonial in his honor. The Knights will assemble at the hall of the Pro Patria Council, Convent Avenue and 144th Street, at 1 o'clock and, headed by their band, will proceed to the Polo Grounds. About 1,000 Knights, including several officials of the order, will be in attendance. The presentation ceremonies will take place just before the game with the Detroit Tigers.

Three attendance records at Washington fell during the three-day visit which has just been concluded by the Yankees. On Sunday last Yanks and Senators played to the greatest Sunday crowd in Washington's baseball history and the first game Monday drew the greatest morning crowd that has yet attended a game there. The afternoon game on the holiday was witnessed by more people than any game ever drew before in the Capital City.

The Giants open their second invasion of the West this afternoon at Chicago, where they are scheduled to play a four-game series with the Cubs. Following the visit there McGraw's men will move along to St. Louis for three games, then to Pittsburgh for five and the western trip will close with a six-game series at Cincinnati. One double header is on the card during the Pittsburgh series and another is to be played during the five-day visit at Cincinnati. On their first western trip the Giants won seven of their twelve games, getting even breaks in Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and St. Louis, and three out of four games at Chicago. This second swing will tend to show whether or not the Giants may be expected to figure prominently in the pennant hunt. The team will be back at the Polo Grounds on July 27 to open a series here with the western clubs.

TO FIGHT MINOR LEAGUE.

Semi-Pro Team Will Bring Action Against Atlanta Club.

NEW CACTLE, Pa., July 7.—The right of organized baseball to sign a player who has a contract with an industrial or semi-professional club, without coming to terms with non-league teams, will be tested in court, according to an announcement made here today by W. E. Duerstein, an official of the Castle Cords nine of New Castle.

Duerstein has telegraphed his attorneys at Macon, Ga., to take action against the Atlanta team of the Southern League, which recently signed contracts with Cliff Markle, pitcher, and Frank Mills, catcher, of the Cords. The Cords had agreements with Markle and Mills to play with the club here this season, but, despite this, the Atlanta team signed them, according to Duerstein. The question at issue, he said, is whether a contract with an independent club is not as binding as one with a league team.

Pirates Make Triple Play in 2-to-1 Victory Over Quakers.

PITTSBURGH, July 7.—The first triple play in more than two years on the Pirates' home field, according to local sports writers, occurred today in a pitchers' battle in which Philadelphia was defeated, 2 to 1. Cooper caught Wheat's fly with first and second occupied. Caton and Grimm completed the play.

SKEETERS DOWNED BY TORONTO, 5 TO 3

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., July 7—Memories of the fiasco at Jersey City on the last road trip of the Leafs were still fresh in the minds of the rival players at the Island stadium today, and as a result numerous disputes marred an otherwise well played game, the locals beating the Skeeters by 5 to 3. Umpire Moran, who called the balls and strikes was continually in trouble, the visiting players in a chorus deriding him from the bench. Judging by the way the series opened, the stay of Donovan's men should produce considerable excitement.

In the eighth inning, with the Leafs leading by 5 to 2, Umpire Moran called the game because of rain, but the shower lasted only a few minutes, Eddie Onslow and "Mickey" Devine were not at all keen about playing in the rain, and the latter, without permission from the umpire, started for the clubhouse. The arbiter called him back, but sixty seconds later decided that Devine was right and he stopped the game. The ground keepers brought out the tarpaulins, but Eddie Onslow prevails upon them not to use them. The precautions by the local captain, however, went for naught, as the storm blew over and permitted the game to go on.

Bobby Heck started on the hill for the Leafs and did good work until the sixth, when he temporarily lost his bearings and retired in favor of Ryan, leaving none out and two on bases. Ryan extricated the Leafs from the difficult situation in masterly style, not a visitor crossing the plate. Thereafter he always had a little the better of it, and this despite his wildness, which placed five runners on first base.

Ferguson held the heavy-hitting Leafs to seven hits and two earned runs, but errors behind him at critical times gave the Leafs their remaining tallies.

Zitman, lead off man for the visitors, made four hits in succession, but spoiled a perfect day by grounding out, Blackburne to Onslow, in the ninth inning. Kane and Ferguson had two safeties each.

Benny Kauff was given a great hand every time he came to bat, swinging the longest bludgeon in the International. The little fellow, encouraged by his success of the previous day, when he drove the ball against the Diamond sign, selected as his target the right field bleachers. He was out twice to Kane and "fanned" an equal number of times.

The Leafs scored two runs in the second inning on hits by Blackburne, Gonzales and Heck, the latter named scoring both with a two-base hit. Errors in the sixth and seventh gave the locals three more tallies, while the visitors scored one each in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Score Five Runs in Eighth and Trounce Cards by 8 to 5.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 7.—When the locals' defense crumpled in the eighth inning today, Chicago broke the tie, scored five runs off two hits, three errors, a walk and a hit batsman, and defeated St. Louis by 8 to 5.

Two spectators were escorted from the park in the eighth inning by policemen when Paskert, after engaging in an argument with Dilhoefer, became the target of the fans' remarks and started to climb into the grand stand.

AMERICAN TEAMS DEBARK.

Riflemen and Polo ists Go from Antwerp to Cob'enz to Train.

ANTWERP, July 7.—The American rifle and equestrian teams for the Olympic games arrived at Antwerp in an army transport last night. They proceeded to the American Army base at Cobienz for practice work.

Brig. Gen. Sage, who is in charge of American Olympic affairs, tried to have the rifle team train at the Beverloo range, where the Olympic contests will be shot, but this was impossible, as the Belgian Army is manoeuving there. It is probable the team will get some practice at Beverloo after work on the army range at Coblenz. The polo players will practice at Coblenz later with the American Army team, which is in France at present.

General Sage went to Brussels today to clear up some mistakes in the American entry list. The trapshooters are not mentioned, though they will be represented. President Wells of the American trapshooters came from England to inspect the range.

MRS. LYNCH WINS ON GREENWICH COURTS

Defeats Mrs. Welte in Three-Set Match — Spirited Contests Feature Play in Doubles.

Play was light in the women's singles of the open tennis tournament at the Greenwich Country Club yesterday, but with the help of a few defaults eight of the individual contenders reached the fourth round. Mrs. Edward V. Lynch, the Eastern New York champion, won the most notable victory of the day when, after losing the opening set to Mrs. Frank Welte, the former Miss Edna Wildey, by a score of 6—4, she annexed two love sets in succession for the match. Mrs. Welte had previously defeated Miss Adele Cragin in straight sets, 6—2, 8—6, and she became very tired toward the close of her second match. Mrs. Lynch's unvarying steadiness had the effect also of gradually throwing her off her stroke, and after taking the first set she grew gradually worse.

Mrs. Ernest Wiener had two three-set matches on her hands in the course of the morning, and rather surprised the gallery by winning both of them. She first eliminated Mrs. Nathaniel Dain by scores of 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, and then disposed of Miss Dorothy Leary of the home club at 7—9, 6—0, 6—4. Mrs. Helen Bernard Wolff was forced to her limit in the second set of her match with Mrs. M. D. Straffin, finally completing her victory at 7—5, after taking the opener, 6—3.

The doubles, in which there was plenty of activity, produced even closer encounters. Half a dozen of the team matches went to three sets and several of the others were far from one-sided. The most spectacular encounter brought together Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Gertrude Della Torre, one of the best combinations in the metropolitan district, and the champion Floridians, Miss Phyllis Walsh and Miss Katherine Force. The former were the eventual winners, but they dropped the first set, 9—7, and pulled out the rubber only after the games had again gone to deuce.

Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. Welte lost a deuce set to Mrs. Carlebach and Mrs. Allen Lehman, but took the deciding session without difficulty at 6—1. The only easy winners in the doubles were the established combination of Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassel. Mrs. L. C. Morris and Miss Margaret Grove came through their first match impressively, but had a difficult time taking the first set from Mrs. S. H. Waring and Mrs. Albert Humphries, the games going to 8—6.

The summaries follow:

Singles—Second Round—Mrs. Ernest Wiener defeated Mrs. Nathaniel Dain, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3; Mrs. Frank Welte defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—2, 8—6.

Third Round — Mrs. Wiener defeated Miss Dorothy Leary, 7—9, 6—0, 6—4; Mrs. Helen Bernard Wolff defeated Mrs. M. D. Straffin, 6—3, 7—5; Miss Helen Gould defeated Miss Louise Wilson, 7—5, 6—2; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Mrs. Edward Lane, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. E. V. Lynch defeated Mrs. Welte, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; Miss Marie Wagner, Miss Clare Cassel and Miss Margaret Grove won by default.

Doubles—First Round—Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Wolff defeated Mrs. J. McGovern and Mrs. C. H. Carhart, 6—1, 2—6, 8—6; Miss Mary Eaton and Miss Winifred Croft defeated Miss Virginia Hopper and Miss Adelaide Hooker, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassel defeated Miss Vorhees and Mrs. Parker, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. S. H. Waring and Mrs. Albert Humphries defeated Mrs. Henry Fletcher and Miss Dorothy Thompson, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. L. G. Morris and Miss Margaret Grove defeated Mrs. Edward Cunningham and Mrs. Stand, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. Harold Lehman and Mrs. Arthur Sidenberg defeated Mrs. Lewisohn and Mrs. Rothschild, 6—7, 6—1; Miss Julia Shanley and Miss Katharine Lauder defeated Miss Eleanor Hays and Miss Helen Gould, 6—4, 6—1, 8—6.

Second Round—Miss Eaton and Miss Croft defeated Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Wolff, 4—6, 6—3, 9—7; Mrs. Morris and Miss Grove defeated Mrs. Waring and Mrs. Humphries, 6—4, 6—4; Mrs. Raymond Sander and Mrs. M. D. Straffin defeated Mrs. Dain and Miss Muriel Binzen, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Gertrude Della Torre defeated Miss Phyllis Walsh and Miss Katherine Force, 7—5, 6—4; Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. Welte defeated Mrs. Carlebach and Mrs. A. Lehman, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1.

HAMMETT TENNIS WINNER.

Defeats Fischer in North Side Tournament by 6—3, 6—1.

Alfred D. Hammett, playing on his home courts of the University Heights Club, yesterday became a semi-finalist in the North Side tennis championship by defeating his clubmate, William M. Fischer, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—1. Two of the other brackets are already occupied by Francis T. Hunter and Herbert H. Manchester respectively, and a valiant effort was made yesterday by Percy L. Kynaston and Elliott H. Binzen, the present champion, to decide the fourth place. They had to stop on account of darkness, with a set apiece, Binzen having previously disposed of C. C. Hubbell, Jr., at 6—4, 6—0.

Hammett had his chops working yesterday, and after a few games it became evident that Fischer was distinctly off stroke, perhaps partly because of the stonewall defense that he found facing him.

They alternated in winning the games up to 3—2, but here Fischer threw away several good chances to tie the set, and, eventually, Hammett broke through for a lead of 4—2. Fischer picked up one more game, but this was the extent of his achievements in the first set, which went to Hammett at 6—3.

In the second session Fischer had more and more difficulty in finding the court with his drives from the base line, and when he tried for the net Hammett usually passed him cleanly or bobbed over his head. After seeing his rival forge ahead to a lead of 3—1, Fischer seemed to lose heart, and grew more and more disgusted with his shots as the last three games slipped quickly away, ending the set and match at 6—1.

Binzen started his fourth-round match with Hubbell quite late in the afternoon and ran into unexpected opposition in the opening set, which he finally won at 6—4. Although the second was a love set, Hubbell put up a good resistance all the way, showing excellent form in his strokes and making the Fordhamite fight hard for his points.

The winner took the court with Kynaston immediately, and it was soon evident that the latter was in far better shape, at least in the matter of steadiness. Binzen's shots were wild, and he threw away many points by hitting the ball out of court. He did not dare risk his drive as a regular shot, and depended chiefly on chops to open the way for his attack. Kynaston, however, was so accurate that Binzen often found himself cleanly passed after reaching his favorite position, and in the back of the court he had all the worst of the argument.

They alternated on games up to 3—2, when Binzen, after leading 40—0, threw away his service on errors. He broke through Kynaston's delivery in turn, but the latter promptly returned the compliment, and with a 5—3 advantage, and his service in hand, made sure of the set at a 6—3.

Kynaston seemed to have the match won in straight sets when he led up to 5—4 in the second session. But Binzen managed to tie it up with some desperate volleying close up, and after two alternations of service, broke through in the dark for the game that meant the set, 8—6, and a square match.

The summary follows:

Fourth Round—Elliott H. Binzen defeated C. C. Hubbell, Jr., 6—4, 6—0.
Fifth Round—Alfred D. Hammett defeated William M. Fischer, 6—3, 6—1; Percy L. Kynaston against Elliott H. Binzen, 6—3, 6—9 (unfinished).

DAVIS CUP PLAY WILL BEGIN TODAY

America to Meet France in First Match for International Tennis Trophy.

EASTBOURNE, England, July 7.—The French and American Davis Cup teams have been in Eastbourne at the same hotel for the past three days, hoping to get acclimated to the local conditions. The courts here are much slower than the centre court at Wimbledon. The French representatives, De Cugis and Gobert, think this will penalize both sides equally, as all tennis players like hard ground. The matches begin tomorrow.

The teams have had virtually no opportunity to practice here owing to the fact that it has rained almost continuously during the three days. The French are despondent at this, but the Americans take it philosophically. They are in fit condition. Tilden's knee is almost well and he is confident that he will stand the strain of the series without trouble. There is a general feeling that William M. Johnston, the American champion, will recover his previous form. America's chances of winning are regarded most favorable here.

Friday—Johnston and Tilden vs. Gobert and Laurentz.

Saturday—Gobert vs. Tilden, Laurentz vs. Johnston.

LAUDS U. S. TENNIS TEAM.

Lord Desborough Writes Invasion Has Helped the Game.

That the visit of the American players has been appreciated by the tennis public of England is apparent in a letter just received by Julian S. Myrick, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, from Lord Desborough, President of the British L. T. A.

It follows:

"Your letter of May 11, last, was read to the Council of the Lawn Tennis Association at their meeting held on Monday, June 14.

"We appreciate very highly the motives which have prompted your association to send to this country your fine team of lawn tennis players, who have quickly achieved a wide popularity, due as much to their spirit of fine sportsmanship as to their great skill with the racquet. Their presence in this country is doing a great work in stimulating the interest in international lawn tennis, which it is the desire of this association to foster in every way possible, and there is no doubt that the fortunes of your represent

eats Ticklish and the Heavily Played Thunderstorm in Seven-Furlong Dash—Sea Mint Winner.

The Redstone Stable's Gladiator, which finished second in the Latonia Derby recently, found himself running with a field of far less pretentious performers at Aqueduct yesterday and scored a very easy victory in the Africander Handicap at a mile. He took the measure of J. E. Widener's Fair Gain, checking the winning streak of that colt, while St. Allan was third and Royal Duck last among the quartet of starters. The race was run in 1:37 2-5, which equaled the time made by Audacious a few days ago, and is the best time for a mile during the present meeting.

The Africander Handicap was the feature of a rather dull card in which there was a noticeable absence of the better class of horses. The fields were also smaller than has been the rule at Aqueduct, but the form players were in a measure compensated by the fact that the favorites divided the honors of the day, three of them being returned victors.

Gladiator is one of the most improved of the three-year-olds of the season and appears to be a consistently good performer when not asked to race against the real topnotchers of the handicap division. He carried 121 pounds yesterday and conceded much weight to all his rivals, but was in front all the way, handled the weight cleverly and won easily after being roused once in the stretch. He defeated Fair Gain by only half a length, but Jockey Barrett had the colt in hand all through the final sixteenth and the victory was never in danger. St. Allan showed improvement over his recent races and raced with the leader for six furlongs, but tired in the stretch. Fair Gain moved up with a rush and caught St. Allan. Turner used his whip freely, but in vain, in an effort to catch the winner.

Lion d' Or Wins Again.

Commander J. K. L. Ross's Lion d'Or added another victory to his growing list of achievements by taking the second event at seven furlongs from Ticklish and Thunderstorm. Though he had all the speed of the race he carried 123 pounds to 98 for Thunderstorm and because of this difference in the weights Thunderstorm was heavily supported.

It developed that Thunderstorm was no match for the winner. Lion d'Or set the pace all the way, opened up a gap of two lengths and though tiring at the end was never threatened by the Wilson horse which was last throughout the journey. Ticklish charged down on Lion d'Or in the final furlong and got within a length of him at the finish.

Elected 2d, aafn surprised the patrons by winning the third race, a test at a mile for fillies and mares. She defeated the well played favorite, Rubidium, by five lengths while the latter was a second five lengths in front of Bellsolar. Elected 2d, was well up with the pace set by Belgian Queen for the first half mile and drew away into a commanding lead in the run through the stretch. Rubidium lacked early speed and dropped back so far that she could not make up the ground in the drive at the finish though she was easily the best of the others in the field of six that went to the post.

Sea Mint Comes Back.

The Oak Ridge Stable's Sea Mint, which was a most promising colt at the opening of the local season, but which disappointed his owners several times, finally scored brackets in the fifth race at a mile when he defeated Dream of the Valley by a length, with Whisk third. Torchbearer, which was well supported, found the distance too far and tired badly in the stretch, being fourth, three lengths back of Whisk. Sea Mint followed the pace, raced Dream of the Valley down in the stretch and got home, with a length to spare, but had to be ridden out. Dream of the Valley broke slowly, but raced up to the front, set a fast pace and altogether showed more courage than usual. Torchbearer was at the heels of the leaders entering the stretch, but faltered badly at the furlong pole.

J. F. Flanagan's Faunus scored a close decision over Polly Ann in the opening event, a five furlong dash, for two-year-olds, winning by a nose. Morning Face was third among eleven starters. Faunus finished with a rush and caught Polly Ann at the sixteenth pole. The two raced head and head all the way to the finish and Faunus just managed to win.

Believe Idle Hour to Match Strides with Eastern Horses

LATONIA, Ky., July 7.—With the close of the Kentucky racing season at Latonia on Saturday most of the best of the Western horses will be sent to the Eastern tracks, the majority to Saratoga. There has been a strong rivalry between East and West at Saratoga for years, but the Kentucky horsemen find themselves at a disadvantage this year. However, E. R. Bradley has a two-year-old filly which he will send against the best of her sex during the meeting at the Spa. This is Believe Idle Hour, winner of the Clipsetta Stakes. She will probably match strides with Prudery, Careful and other fleet ones.

WILDAIR IS AN EASY WINNER AT LATONIA

Whitney Colt, with Top Weight, Not Fully Extended in Ten Broeck Handicap.

LATONIA, Ky., July 7.—The $5,000 Ten Broeck Handicap at a mile and a quarter, which was run at Latonia today, fell an easy prey to H. P. Whitney's Wildair, which defeated Frank W. and Dresden among the eight starters. This is the record of the big stakes to fall to Mr. Whitney within a week.

Wildair carried the top weight of 125 pounds but was never fully extended during the journey. The early pace was set by Frank W. Wildair raced him down at the turn into the stretch and came on to win by a length and a half. The race was run over a heavy track in 2:09.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—Purse $1,300; for three-year-olds; one mile. The Leopard, 112 pounds (Wilson), $5.40, $2.80, first; Lord Wrack, 105 (Burke), $5.40, second; Tulsa, 105 (Martin), $5, third. Time—1:43 3-5. Travesty, Samsboy, Bounding Through and Harry B. also ran.

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,300; the Sir Martin; for two-year-old maiden fillies; five and a half furlongs. Peppery Polly, 112 (Smith), $10.10, $5.20, $4.10, first; Golden Autumn, 112 (Smallwood), $5.50, $5.20, second; Marjorie McKay, 112 (Burke), $9.20, third. Time—1:11 2-5. Dona Lorlotte, Cozette, Dromore, Bit of Green and Sure also ran.

THIRD RACE—The Fairplay Handicap; purse $1,800; for two-year-olds; five and a half furlongs. Monsoon, 118 pounds (Collins), $16.50, $6.80, $3.70, first; Ben Valet, 112 (Wilda), $5.50, $3.50, second; Ace High, 121 (Lunsford), $2.60, third. Time—1:10 1-5. Whippet and Pekoe also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $2,200; Xalapa Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs. Angon, 95 pounds (Buel), $6.10, $4.10, $3, first; Furbelow, 110 (Erickson), $16.10, $6, second; Linden, 106 (McAtee), $3.40, third. Time—1:14. Carmandale and Fern Handley also ran.

It developed that Thunderstorm was no match for the winner. Lion d'Or set the pace all the way, opened up a gap of two lengths and though tiring at the end was never threatened by the Wilson horse which was last throughout the journey. Ticklish charged down on Lion d'Or in the final furlong and got within a length of him at the finish.

Elected 2d, aafn surprised the patrons by winning the third race, a test at a mile for fillies and mares. She defeated the well played favorite, Rubidium, by five lengths while the latter was a second five lengths in front of Bellsolar. Elected 2d, was well up with the pace set by Belgian Queen for the first half mile and drew away into a commanding lead in the run through the stretch. Rubidium lacked early speed and dropped back so far that she could not make up the ground in the drive at the finish though she was easily the best of the others in the field of six that went to the post.

FIFTH RACE—The Ten Broeck Handicap; three-year-olds; $5,000 added; one mile and a quarter. Wildair, 125 (Ambrose), $4.40, $3.60, $2.60, first; Frank W., 104 (Erickson), $3.20, $2.50, second; Dresden, 103 (Wilson), $2.70, third. Time—2:09. East Indian, Sterling, Lorraine, Attaboy II. and Rouleau also ran.

SIXTH RACE—Purse, $1,200; claiming; four-year-olds and upward; one mile and an eighth. Trooper, 110 (Howard), $33.90, $11.20, $9.90, first; Dahabiah II., 100 (Carmody), $4.20, $3.20, second; Bar One, 105 (Heinisch), $7.50, third. Time—1:56 3-5. Rafferty, Huffaker, Leo Ray, Corydon, Plenty, Bond, Jellison, and Brynlimah also ran.

VOLTAGE CAPTURES FASIG SWEEPSTAKES

NORTH RANDALL, CLEVELAND, July 7.—Voltage, owned by U. D. Welsh of Kansas City, Mo., and driven by Fred Egan of Memphis, won the Fasig Sweepstakes Purse of $2,000, the feature event of today's Grand Circuit racing. The Prince Volo colt took the event from five great juvenile trotters in straight heats. Worthy Etawah went lame while scoring and was withdrawn.

Voltage led from the start in the first heat and had enough in reserve to withstand Great Britton's belated stretch sprint. Natalie the Great and Daystar, coupled in the betting and heavy favorites, were never prominent in the first heat.

Egan lay back with Voltage in the second heat, letting Daystar set the pace to the stretch, where Voltage passed him and in a fierce drive won by a length, with Great Britton almost overtaking Daystar for second place. The time for this mile, 2:11¾, was remarkable, considering the heavy track.

Continued rains this morning put the track in such condition that the horses were not called to the post for the first event until 3:30 P. M., and as a result it was impossible to finish today's program of six races, the 2:18 class trot and the 2:14 class pace going over until tomorrow, weather permitting.

Announcement was made that it will be necessary to race on Saturday to complete the week's program, instead of winding up on Friday.

GOLF AT GEDNEY FARMS.

Leading Pros of Westchester County Entered in Open Tourney.

Few of the Westchester County professionals will be absent on Monday when the open championship golf tournament is contested at the Gedney Farm Country Club, according to the list of entries announced yesterday by W. Z. Shafer. Although nominations will be received until Saturday, in accordance with a new dispensation, the names of practically every high-ranking pro and several headliners among the county's amateurs have been received by Jay S. Jones, who is to direct the event.

Gedney Farm, scene of the tourney, has entered the largest quota, including its pro, Peter Clark, and such amateur leaders as Charles H. Paul, Hamilton Kerr, T. Russel Brown, W. J. Lyon, A. W. Haigh and Ensign Conklin. Sweeny will be represented by three professionals, Tom McNamara, Tom and Willie Kerrigan, and by three amateurs of high standing. They are J. S. Worthington, the new Westchester amateur champion, John G. Anderson, and Al J. Mendes. From Sleepy Hollow will come Archie Sanderson, the pro, and his brother, Stewart Sanderson, who recently arrived from England. During the war Stewart Sanderson was a Corporal in the Royal Field Artillery, serving for four and one-half years in France, and receiving three wounds.

Arthur Reid, the pro, will represent Ardsley, along with two amateurs, Merrill K. Waters and M. Parrish. The other nominees to date, all of them professionals, follow: Jack Dowling, Scarsdale; Tom Patterson, Knollwood; George Thompson, Mount Vernon; Joe Doepel, Greenwich; Willie and John Farrell, Quaker Ridge; Carl Anderson and Gregory Iozzo.

The tourney will be thirty-six holes, medal play, and a new course record is likely to be set. The present low mark at Gedney Farm is 72, and was made by Charles Mothersole. The amateur record is 75, made this Spring by two Gedney Farm members, Paul and Lyon, both of whom will compete in the coming tournament.

START MEASURING RIVAL CUP YACHTS

Work of Determining Allowance to be Conceded Resolute by Shamrock IV. Is Begun.

Measurement of the Resolute and Shamrock IV. started yesterday at the Morse Dry Dock plant at the foot of 57th Street, South Brooklyn, and attracted a large gallery of yachting enthusiasts and a small army of movie and still photographers.

The two trim yachts are in the same dry dock in separate sections with but a single section between them and it was possible to compare the two as they reposed, end to end. The challenger gives the impression of much greater size and at the same time is much more radical in design.

Harold W. Webb, official measurer of the New York Yacht Club, was on hand early to commence the work of measuring the two big sloops. During the forenoon he worked on the Resolute and eventually succeeded in obtaining her water line, which is believed to be 74.97. Owing to the ripples in the section of the dry dock where Resolute was, it was difficult to obtain the exact measurement but great patience was used and both Mr. Webb and Mr. Nicholson, who was in the dinghy with him during the operation, appeared to be well satisfied with the results. Measurement of Shamrock's water line took place during the afternoon, with C. Sherman Hoyt and Mr. Nicholson with the measurer in the small boat.

500 Measurements Necessary.

Measurement under the Universal Rule, under which the two yachts were built, is quite different from the measurement of seventeen years ago and infinitely more comprehensive. Mr. Webb said that it would be necessary to make about 500 measurements of each yacht, most of them to arrive at the displacement, and it is not expected that the work of measuring and then computing all the data will be completed until the end of the week.

While the measurements were being taken the crews and afterguards were seated on deck. Substitutes took the places of those who are to be aboard during the races and were not there yesterday. Charles Francis Adams, skipper of the Resolute, was not present aboard Resolute, while William P. Burton, Shamrock's Corinthian skipper, was aboard the challenger and so was Mrs. Burton, which fact appears to indicate that she will be aboard during the races. Mrs. Burton was the only woman present during the measurement operations.

When the measurements are completed and the actual allowance determined, the America's Cup Committee will make the findings public. It is now generally believed that the challenger may have to allow the defender slightly less than six minutes.

It was necessary to put aboard the Shamrock slightly more than 1,000 pounds of lead to bring her down to her line and in taking her over-all measurement even the extension of her decorative name plate with its wreath of shamrocks was counted and added about an inch to her length, beyond her flat stern transom. The bronze cap with the enameled four-leaved shamrock, which adorned the tip of her boom was removed.

Lipton Inspects Resolute.

After luncheon Sir Thomas Lipton came ashore from the steam yacht Victoria to inspect his challenger in dry dock and at once became the object of a furious attack by photographers who used up hundreds of plates and thousands of feet of film on him. After inspecting his challenger he was invited to inspect the Resolute which was out, high and dry near by. He did so and remarked that she appeared to be very speedy and it would take a mighty speedy craft to defeat her.

Later, in commenting on the possibility of anything happening to either craft, before or during one of the races, he said there was no honor in taking a prize from a disabled opponent and that he would not want to take the Cup under such conditions as he considered sportsmanship of far greater consequence than rules.

The work of measuring the two sloops will be continued today with all possible speed and a quantity of scaffolding from Columbia University was delivered at the dry dock yesterday to be used in the work.

Captain Alfred Diaper of the 23-metre Shamrock said he had received word from England that the Cunard line contemplated sending one of its smaller ships to this country with passengers to see the Cup races and return at once, a charge of £300 each to be made for the voyage.

The crews of the Resolute and the Shamrock IV., about eighty in all, were entertained by the employes of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company last night. A platform was erected in the yard, within a stone's throw of the two racers, and several good boxing bouts were staged, followed by a number of vaudeville acts. The crews enjoyed immensely a "shimmy" dance, executed by two young dancers. The dance was interrupted by the rain, which abruptly ended the entertainment.

ZILPH IS VICTOR AMONG 40-FOOTERS

Special to The New York Times.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., July 7.—A twenty-knot southwester gave the Eastern Yacht Club fleet a wonderfully exhilarating run from Newport today. Six of New York forty-foot sloops and four large schooners had some of the best sport of the season. The winners in the two classes were the schooner Queen Mab, owned by R. C. Robbins, and the sloop Zilph, owned by James Hayes.

The cruise will continue tomorrow with a run to Fort Pond Bay, under the sheltering arm of Montauk Point, while the racing portion of the fleet will scurry about Block Island Sound before dropping anchor in the old fishing port.

The southwester was just beginning to pipe up when the yachts came out to Brenton's Reef Lightship this forenoon, and by the time the racers had been sent away it was speeding up to ten knots.

The start of the six forties was thrilling. Four of them clustered about the eastward end of the line and two hugged the lightship. Seven seconds after the signal Mistral rushed across, with Rowdy on her weather quarter and Zilph close astern, while Shawara was not far behind. Sally Ann and Pamparo, which were on the other side of the line, were slow starting. The six yachts immediately broke up into two divisions, Zilph, Mistral and Rowdy working the Narragansett shore against a strong flood tide, while the other three went off shore for a better slant. The in-shore boats won, and were a mile ahead on reaching Point Judith. Zilph, working out to weather of Mistral and Rowdy, had a commanding lead at noon and was never headed.

By mutual agreement the four large schooners raced around Block Island, and agin Queen Mab, although the smallest of the class, led from the start. Windward, which was the last boat over the line, followed the forty-footers and made shore tacks along the Narragansett shore. This proved a good move, for she weathered Shawna and Waterwitch and was second passing Southeast Light. Once on the shore side of the island, the four schooners reached very fast over to Southwest Ledge, and then came down the wind to the finish under balloners.

By the time the yachts had reached Block Island Sound the wind had increased to full twenty knots and the last part of the race was sailed amid flying spray and with lee rails buried in foam. The fleet in Salt Pond Bay tonight numbered a score, with the Corsair filling up a large portion of the little harbor. It was the first time that such a fleet of large yachts had ever anchored in the new harbor on the west side.

Another Novel Golf Tourney Planned by Newspaper Club

This business of playing golf in some unique way has evidently gone to the heads of the moguls in the New York Newspaper Golf Club, which is conducting this month its now famous "boo" handicap at Van Cortlandt Park. E. B. Davis, one of the concocters of this innovation, said last night that he had planned still another step along the same lines. It will be a "rowdy" tourney and will be held during August. Contestants may heckle their opponents in every way except by touching them while making a stroke. Dancing in front of them, popping off firecrackers behind them, and heaving things over them will be permitted. The "boo" tourney will seem tame by comparison. Another event out of the ordinary will be perpetrated by the St. Albans Golf Club, according to the schedule. This is to be a "bell and boo" competition on July 10 and 11 with earmuffs barred.

NO PRACTICE AT SEA FOR U. S. SHOOTERS

With the United States Olympic trapshooting team on English soil, the result of the English clay bird championship is anxiously awaited in this country. In 1901 and 1912 the American teams that invaded foreign ports took targets with them and rigged up a trap, and did considerable shooting going over the ocean from the stern of the ship, but the 1920 team had no such practice. About 40,000 shells and many thousands of targets were shipped to Boston, but the British owners of the ship refused to allow the cheils to be taken aboard. Ammunition is taboo on English liners these days. Instead of putting in nine days of practice as they had figured, the Americans had just that many days of idleness.

Each member of the United States team has two or more guns with him. All of the good baseball players—the ones who can hit the ball—have two or more bats; all good skaters have two or more pairs of skates; all good tennis players have at least half a dozen racquets, in fact almost every participant in every line of sport has a duplicate of the article he uses, except the trapshooter. Every trapshooter should have at least two guns, duplicates, so if anything happens to one he will have another to take its place. Guns, just like other sporting implements, have the unhappy faculty of getting out of order when they are needed most to function properly. For this reason every shooter should have a duplicate gun.

Moore to Box Wallace.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 7.—Pal Moore of Memphis and Patsy Wallace of Philadelphia will box twelve rounds here Thursday night, July 15. Their contracts were signed today. The boys will weigh 116 pounds ringside. Wallace is the boxer who knocked Jimmy Wilde down in their two bouts at Philadelphia, while Moore recently earned a well-deserved draw with Carl Tremaine, although outweighed.

MOAKLEY CONFERS WITH COMMITTEE

Newly Appointed Head Coach Discusses Training Plans with Olympic Officials.

Jack Moakley, veteran Cornell track and field coach, who has been selected as head of the Board of Coaches for the American Olympic team, yesterday conferred with members of the American Olympic Committee regarding tentative plans for the preparation and conditioning of the athletes who will be selected to wear the American shield in the Seventh Olympic Games at Antwerp, Belgium, next month.

The session was held in the morning, soon after the arrival here of Coach Moakley from Ithaca, in the office of Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the American Olympic Committee. Members of the committee present included Justice Bartow S. Weeks, who is also an American representative on the International Olympic Committee; Everett C. Brown of Chicago, Matthew P. Halpin, New York A. C., manager of the Olympic team, and Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary to the committee.

Following the conference President Kirby announced that the matters under discussion were purely technical and concerned principally transportation plans and tentative arrangements for an intensive campaign of activity which will be invoked to keep the selected athletes active from the time of their departure until their arrival at Antwerp. The plans of the committee were unfolded to the newly appointed head coach so that he might familiarize himself with events which will necessitate his consideration in the future. President Kirby also detailed conditions at Antwerp as he found them during his recent visit abroad.

A telegram was sent to Mike Ryan, Colby College coach, who has been selected to coach the marathon runners, requesting his presence at another meeting to be held tomorrow morning in President Kirby's office. Head Coach Moakley will also attend this meeting, when plans will be discussed for the conditioning of the marathon runners. It has not been determined yet whether to send the distancers to Maine for a period of training, or to keep them idle until their departure for the other side. Coach Ryan favors the training period in Maine and has already submitted the suggestion for consideration, but whether the recommendation will be followed will be decided at tomorrow's meeting.

The meeting of the Board of Coaches will be held at the final track and field tryouts at Cambridge, July 16 and 17. At this session the men intrusted with the work of conditioning the track and field athletes, including Coaches Moakley, Robertson, Delaney and Ryan, will arrange their plans for the work of the athletes on the transport during the ocean journey and after their arrival in Antwerp. The duties of each coach, it is expected, will be apportioned at this meeting.

President Kirby left last night for Washington, where he will report to army and navy and Government officials on his investigations of conditions abroad. The American Olympic Committee head will return in time for the meeting tomorrow.

Olympic Pistol Team Sails.

The All-American pistol team, which will compete in the Olympic Games at Antwerp, sailed yesterday afternoon on the transport Pocahontas. Colonel Oliver S. Snyder, U. S. A., is in charge of the party.

HAGEN IS WINNER OF FRENCH GOLF TITLE

VERSAILLES, July 7 (By the Associated Press).—Walter Hagen, the American golf champion, won the French open championship on the La Boulie links here today. Hagen defeated Lafitte of Biarritz, his French rival, in the playoff of their tie.

Hagen's total score for the two rounds of the playoff was 150, while Lafitte took 154. The American had an advantage of one stroke on the morning round, and finished the afternoon round in 75, whereas the Frenchman took 78.

In the first round this morning Hagen shot a 75 and Lafitte 76. The two finished the tournament proper on Tuesday with 298 each.

Crude Drug Prices Dropping.

Crude drug prices are still going down, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Scattered buying in small lots for immediate requirements has characterized trading in heavy chemicals of late. Mercurials have been sharply reduced by American manufacturers. The essential oils market is unsettled, although there is a well-defined upward trend in lemon oil in the primary market. In the dyestuffs end there were sharp advances in benzene, toluene and solvent naphtha.

Records for Retailers.

Several retail and style authorities have received requests from a large phonograph company asking them to prepare talks on various subjects. It is proposed to make records of these short speeches and distribute them to retail stores, dressmakers and others. Among the subjects to be discussed in this way will be the origin of styles, personnel work, and salesmanship. The records will be available for merchants who wish to have representative speakers talk to their salespeople or to their customers.

Finer Goods May Be Short.

If there is any scarcity of woolens as a result of mill curtailment, some buyers figure it will develop on the finer goods. However, the danger of such a shortage is not causing much worry for the simple reason that, if high priced garments do not find a ready sale, there is little chance of any large demand on fabrics of the better class. On the other hand, there are buyers who think that the outlook is for a shortage of neither the best nor the poorest materials. The "hole" that may need filling in their opinion is in fabrics of a medium quality.

Gray Goods Still Wavering.

Gray goods prices eased off a little further in this market yesterday, when first hands sold 38½-inch 64-60s at 20¼ cents for spot delivery. Other interesting print cloth sales were lacking, although some Eastern 38½-inch 60-48s were sold at 19 cents for prompt shipment. This construction, in the case of goods held in the East, is one of the firmest in the market at the moment. In the sheetings some prompt business was done in 5.50s at 15¼ cents, but aside from that there was little of interest.

Children's Dresses Cheaper.

Reductions in the price of children's dresses were announced yesterday by several manufacturers located in the Infants' and Children's Wear Division of the Bush Terminal Sales Building. Dresses in sizes 2 to 6 years and 6 to 14 years are reduced. In both ranges the dresses are gingham, but in the latter they are also of serge. Gingham dresses in the 2 to 6 range that formerly sold for $51 a dozen are now priced at $45. In the 6 to 14 sizes the price has dropped from $30 to $27 a dozen. Serge dresses for girls around 14, if taken in all assortments, are reduced from $69 to $63 a dozen.

Clothing Specialties Not Hit.

The wave of clothing cancellations did not do so much damage to specialty lines or to some of the better class of imported men's wear. A representative of a prominent English clothing house stated yesterday that, while a few revisions were received at first, these orders were afterward reinstated. In his opinion, the makers of the cheaper grades of clothing have been chiefly hit because their customers are not of the dependable sort but frequently change their sources of supply. Houses that have an established trade, he said, are not in such a bad way from cancellations as the general situation might indicate.

Where Courtesy Is Lacking.

One of the things that is still lacking in the average department store, according to an authority on matters pertaining to them, is courtesy on the part of the clerks in one department to those in other departments that come there to buy. The clerks behind the counters are too prone, he says, to regard shopping clerks as nuisances and persons to be rid of with the scantest ceremony. With many stores employing selling forces ranging from several hundred to several thousands, he contends that to get and keep the bulk of their trade is a good stroke of business for the store. Unless a shopping clerk receives the same attention as an "outsider," however, she will take her trade to some other stores, despite the discount usually allowed to employes.

Need Time for Revision.

Though it is quite generally believed in the woolen trade that the present crisis through which the industry is passing will lead to the adoption of a signed order to prevent cancellations in the future, nevertheless some doubt is expressed concerning the ability of the trade to enforce a binding contract. The best results, in the opinion of one mill representative, might follow an adaptation of the present method by allowing a time limit for the confirmation of orders after which they would be considered binding. It is impossible for buyers, he said, to give a signed order immediately after their selection of fabrics, because the same material might be bought in two or three places. Time is needed, he explained, in which to compare the selections made. After this, the buyer might be willing to put his name on the order.

Fall Garment Makers Ready.

Next week marks the end of the scheduled curtailment of operations in the women's garment lines. The manufacturers of coats, suits, dresses, skirts and waists agreed some weeks ago to stop cutting up goods so that a surplus of merchandise might not be created. This action was not general, but was taken by quite a fair percentage of the trade. With the renewal of operations the manufacturers are expected to follow a very careful policy and not produce very much more than they have actual orders to account for. While they appear willing to co-operate with the retail buyers and keep profits very small, there is a very strong feeling against losing legitimate margins so that the stores may be sure of inflated returns. In other words, the wholesalers have seen no such sacrifices on the part of the stores as to warrant them in selling goods at a loss.

A New Kind of Selling.

The sales manager of one of the big local knit goods houses recently received a letter from a retailer in the Middle West canceling some Spring goods which were still due. In the same letter was a liberal order for similar merchandise for Fall delivery. Although the goods to be canceled were overdue, the sales manager, as a matter of principle, would not accept the cancellation. The retailer replied that in that case he would withdraw his Fall order. The knit goods man said he would not like to have that happen, and offered to accept the Fall order with reductions in certain styles made from it to the extent that they were still due for Spring. The retailer refused to listen to this and the Fall order was returned by the sales manager. Yesterday, however, it came back a second time with the reductions made as suggested.

BACARDI TREASURER HELD ON RUM COUNT

TWO VIOLATORS ARE FINED

Pay $150 Each in Court and Lose $5,000 Auto Ordered Sold at Public Auction.

The investigation by the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn into the affairs of the Bacardi Corporation of 267 West Broadway, with particular reference to the distribution of the "wet" stock among the shareholders after the firm dissolved last March, resulted yesterday in the indictment of David S. DeJongh, Secretary and Treasurer of the corporation, on a charge of transporting liquor without a permit. Through his attorney, ex-Justice Luke D. Stapleton, DeJongh pleaded not guilty and was released by Judge Chatfield in $1,000 bail for appearance Oct. 6.

The indictment is an outcome of the seizure by the police, about three weeks ago, of 193 cases of Bacardi rum on a truck near Hollis, L. I., and the subsequent seizure by United States Marshal Power of Brooklyn, of 303 cases of rum and other liquors in the cellar of the Hollis wood Hall, a roadhouse at Hollis. The truckload of rum was said to be in transit to the roadhouse. John E. Tench, proprietor of the hotel, was arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

The driver of the truck and two assistants were arrested on a charge of transporting liquor without a permit. The driver declared he had a legitimate permit.

State Prohibition Director Chas. R. O'Connor, on May 21, last, issued a permit to the Bacardi Corporation for the transportation of the liquor to stockholders "of this date." According to United States Attorney Leroy W. Ross, Tench did not become a stockholder until later.

There was another clash yesterday between the office of United States Attorney Ross and that of James Shevlin, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent for this State. Prohibition agents Tuesday night went to two saloons, in Brooklyn, where they allege they bought whisky. They handed the proprietors subpoenas, it was said, requiring them to appear yesterday before Federal Attorney Caffey in Manhattan. Assistant Federal Attorney Richard J. Barry, acting under instructions from Mr. Ross, telephoned to J. B. Quigley, Assistant Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent, and told him to instruct his men to arrest saloonkeepers when any evidence was procured against them. Mr. Ross said to one of the agents in question when he appeared later in his office: "I'll stand no more of such nonsense. Either arrest a man or leave him alone."

Louis Crochnut and Fritz Wilmot of Long Island City, arrested in March while transporting liquor said to have been intended for a dinner in honor of Sheriff George of Queens, pleaded guilty before Judge Chatfield yesterday and were fined $150 each. The automobile they used was a new $5,000 car and it was ordered sold at public auction by United States Marshal Power.

United States Marshal Power is holding 250 cases of whisky pending inquiry into the validity of the permit for its removal. Detective Imperial accosted a truck of the Hamilton Trucking Company, on Henry Street, near Harrison, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, and the driver produced a permit authorizing the removal of liquor from the warehouse of Samuel Levine, 274 Court Street, to the home of "a party" at 642 Hicks Street. It appeared to the detective that the delivery address had been tampered with, and he took the driver and the truck to the Marshal's office.

Policeman Jeremiah J. Murphy seized a truck containing forty-eight cases of whisky at Fourteenth Avenue and Fifty-first Street, Parkville, early yesterday. Three men on the truck were arrested and held by Commissioner McCabe in $500 bail each for transporting liquor without a permit. The men gave their names as Saul Sternberg of 428 St. Paul's Place, Flatbush; Louis Fox, 999 Freeman Street, Bronx, and Ralph Keschler of 1,477 Longfellow Avenue, Bronx. Brooklyn detectives believe the whisky was intended for Coney Island.

Charged with the larceny of two cases of gin from a consignment of 1,900 cases en route to Havana, Thomas Hernon, thirty-three years old, a carpenter on the steamship Verdulla of the Cunard Line, lying at Pier 32, North River, was locked up in the Beach Street Police Station last night. Detectives of the Cunard Line said that one case of the missing gin was found in the compartment of the ship's carpenter. Some of the bottles from the other case, detectives said, had been sold to men working along the waterfront. Hernon's home is in Ireland.

JURY SLACKERS FINED $100.

Sixteen Men Punished by Judge Nott for Ignoring Summons.

Judge Charles C. Nott of General Sessions imposed fines of $100 each yesterday on sixteen men on the Grand Jury panel who had failed to appear in response to the summons to Grand Jury duty.

Judge Nott said their failure to appear had made it necessary to select for duty on the regular July Grand Jury and the additional Grand Jury several men who offered legal excuses which would ordinarily have been accepted. The men fined were the following:

Ferdinand Hecht, retired, 838 West End Avenue.

George W. Enright, manager, 90 Morningside Avenue.

Bertram G. Goodhue, architect, 106 East Seventy-fourth Street.

All these men were on the regular July Grand Jury panel of fifty. The names of the eight persons who follow and who were fined were on the additional Grand Jury panel for July:

William H. Dalson, real estate, 181 West Eighty-seventh Street.

Bernard Hirsh, retired, 375 West End Avenue.

REFUSES TO DO JURY DUTY.

"I'm Too Busy," Exporter Tells Judge, and Walks Away.

When Ingo Maddaus, an exporter, who lives at 121 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, appeared in the County Court, Brooklyn, yesterday in answer to a summons to jury duty, he refused to serve and walked out of the courtroom.

"I am too busy," Maddaus told Judge McDermott, when asked why he wished to be excused.

"There are other jurors here who are also busy," said the court, "but they are willing to do service. If you don't serve you will face the payment of a fine.

"Well, I can't serve," replied Maddaus as he left the courtroom.

Judge McDermott said he would determine later what he would do in the matter.

WAR TABLET UNVEILED.

Ceremony at Best & Co. Commemorates Services of 44 Employes.

Francis M. Tonetti's bronze tablet commemorating the services of the 44 employes of Best & Co., Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, who served in the war, was unveiled yesterday before the store opened for business, in the presence of 1,400 employes and executives and their friends. The tablet was said to have been the last work of Tonetti. It was purchased by Ancell H. Ball and T. Arthur Ball, President and Vice President, respectively, of Best's and presented to the Patriotic Society of the store.

W. T. Bryans, President of the Patriotic Society, made an address and Dr. Frank Crane spoke on Americanism. The general manager of the firm, Philip Le Boutillier, also spoke. Ten-year-old Norma Mulford unveiled the memorial, which has been erected at the Thirty-fifth Street entrance. The list of heroes contains the names of two who did not return from France. These are John McNeil and F. J. Shanahan.

$500 FOR FALSE ARREST.

Guest at Card Game Wins Suit Against Host.

A sheriff's jury returned a verdict for $500, yesterday, for Samuel Goldstein, of 620 East Eleventh Street, against Jacob Levitzky, as the result of incidents following a lively pinochle game in Goldstein's home on April 6, last, when Levitzky accused him of having a card up his sleeve. Levitzky was struck in the eye, and he then arrested Goldstein and took him to a nearby police station. In police court Goldstein was discharged for lack of evidence, and he sued Levitzky for $5,000 damages for false arrest. Levitzky did not answer the suit and for that reason the case was heard by a sheriff's jury.

FORTRESS OF ROVNO CAPTURED BY REDS

WHOLE FRONT THROWN BACK

Warsaw Admits Retirement in Face of Greatest Attack Made by the Soviet Armies.

LONDON, July 7.—The fortress of Rovno, one of the famous triangle of fortresses in Volhynia to the east of Dubno and Lutsk, has fallen into Bolshevist hands, it is announced in the Soviet communique for Tuesday, received by wireless from Moscow today.

In capturing Rovno from the Poles the Bolsheviki took 1,000 prisoners, two armored trains, two tanks, two 6-inch guns and a train with locomotives. The communique adds:

"In the direction of Proskurvo (south of Rovno) we broke through the fortified zone and are driving the enemy back along the railway in the direction of Tarnopol and Lemberg."

BERLIN, July 7.—The Polish front from the Pripet to the Carpathians has completely collapsed and the situation is most serious, the semi-official Allgemeine Zeitung says it learns authoritatively. The Russian push southward from Kiev and Rovno has met with only slight opposition.

A Warsaw dispatch to the Frankfort Zeitung says the Bolsheviki have begun an offensive on the north front, to the north of the Molodechno-Polotsk Railway, but their first attempt to break through has failed.

WARSAW, July 6 (Associated Press)—Along a front of approximately 720 miles, the Russian Bolsheviki have launched the greatest attack they have ever hurled against the Polish lines. On the northern and southern flanks the Poles are retiring in the face of superior enemy forces, the attack on the northern sector being the most severe of the struggle on this front.

Faced with the necessity of shortening their lines, the Poles have begun a withdrawal at all points.

The Bolshevist offensive is heaviest on the northern sectors of the front, and it is not known here to what extent the Poles have been forced to retreat. Northeast of Rovno the Bolsheviki have advanced, cutting the railroad to Kovel. General Budenny continues his raids in this region.

Severe fighting is going on along the right flank of the Polish line and also on the Beresina front, where the Soviet army has brought up large reinforcements.

JAPAN SHIFTS POLICY ON "BUFFER STATE"

Will Not Negotiate for One With Siberian Governments, Uchida Tells the Diet.

TOKIO, July 7 (Associated Press.)—A change in Japan's policy with regard to the "buffer State" in Siberia was indicated by a statement made in the Diet today by Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister.

Referring to Siberia, Viscount Uchida declared the Government had no intention of securing the establishment of a buffer State by negotiating either with the Vladivostok or the Verkhne-Udinsk Government.

As regards General Semenoff, the Cossack anti-Bolshevist leader, the Foreign Minister said that the Allies having been desirous of aiding the moderate elements in Russia to help in that country's reconstruction, Japan even now had no intention of forsaking General Semenoff, although naturally she would not ask any assistance from him.

Peace negotiations were conducted late in May between Japan and the Far Eastern republic, but a dispatch from Verkhne-Udinsk, the seat of Government of that republic, received June 18, said that the negotiations had been broken off on June 2 without any agreement having been reached. It had been proposed by the Far Eastern republic to recognize a Japanese sphere of influence in a wide belt of territory east of Lake Baikal. It was announced from Tokio on July 3, however, that Japan had decided to withdraw her troops from the Trans-Baikal region.

Burglar Slips Out of Mess Hall at New Hampton.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW CITY, N. Y., July 7.—When the guards of the model New York City Reformatory at New Hampton counted noses at the breakfast table this morning they discovered that Walter Morris, a burglar, was missing.

Morris was a trusty whose prison employment was laboring in the adjoining fields. He had stolen a suit of civilian clothes and slipped out of the mess hall and was off the grounds before keepers missed him.

Major Sidney Brewster, the Warden, sounded the alarm, and all roads leading from the reformatory were watched, but no trace of the runaway was found.

Morris had served sixteen months and had four more to serve for burglary committed in the Bronx. He is 20 years old, and is called by the keepers a "chronic thief."

Miller asserts that he went directly home after quitting work Monday and spent the greater part of the night at the billiard room with friends.

ARMOUR COMPANY TO CUT A MELON

Equivalent of 100 Per Cent. Dividend on Common Stock Under New Financial Plan.

MOST OF IT GOES TO FAMILY

Capital Stock to be $400,000,000, an Increase of $190,000,000.

TO REDUCE FLOATING DEBT

Recapitalization Plan a Few Years Ago Gave Shareholders a 400 Per Cent. Dividend.

Plans for the financing and recapitalization of Armour & Co. were announced yesterday. The plans call for an increase in the company's stock from the present authorized capitalization of $210,000,000, of which $128,390,600 is outstanding, to an authorized capital of $400,000,000, of which $232,350,600 will be immediately outstanding, and the sale of $60,000,000 ten-year 7 per cent. convertible gold notes which are to be convertible into new stock which is to be known as Class A common stock.

As part of the recapitalization program the stock of the company is to be reclassified. At present there is $150,000,000 authorized, of which $100,000,000 is outstanding common stock, substantially all of which is owned by the Armour family, and $60,000,000 authorized preferred stock, of which $28,350,600 is outstanding. In place of these issues there are to be issued $100,000,000 in 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, $150,000,000 Class A common stock and $150,000,000 Class B common stock. Of the preferred $52,350,600 will be issued at once, while $50,000,000 of the Class A common and all of the Class B common will be immediately issued. The preferred stock is to be of $100 par, while both classes of common stock will have par value of $25 per share.

Of the new preferred stock $7,649,400 is to be reserved to provide for the conversion of a like amount of 8 per cent. serial gold debentures, which were issued in 1918, and $60,000,000 of the Class A common stock is to be held for the conversion of the new ten-year note issue. This latter stock will have preference over the Class B stock as to cash dividends up to 8 per cent. each year, and after 8 per cent. has been paid on the Class B stock in any one year both classes of common stock will share equally in whatever excess earnings may accrue. Holders of common stock of Armour & Co. will be asked to exchange their present $100 par value stock for two shares of Class A and one share of Class B common stock, which will have an aggregate par value of $200, thus giving what virtually amounts to 100 per cent. stock dividend to holders of the present common stock.

A banking syndicate has been organized to underwrite the $60,000,000 ten-year notes. This syndicate is composed of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, the Chase Securities Corporation, Halsey, Stuart & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company and the National City Company of New York and the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. The notes will be offered at 94.84, to yield about 7¾ per cent. They will be dated July 15, 1920, and will be redeemable at 105 and interest, or may be converted, after Jan. 15, 1921, at par, into the new Class A common stock. The plan above has been discussed for some days and all but the final details had been known.

The new financing, it is believed, will do much to reduce the floating indebtedness of Armour & Co., which has been very great in the past, and still is large. For a number of years the company financed itself largely through the sale of its commercial paper and it is said that Armour & Co. paper has, at one time or another, found lodgement in nearly every bank in the country. By the immediate acquisition of $230,000,000 new capital, the company will be able to reduce its floating debt and place itself in stronger financial position. In the announcement made yesterday regarding the new arrangements, it was stated that all of the proceeds of the $60,000,000 note issue would be used to reduce current liabilities, in other words, the volume of commercial paper outstanding.

This is the second recapitalization of Armour & Co. within the last four years. In October, 1916, the stock capital was increased from $20,000,000 to $100,000,000, all of one class, and the additional $80,000,000 stock created at that time was given to shareholders, almost exclusively the Armour family, as a stock dividend of 400 per cent. Again on Aug. 23, 1918, the capital was increased, this time to $210,000,000 authorized, by advancing the volume of common stock to $150,000,000 and the creation of an issue of $60,000,000 authorized preferred stock. None of the additional common stock authorized at that time, and only $28,390,600 of the preferred, has been issued.

COPENHAGEN, July 7. — The result of the elections of the Folkething yesterday was a confirmation of the victory gained in April last over the Radical-Socialist parties, the Liberals and Conservatives obtaining eighty-one representatives and the Radicals and Socialists only fifty-eight.

In the new Folkething the Government parties gained two seats.

The elections were necessary in order to confirm alterations in the constitutional law which the reunion of Slesvig to Denmark necessitated.

Slesvig will vote on July 30 next.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 7.—Charles H. Clark, 66 years old, a wealthy whip manufacturer of Westfield, Mass., died in the City Hospital today as the result of an attempt to commit suicide yesterday afternoon. He locked himself in a washroom in the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, and fired a bullet from a heavy service revolver into his temple.

Clark came here with his wife a month ago suffering a nervous breakdown and made the attempt on his life while Mrs. Clark was out on the boardwalk. One of his sons, Dana, lives in New York.

French Court Upholds The F. J. Gould Divorce

PARIS, July 7.—The Court of Appeal today upheld the decision of the lower courts granting Frank Jay Gould a divorce from Edith Kelly Gould.

Mr. Gould obtained a divorce from Edith Kelly Gould in Paris in 1919. Later Mrs. Gould attempted to have the decree annulled on the ground that the French courts were without jurisdiction owing to the fact that she was a resident of the United States.

The court in that case overruled her plea and sustained the decree granted to Mr. Gould. The case was then carried to the Court of Appeal with the result that the previous rulings in Mr. Gould's favor have been sustained.

OWNERS AND SEAMEN CLASH IN CONFERENCE

Hard Fight Wages Over the Eight-Hour Day at Inter-Allied Labor Meeting.

GENOA, Italy, July 6.—Representatives of the seamen and ship owners clashed at today's session of the International Seamen's Conference when Cuthbert Law, representing British ship owners, presented an amendment providing that the eight-hour day and forty-eight-hour week should be applied only when vessels are in port.

Mr. Law said: "The forty-eight-hour week would mean destruction of the merchant marine, which is the greatest asset of the British Empire, and raise thereon the black flag of discontent."

A representative of the British seamen, MacVay, retaliated by asserting that the ship owners had been the greatest exploiters and had gained millions during the war.

"If you do not treat seamen as they deserve, it is not a question of the black flag, but of the red flag of revolution," he declared. This was applauded by the seamen's delegates.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, Italy, July 7.—After lengthily discussing inland navigation, unemployment, minimum wage, employment of children at sea, international maritime code, and losing as much as a day in defining that a vessel is a vessel, and another day as to whether a child is a child up to twelve or twenty-one years of age, the Marine Conference has at last tackled what it was primarily convened to decide, namely, hours of labor.

Preliminary passages of arms pointed that the sitting concerning this subject would be stormy and far from the dull and lifeless affairs so many others had been.

The English delegation took the lead all along both sides, both shipowners and seamen. The former headed by Cuthbert Laws, predicted that the black flag of anarchy would be raised if the eight-hour day should be passed. The latter, led by McVey, said the red flag of Bolshevism would wave if the sailors did not get their rights. Both parties were loudly applauded by the shipowners and seamen of other countries.

The nations most vitally touched by this convention are England, Japan and Scandinavia, the biggest maritime powers present at the conference. The Japanese lose no opportunity of demonstrating that they are the strongest maritime power after England, now that America is not participating in the work of the Inter-Labor Conference.

Fighting tooth and nail, catching at every straw, the shipowners mitigate the demands of the seamen, which they consider ruinous for their countries. To apply the eight-hour day principle, in a year, the shipowners declare, they would have to stop all vessels and accommodate readjustment to new exigencies. This would mean the stoppage of traffic over the whole world excepting America, with consequent suffering.

But although they fight against a rising tide, the seamen are slowly but surely gaining ground, as has been demonstrated by Cuthbert Laws's withdrawal of his amendment, which consisted in applying the eight-hour day and forty-eight hour week only when vessels were in port. The amendment caused excitement and protests even among the Government delegates. Monsignor Nolens, the Dutch Government delegate, called it "The Irony of Sabotage." Colmo, the Argentine Government delegate, and the whole Argentine delegation unconditionally supported the eight-hour day and forty-eight hour week. Colmo said that in his country it had long ago been applied, and in some cases even a six-hour day.

Threats had been so general of strikes and even worse contingencies should this principle not be applied, and the warning has been so often repeated that ship owners had better accept conditions now it is expected they will eventually be defeated.

Several speakers voiced the fear that the countries who have not joined the League of Nations, especially America, may seriously compete in maritime trade. The speakers warned the nations to be on their guard.

CARL WANDERER IN A CELL.

Chicago Police Find New Mystery in Killing of Lieutenant's Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Lieutenant Carl Wanderer, who less than three weeks ago was being praised for his bravery in killing an unidentified man who, he said, had murdered Mrs. Wanderer, is today in a cell of the Central Police Station as the principal figure in what the police called "the most mysterious murder case Chicago has had in years."

Early in the morning of June 22 neighbors aroused by shots in the vestibule of the Wanderer apartment found the Lieutenant with a pistol in his hand standing over the bodies of his wife and a roughly dressed young man. The man was dead and Mrs. Wanderer was unconscious and dying.

Wanderer said that the man, whom no one has yet identified, had followed him and his wife into the vestibule as they were returning from a theatre and ordered them to hold up their hands.

"My wife started to turn on the light and he shot her. Then I shot and killed him," Wanderer added.

The detectives found a pistol lying beside the dead man in the vestibule. They accepted Wanderer's statements and the case seemed closed. But a careful tracing of the pistol supposed to have been used by the unidentified man showed that Wanderer had become the owner of the weapon two weeks before the shooting, while he had purchased the other revolver while he was in the army.

TWO SHOT IN APARTMENT.

Police Believe Woman Killed Man and Then Attempted Suicde.

Arthur Blume, 25 years old, of 508 East 83th Street, was found mortally wounded with two bullet wounds in his head lying in the hallway of his apartments last night, and Lillian Erats, of 417 East 78th Street, was found unconscious in the kitchen of the apartment with a bullet wound in her right temple by the police of the East 88th Street station when they broke into the apartment after being notified by neigabors that several shots had been fired in the rooms. Both were hurried to Bellevue Hospital where Blume died without regaining consciousness. The girl is in a critical condition.

The revolver with three used cartridges was found lying on the floor beside the girl in the kitchen. The police believe the girl fired the two shots which killed Blume as he was trying to run from the apartment and then turned the weapon on herself.

Mrs. Sadie Bruhang, a sister of Miss Erats, told the police her sister was a bookkeeper and had known Blume for about two months. She said there was no great friendship between them and scouted the idea that her sister had killed Blume and then attempted suicide.

HARKNESS ESTATE SHRINKS $11,000,000

Outstanding Bills for Gifts to Wife Include Items Aggregating Nearly $400,000.

Harry S. Harkness, who died suddenly of pneumonia, on Jan. 23, 1919, left an estate of only $8,943,362 net, according to the appraisal filed yesterday, instead of $20,000,000 which had been estimated as the value. While the gross amount of his property was $14,471,752, he had debts of $4,784,337, and the administration expenses are estimated at $490,000. The funeral expenses were $5,827.

The report of Appraiser Berwin shows that many of the debts were for jewels purchased for his wife, Mrs. Florence Steuber Harkness, whom he married Nov. 5, 1917, ten days after she had divorced David Huyler Gaines, nephew of the late John S. Huyler, and for the furnishings of the apartment in which he died at 270 Park Avenue, which he presented fully furnished to his wife as a Christmas gift in December, 1918.

The appraisal also reveals that the share of Mr. Harkness in the estate of his father, Lamon V. Harkness, which went equally to himself and his sisters, Mrs. Leta Edwards and Mrs. Myrtle H. Maccomber, was about $15,000,000 instead of more than $30,000,000 as was estimated. An allowance of from $300,000 to $450,000 for legal expenses was asked for by the executors, Mrs. Harkness and John W. MacMiller, because of the suits of Mrs. Marie M. Cowan, former wife of Mr. Harkness, to recover the entire estate for herself on the ground that he made a will in her favor in 1908 and that he was not competent to make the will when he executed the document on the day he died giving the estate to Mrs. Florence S. Harkness. The estate is also defending a suit for $2,000,000 brought by the county officials at Lexington, Ky., to recover back taxes of about $6,000,000 from the estate of Lamon V. Harkness on the ground that after his death his heirs claimed that he was a resident of Kentucky and avoided paying a transfer tax in this State and in California, both of which claimed him as a resident.

Lost Heavily at Sheepshead Bay.

The report shows that the purchase of the Sheepshead Bay racetrack property for the construction of the automobile speedway resulted in a heavy loss. The property is appraised at $1,474,845, and is said to have cost Mr. Harkness more than $5,000,000. The expense of conducting the speedway exceeded the receipts by $330,065 in 1916-1917, and by $279,869 from June 1, 1917, to Dec. 31 of that year. The property was sold recently for building lots. The only realty owned by Mr. Harkness other than the speedway property was a third interest in 65 East Seventy-sixth Street, valued at $14,134.

The assets of the estate included $454,676 in cash and a mortgage for $100,000 by the Brighton Beach Racing Association. Among the personal effects were a moosehead, $250; elk head, $500; four automobiles, $1,500; bass drum, $15, and snare drum, $10. The most valuable articles of jewelry were a pair of gold cuff links with ruby centre, set with four brilliants on each side, $1,000, and a diamond and sapphire ring, $750.

Appraiser Berwin upheld the contention of Mrs. Harkness that all the furnishings in the apartment and everything but her husband's clothing and jewelry belonged to her, and based his decision on testimony given by a score of persons who were intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harkness. Max B. Ziegler said he told Mr. Harkness he was "spending a world of money" on the furnishing of the apartment and that Mr. Harkness replied:

"Max, this is my gift to Florence and I want her to have the best there is."

Tells of Gifts to Wife.

Mrs. Ida M. Douglas, 15 West Fifty-fifth Street, who said she dined four nights a week with Mr. and Mrs. Harkness, testified that he asked her if she did not think he was doing well and displaying good taste for her [his wife's] benefit, and what I thought of his gifts." Mrs. Douglas said she knew Mrs. Harkness considered that everything in the apartment had been given to her by her husband, because one night in a talk with Mrs. Harkness in the latter's boudoir Mrs. Harkness said:

"I think I am very foolish not to make a will. One can never tell what may happen. Here I have all these beautiful things Harry is giving me all the time, and I am most certainly going to make a will at the first opportunity."

Other friends testified that Mr. Harkness said to them concerning his wife:

"Don't you think she ought to be very happy? I have given her everything I have."

An accountant who examined and audited the bills for the construction and furnishing of the Park Avenue apartment commented on the expense, to which Mr. Harkness replied:

"I am giving her all this as a wedding present so she will have something for herself and can always look back on a happy married life."

Mr. Harkness told his friend Mr. MacMiller, whom he named as an executor, that he would not have furnished the apartment so elaborately for himself, but that he was doing it for his wife, and "if the apartment makes her happy she is welcome to it." The total value of his effects in the apartment was only $6,467.

Bulk of Estate in Securities.

The bulk of the estate consisted of securities valued at $12,030,428, most of which were Standard Oil shares. The largest blocks of these stocks were 4,400 Standard of California, $1,179,200; 1,834 Standard of Indiana, $1,007,170; 4,400 Standard of New Jersey, $3,027,200, and 3,734 Standard of New York, $1,168,742. Other large stock holdings were 3,200 International Harvester common, $352,000, and 1,900 preferred, $224,000; 2,334 New York Central, $168,048, and 6,175 Pennsylvania Railroad, $277,830. He held five notes of the Gramercy Chocolate Company, amounting to $106,500.

Mr. Harkness's debts for gifts to his wife included the following: Cartier's, $200,155, for pearls and sapphires; Dreicer & Co., $60,390, for jewels; Costikyan & Co., $34,864, for rugs; the Thonet-Wanner Co., $52,399, for furniture; Tiffany & Co., $50,537, for jewelry, and Engelhardt's studios, $5,774, for laces.

Mr Harkness owed the Stock Exchange firm of Jesup & Lamont $2,001,681 and had securities worth $3,936,057 deposited as collateral. Debts to banks were: Chase National, $1,500,000; Fifth Avenue, $347,000, and the Harriman National, $60,000.

It is estimated that the estate will pay a Federal inheritance tax of $1,700,000. Inheritance taxes paid in other States were: New Jersey, $60,445; Kentucky, $8,938; Utah, $7,900, and California, $38,338.

Grateful Turk Saved American Women By Delaying Shelling of Their Compound

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 2 (Associated Press).—The gratitude of Enver Bey, a Nationalist machine gun commander, who had been nursed back to life by Miss Mary Super of Narberth, Pa., a Red Cross nurse detailed with the American Commission for Relief in the Near East, made possible the escape of the relief workers from the American Board mission buildings in Hadjin thirty minutes before the Nationalists turned their artillery on the structures and destroyed them on June 13.

This fact became known today with the arrival here of Miss Super, Miss Katharine Bredemus of South Bend, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Eby of Didsbury, Alberta, from the Hadjin district. The bare news of their escape had preceded them by a few days.

Miss Edith Cold of Cleveland escaped with the other relief workers, but remained in Caesarea in the hope of being able to give further aid to the Armenian orphans who had been under the workers' care at Hadjin, while Miss Alice Clark, another of the workers from Hadjin, is at Samsun recovering from the exhaustion of the long trip on mule-back through the mountains of Anatolia.

The relief workers maintained neutrality in the fighting between the Armenians and Turks, which opened March 29. The Turks took charge of the American compound, fortifying between it and Hadjin in such manner that whenever the Armenians fired upon the Turks the compound was peppered.

Under daily fire, the relief workers protected the orphans until June 9, when Armenian troops from Hadjin defeated the Turks and captured the orphanage. The Armenians took the orphans into Hadjin despite the protests of the Americans, who had hoped to persuade the Nationalists to take the orphans to a safer place than Hadjin, which was short of food and ammunition and could not resist the Nationalists long.

After the Armenians withdrew with the orphans the Americans were in grave danger, as many of the Nationalist leaders believed the Americans had helped the Armenian military effort.

Hadjin was under bombardment of the Nationalists for several days. Enver Bey, in his gratitude to Miss Super, persuaded his associates not to fire on the buildings occupied by the Americans and the bombardment was checked until messengers had warned the relief workers and led them to the shelter of the mountain side, where they watched shells wreck the bullet-riddled buildings which had sheltered them through the ten weeks' siege.

The Nationalists took the Americans into their camp and gave them every comfort. They provided mules to carry the relief workers to Caesarea. Thence the party traveled by motor truck to Samsun.

Hadjin has an Armenian population of 5,000 with about a thousand armed men who are making their own ammunition. The city, according to the relief workers, is completely surrounded by Nationalists, consisting chiefly of bandits.

"Black Face" Robbers Hold Up Two Messengers in Chicago Street.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Twenty thousand dollars in bank notes was the loot obtained this morning by "black face bandits," the first of the type to appear in Chicago, when they robbed two messengers of the Community State Bank and escaped in a touring car. The police have found no trace of their whereabouts, and, suspecting collusion, have arrested the two messengers.

Ira Saltzman and Emmanuel Dry, the messengers, were in a sedan car on their way from their bank to the Standard Trust and Savings Bank. Saltzman had a loaded revolver at his side. The currency was wrapped in a parcel.

At Ashland Boulevard and Polk Street a touring car rounded the corner and forced the sedan to the curb. A man, whose face was smeared with black grease paint, leaped to the running board of the bank's car and smashed the window with his bare fist.

Saltzman reached for his revolver, but his wrist was seized by the bandit and the revolver fell to the floor. The messengers found themselves gazing into the muzzle of another revolver held close to their faces.

"Come along over with that bundle, sonny!" ordered a husky voice. "There ain't no time to lose."

A crash followed and another of the robbers reached through the back window and seized the money.

The bandits leaped back into their own machine and sped along the avenue to Jackson Boulevard, where the car took the corner on two heels and disappeared.

The affair was over in an instant. Scores of automobiles and pedestrians had been passing, but no one had noticed anything out of the ordinary.

Saltzman noticed the license number of the pirate car, which was found later to have been stolen from the makers.

Samuel B. Wechsler, President of the bank, recalled that a year ago one of his runners was stopped at an Elevated station, shot by bandits and robbed of $7,100.

HENRY FREE IN $10,000 BAIL.

Former Police Inspector, Convicted of Perjury, Counsels "Trusty."

Ex-Inspector Dominick Henry, who has been a prisoner in the Tombs since his conviction on the charge of perjury, was released yesterday on bail of $10,000 furnished by James S. Reardon, a truckman, 237 South Street, following the issuance of a certificate of reasonable doubt on Tuesday by Supreme Court Justice Donnelly. He refused to make any statement for publication.

Before leaving the Tombs, he looked up "Jimmy the trusty," known as 26071, who has written a motion picture scenario entitled "Eighteen Years as a Con Man," which he read to the former police official. After shaking hands with him the former Inspector said:

"Go straight, Jimmy, my boy. Watch your step."

Opium Suspects Held for $1,000.

Mrs. Rose Martin, Frank Coletti, Daniel Tazzi, Peter Silvio and Edward Riggeo, who were arrested Tuesday night in a raid on an alleged opium den in a tenement house in Allen Street, were held in $1,000 bail each by Magistrate Nolan in the Essex Market Court yesterday on a charge of having narcotics.

Harry Schneider, a parole officer, informed the Magistrate that Silvio escaped last October from the New Hampton Farm for Narcotic Addicts with six other men and had evaded the police ever since.

MRS. D. M. BEDELL ENDS LIFE IN PARK

OTHER WOMEN ACCUSED

Husband, Reputed to be a Millionaire, Was Author of "Near Side Stop" Traffic Ordinance.

Mrs. Sally Bedell, wife of Daniel M. Bedell, an insurance broker and former Alderman, reputed to be a millionaire, killed herself by drowning in Central Park Lake, near Seventy-second Street and the West Drive, about midnight Tuesday.

A brown velour cloak and a vanity case which she had left on the shore of the lake attracted the attention of Policeman George Cross and directly resulted in the finding of the body, which was floating in shallow water fifty feet from the brim. On cards fearby she had written:

"I am the wife of Daniel M. Bedell; you will find him at the Republican Club, at 741 Fifth Avenue, or at 51 Chambers Street. I have stuck to him in adversity, but when prosperity came he sought others. These are the names of women who helped break up my home. [Names withheld by the police.] I can be identified by anybody at the Garden City Hotel or by any prominent business house in this city."

Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, said it was clearly a case of self-destruction and that there was no necessity for an autopsy.

Mr. Bedell was said by friends and business associates to be out of town on a business trip. The body was identified in the Central Park Arsenal by Henry A. Capell, secretary to Mr. Bedell, and removed by his orders to an undertaker's. Mr. Capell said he had been out of touch with Mr. Bedell for several days and did not know how to reach him. He added that although he knew Mr. and Mrs. Bedell had been living apart for about a year he had no knowledge of any formal separation. He described Mrs. Bedell as a highly emotional woman, given to nervous outbursts. She and her husband had been married twenty-five years. She was about 50. They had no children.

A search for Mr. Bedell by a reporter was unsuccessful. At the Republican Club it was said he called for his mail occasionally. At 741 Fifth Avenue it was said he had given up his apartment on May 1. At 51 Chambers Street it was said he hadn't been seen since Friday.

At the Garden City Hotel it was said that Mr. Bedell never had been a guest there, but that Mrs. Bedell had lived there a month after she closed her cottage nearby about three months ago. Capell said that Mrs. Bedell had been living at the Forest Hills Inn.

Mr. Bedell is well and favorably known among politicians and downtown business men. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen from the 17th District in 1913, when he inherited an estate estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000 from his father, the late Abner K. Bedell. Shortly afterward he retired from the board and went into his present business.

As Chairman of the Public Thoroughfares Committee, which regulates traffic, he introduced the "near side stop" ordinance that now is effective. According to accounts published when he was an Alderman, he is related to the family of Peter Cooper, the philanthropist. He was aggressively interested in humane work at one time and is said to have been a close friend of Mark Twain.

OPENS COURT FIGHT AGAINST SUFFRAGE

Constitutional League Seeks to Enjoin the Secretary of State.

RATIFICATION IS ATTACKED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A new move to block ratification of the Federal woman suffrage amendment as a valid part of the American Constitution was launched from an unexpected quarter today when Charles S. Fairchild of New York instituted in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia injunction proceedings to restrain Bainbridge Colby as Secretary of State from issuing a proclamation of the ratification of the amendment.

Attorney General Palmer was also named by Mr. Fairchild as defendant in the proceedings. The court was asked to enjoin Mr. Palmer from doing anything toward enforcement of the proposed Nineteenth Amendment. Justice Bailey immediately cited Secretary Colby and Attorney General Palmer to appear on July 13 and show cause why the Fairchild petition should not be granted.

Charles S. Fairchild, the complainant in the case, was Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Cleveland. He is a citizen and resident of New York State. He filed the complaint today for himself and on behalf of members of the American Constitutional League. This is an organization composed of citizens of Arkansas, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Virginia. It has offices in New York City and Washington. The league was organized in 1917 to "uphold and defend the American Constitution against foreign and domestic enemies."

"Since then," Mr. Fairchild's petition says, "the league has been engaged in an active campaign in the United States for the diffusion of knowledge as to the fundamental principles of the American Constitution, and especially that which gives to each State the right to determine for itself the question as to who should exercise the elective franchise therein. The question involved in this suit is one of common or general interest to all the members of the association, and they constitute a class so numerous as to make it impracticable to bring them all before the court, and this complainant therefore sues for the whole class."

Thirty-six State Legislatures must ratify the suffrage amendment in order to make it a valid part of the Constitution. Thirty-five States have ratified the amendment so far. Militant suffrage leaders are now engaged in an intensive campaign to obtain ratification by the necessary thirty-sixth State. They have succeeded in forcing the calling of extra sessions in Tennessee and South Carolina and bringing pressure to bear on the Republican Governors of Connecticut and Vermont to call special sessions of their Legislatures for ratification. Anti-suffragists challenge the contention that thirty-five States have so far ratified, asserting that ratification in West Virginia and Missouri was unconstitutional, and that only thirty-three States have acted constitutionally. If their contention is correct, three more States instead of only one, are needed to put across the ratification of the 19th amendment.

Militant suffragist leaders challenge the allegation that ratification in Missouri and West Virginia was not constitutional and will resist court proceedings to the utmost of their ability.

On receipt of the report of Mr. Fairchild's action the following statement was issued by the National Woman's Party headquarters:

"The filing of this suit for an injunction at a time when the thirty-sixth suffrage State is in sight indicates the bitterness of the opposition to suffrage and the determination of its opponents to defeat the obvious will of States which have signified their approval of the enfranchisement of the women of the nation.

"We are convinced that, as in the Ohio referendum case, the validity of the action of the various State Legislatures in ratifying the suffrage amendment will finally be upheld by the courts. Anti-suffragists are evidently grasping at straws in their attempt through court proceeding to lengthen the suffrage struggle and to force the expenditure of more money and time by suffragists for the success of their cause.

"The grounds cited for the injunction petition are matters already passed upon by the Attorney General and the Legislatures of the States concerned, and in the case of Tennessee also by the Acting Attorney General of the United States. By filing certificates of ratification with the Secretary of State these have completed in the manner prescribed by the Constitution, the process of ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment and we believe that the court will uphold the validity of their action."

DYER PENALTY STANDS.

Churchill Announces Confirmation of the Amritsar Judgment.

LONDON, July 7.—An army council, after having considered a report of the Hunter investigating committee and a long statement submitted by Brigadier General R. E. H. Dyer, concerning Dyer's action in ordering troops to fire into a crowd of Indians at Amritsar, in the Punjab, upheld the Commander-in-Chief in India for removing Dyer as commander in the Punjab and barring him from holding any further army position in India, according to an announcement made by Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, in the House of Commons today. The council also upheld the Commander-in-Chief in declining to grant Dyer promotion and in his reduction of Dyer's pay to one-half.

"Dyer cannot be acquitted on an error of judgment," observed Mr. Churchill.

Several hundred persons were killed when the troops fired on the Indians at Amritsar last April, and many hundreds were wounded.

The shooting of the Indians occurred at a religious ceremony, when thousands of persons from all over the Punjab were surrounding the dais on which those who were to address the multitude were standing. It was charged that soldiers stood on the high ground and fired upon the helpless people from a distance of 100 yards, and that the order for them to do so was issued by General Dyer.

Dry Measure to be Fought By Argentine Government

BUENOS AIRES, July 6.—Government opposition to the Prohibition bill recently introduced in Congress was announced today by Finance Minister Salaberry. He assured representatives of wine interests from Mendoza and San Juan that the Executive Department would use all legal resources against the measure.

A measure providing for the immediate doubling of the import and consumption tax on alcoholic beverages until September, 1922, was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies here today. After this date, the importation and manufacture of beverages having an alcoholic content exceeding 2 per cent. would be prohibited.

The bill provides that the excess revenues due to the increased taxation must be devoted to the construction of schools.

WOMEN PICKETS CABLE TO PREMIERS

ADVICE TO LLOYD GEORGE

Say They Have Information "Britain Plots Military Assault on Defenseless Ireland July 12."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7. — The American Women Pickets, an organization which has engaged in demonstrations for Irish independence at the White House, the British Embassy and the galleries of the United States Senate, today carried their campaign a step further by sending direct cablegrams to the allied Premiers and also the chief German representative at the Spa conference in Belgium.

This is the organization which staged a demonstration on July 4 at Washington's Tomb on Mount Vernon and at the Lafayette statue across from the White House, in behalf of the Irish cause.

Separate cablegrams were sent by them tonight to Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, Premier Millerand of France, Premier Giolitti of Italy and to Herr Gessler, the German Minister of Defense, who is representing the German government in the Spa conference.

The cablegram to the British Premier read:

"To the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Allied Conference, Spa, Belgium:

"The American Women Pickets for the nforcement of America's War Aims respectfully call your attention to the fact that the entire world is alive to the purpose of the inspired dispatches pouring incessantly from English propaganda bureaus into American newspapers to create an American public opinion justifying the military assault on the defenseless Irish people, which your Imperial Government is preparing for July 12, under the impression that Christian England, whose lamentations for Belgium still ring in America's ears, is suppressing a religious war in Ireland.

"These same American people are asking how England can appeal to America to carry her war debt while expending billions annually to hold down her imperial possessions at the point of the bayonet. Please inform Lord Bryce that the American people fought in 1776 to get out of the British Empire, and the American people today feel that under the principle of self-determination, for which we gave millions in men and billions in treasure, the Irish people and not the English people should be the judges of whether Ireland remains in the Empire or outside of it.

"GERTRUDE CORLESS.
"GERTRUDE D. KELLY, M. D.
"MARY KEYES NOA.
"ATHLEEN O'BRENNAN."

When the women pickets made the cablegram to Lloyd George public tonight they were asked by newspaper men to explain the allusion in the message to alleged preparations for military slaughter of the Irish people on July 12, and also what was meant by the reference to Lloyd George.

The pickets promptly explained orally that July 12 would be the anniversary of the battle of The Boyne, and asserted that they had information to the effect that England was sending military reinforcements into Ireland on the plea that it was necessary to put down a religious feud that might break out on July 12 between Catholics and Protestants in Ireland.

The pickets went on to say that there were no longer any religious feuds in Ireland, that both the North and the South were now for Irish independence, and that this was recognized in the new Irish flag, which contains a band of orange and another of green separated by a strip of white.

The pickets said the allusion to Lord Bryce was intended as a reply to the statement made by him in the recent American number issued by The London Times, in which Lord Bryce, it is said, declared that England stood ready to give Ireland anything within the British Empire.

The cablegram sent to Herr Gessler, the German delegate at Spa, read:

"American women pickets for enforcement of America's war aims have today cabled Allied Premiers at Spa to recognize the Irish Republic and to withdraw British troops from Ireland."

The cablegram to Signor Giolitti, the Italian Premier, read:

"While you ask disarmament of Germany we call attention to the fact that England is preparing military slaughter of the Irish on July 12. We American women, pickets for enforcement of America's war aims, appeal to you to be consistent in your policy. Demand withdrawal of British troops from Ireland and recognize the de facto Irish republican government now."

The cablegram to Premier Millerand was very brief. It read: "Have asked American Charge d'Affaires here to convey message from American women pickets for the enforcement of America's war aims to the French people."

This last cablegram meant that on July 4 the American women pickets had sent to Count Gallard de Bearn, the new Counselor and Chargé d'Affaires of the French Embassy during the absence of Ambassador Jusserand, a long message stressing the "century-old friendship of the Irish people for the French." The Chargé was asked to forward the message to his Government at Paris.

MICHALOW GETS NEW TRIAL.

"Sam the Landlord" Hears News in Sing Sing Death House.

Special to The New York Times.

Ossining, N. Y., July 7.—Samuel Michalow, known as "Sam the Landlord," received a telegram in Sing Sing death house tonight stating that the Court of Appeals had reversed his conviction on a charge of first degree murder and granted him a new trial. Major Lewis E. Lawes, the warden, conveyed the unofficial message to him.

Michalow was convicted of instigating the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Lizinck at 46 St. Mary's Street, Yonkers. He said he had never been in Yonkers. The State alleged he sent two crooks to rob Mrs. Lizinck's home of $1,000 worth of bonds. The robbers tied her to her bed and she was found dead with the gas turned on.

GANG FLEES IN FAST AUTO

Corona Branch of Bank of Manhattan Company Attacked at Noon Hour.

Seven armed bandits, amateurs, the police believe, attempted to rob the Bank of Manhattan Company's branch at Corona, L. I., during the lunch hour yesterday, and might have obtained $50,000 in cash had luck been with them. Instead, their "lookout" lost heart at the approach of a bicycle policeman, who was two blocks away, shouted a warning to his confederates who were making no particular progress inside, and the seven dashed away in a big touring car which was waiting.

The police have a fair description of two of the men—all were described as well dressed youths in their twenties—and a general alarm last night described the car in which they escaped as a Packard, 1913 model, the body painted green, and yellow wheels. The car was last seen traveling toward Long Island City by Borough President Connelly of Queens, a depositor of the Corona branch, who passed it in Jackson Avenue on his way to the bank.

Edward Althaus, receiving teller, Herman Piering, janitor, Lillian David, a bookkeeper, and Dora Stadler, were the only employes in the bank at 12:55 o'clock, when four men entered. Three loitered in the lobby. Althaus asked the unfamiliar young man who approached his window whether he was a new depositor.

"Put up your hands, or you'll be a new depositor" the youth replied, in a not too determined tone.

Althaus jumped behind his cage, out of range of the pistol the youth pointed at him, and then the other three young men became active. A fifth was posted at the door, and two waited outside, one at the wheel of the car about 200 feet from the bank, in Sackett Avenue. The bank is on the corner of Forty-sixth Street and Sackett Avenue, Corona.

Entering the manager's office through an open gate the three sought the vault, on the main floor. They were halted by a locked door, glass partitioned, however, and through this they commanded Miss David to admit them. She made no answer

Industrial Stocks Rise Further in Active Trading—Liberty Bonds Recede.

Industrial stocks displayed considerable buoyancy yesterday and the scale of business on the Stock Exchange was the largest since May 20. Railroad issues joined in the rise, although fractional advances scored by them, compared with gains of 1 to 4 points elsewhere, showed that the speculative incentive was much less pronounced among the carriers than in the groups of steel, automobile, petroleum and miscellaneous shares. The comment of brokerage offices indicated that expectations of a satisfactory supply of call money continued as a prime element behind the advance, and the easing of the demand loan rate to 7 per cent. after standing loans had been renewed at 8 per cent., appeared to support the idea of traders. As a matter of current interest, it is worth noting that London dispatches spoke of a degree of stock market improvement, also based on thoughts of a period of easier credit in the next few weeks.

The domestic credit situation and the local money situation must, however, be considered in different terms, whose relations cannot at the moment be determined fully. The action of Liberty bonds showed this yesterday, as has been the case on several occasions in the recent past. The Government issues dipped down rather quickly late in the session and in banking comment the movement was connected with the generally high cost and scarcity of bank credit as well as with the position of the investment market. The sale of $25,000,000 Swiss Government long-term bonds on an 8 per cent. basis showed conclusively whither the price of investment funds is tending and evidently stimulated liquidation of Liberty bonds. Also, the view was expressed in banking quarters that corporations, moved by this fresh evidence of the cost of funds, had again been influenced to convert Government bond holdings into cash rather than pay the price for working capital acquired in the loan market. More time will be needed than the few days which have passed since the mid-year settlements to determine whether stock market funds will actually be more plentiful than during May and June. The fact remains that railroad congestion persists in preventing the release of millions of dollars vested in raw material and manufactured goods. The fact also stands out that the cost of doing business because of high prices and wages and the slow conversion of materials into finished products is not becoming any less as the time goes on. The grain harvest is progressing rapidly in the regions where warm weather last month hastened the maturity of wheat, and for this reason it is impossible to determine whether the interval before crop moving demands become really heavy will comprise the several weeks of July and August which has ordinarily been the case.

In respect to the railroad outlook, the steel and iron trades produce significant commentary this week. The Iron Age speaks of a possible suspension of operations for two weeks or ten days "to permit of a clearing up of the desperate congestion." The industry, it is stated, is suffering from the Commerce Commission's program of directing box cars into the grain-producing regions, thus leaving the steel centres short of cars. Despite this handicap it appears that the iron and steel producers are going ahead, turning out heavy tonnages, part of which must be stored against the day when they may be moved to market. The output of pig iron in June was at the average daily rate of 101,451 tons, an increase of about 5,000 tons per day over the May production, and 302 furnaces in blast on July 1 showed a net gain of 7 furnaces during the preceding month. Happily, the discussion of a new wage scale between manufacturers and sheet and tin plate workers has been amicably settled, removing what had appeared to be the possibility of a troublesome situation centred in the union question.

News that another substantial amount of gold had been acquired in the London metal market for shipment to the United States aroused speculation as to whether or not the current movement was advancing to a stage which would support the sterling exchange market. Sterling was firm at the same time that Continental rates moved in favor of New York. Considerable wheat and meat is going to Germany, the shipments being financed by Dutch bankers which, presumably, accounts in part for the heavy tone of guilders during the last few days.

More Gold Coming.

Reports from London received yesterday said that the Imperator was bringing $3,150,000 gold to New York, and that in addition to this "American" bidders had secured all of the new Transvaal offerings. A day or so ago $2,300,000 arrived and now it looks as if the stream were to be constant for some time to come. Transvaal gold has been getting to London at the rate of about £4,000,000 to £5,000,000 or say $20,000,000 a month, for some months, and if America can secure this, our gold stocks should increase noticeably by the end of the year, even without making allowance for any of the metal which may be sent here for the account of the British and French Governments.

STEEL MEN CONSIDER TEN-DAY SHUTDOWN

Car Shortage Has Crippled Industry and Stocks Are Piling Up Awaiting Shipment.

SEVERE IN PITTSBURGH

Order Sending Open Cars to Coal Mines and Closed Cars to Grain Fields the Cause.

A closing down of the steel industry for ten days or two weeks is being seriously considered, according to The Iron Age, because of the car shortage. The congestion has been increased recently, it is said, because of the order of the Commerce Commission that open top cars be sent to the coal mines and an order directing closed cars to the grain sections. As a result the steel industry is suffering greatly for lack of cars, and stocks of finished material awaiting shipment in the Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Shenango districts total 1,000,000 tons.

The Iron Trade Review in discussing this says in part:

"A losing battle, according to every sign, is being waged by iron and steel producers in their continuing struggle to maintain operations against a grossly deficient transportation service centring upon the restricted use of open top cars except for coal shipments, which is to be in force two weeks more. The situation has been growing steadily worse. The resistance of the industry to the slow strangulation is surprising, as the tonnage of finished and semi-finished material backed up at the plants of the producers and still mounting has passed the point of reliable estimation, so large has it become. Frozen credits in this form present a pressing problem even for the strongest interests. Many plants are being kept going mainly by the use of motor trucks. More than two-thirds of the daily output of some large works in the Pittsburgh district is being kept moving in this fashion, supplemented by barges.

"Investigation being conducted by the Department of Justice into the fairness of present prices of coal has attracted attention, especially as to its bearing upon the coke market. Furance interests are taking a stronger position against paying the prevailing prices on spot coke, which have been around $17 and $18, ovens."

The Iron Age says:

"Pig iron output increased in June, showing that the net result of all the shifts in the railroad situation was favorable. At 3,043,540 tons for the thirty days the daily average was 101,451 tons, a gain of about 5,000 tons a day upon the May output, which was 2,983,662 tons for thirty-one days. May in turn showed a gain of 5,000 tons a day over April. But the industry is still nearly 7,500 tons a day below the peak reached in March, when the daily average was 108,900 tons.

"Twenty-four blast furnaces went in in June and seventeen were blown out or banked indefinitely, the 302 furnaces in blast on July 1 thus representing a net gain of seven. The estimated capacity active at the opening of the month was 101,500 tons a day, against 98,350 tons a day for 295 furnaces on June 1."

LARGE SUGAR DIVIDENDS.

Federal Refining Co. Distributes Extra Earnings of $5 a Share.

The prosperity of the sugar industry was indicated yesterday in the declaration of two large extra dividends. The Federal Sugar Refining Company ordered a distribution of $5 a share in cash as well as the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the common stock, payable Aug. 2 to holders of record July 10. The regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock was declared, also payable Aug. 2.

The Cupey Sugar Company declared a dividend of 17 per cent. on its $1,000,000 common stock. This is the second dividend by the company. The first of 3 per cent. was paid last February. The Directors voted the regular semi-annual payment of 3½ per cent. on the preferred stock, all dividends being due Aug 2 t ostockholders of record July 15.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Makes Further Gains.

The stock market continued to show improvement yesterday, prices advancing well above their previous close during the morning hours on a volume of business that was larger than has prevailed in a long time. It appeared that with the political conventions out of the way the public was taking a keener interest in things marketwise and buying of this sort was a factor in bringing about the advance. This was especially true since the professionals had for the time being abandoned the short side and there was therefore little effort to fight the rise by short selling. There is, however, far from being any faith in a spirited market advance that can be turned into a real bull market. The commission house letters which are being sent out these days lay stress on this point.

Profit Taking.

While the market was active and strong throughout most of the day recessions in many issues came during the afternoon and stocks closed off from their high, even though substantial net gains were held. The setback was largely attributable to profit taking. Since the middle of last week the market has gone up several points and many of the more speculative issues have gained more than this. There was, however, a goodly margin of profit for those who have been carrying long stock in anticipation of just such a rise as has taken place. It was the sale of such holdings to convert paper profits into tangible assets that caused the easing off in prices.

B. R. T. Rumors.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit stock became a bit more active at advancing prices in the afternoon. This was in connection with reports that an important decision on the fare situation would be announced today. There were some who believed that B. R. T. would be allowed a substantial increase. The foundation of the rumor was not discoverable, but it had wide circulation in the financial district.

An Open Wheat Market.

According to word from Chicago an open market for wheat will begin on July 15, the decision having been arrived at by the committee of sixteen, representing eight leading exchanges. This will mean the re-establishment of trading in wheat after a long period of fixed price under the administration of the Grain Corporation. Much interest is being displayed as to the course of prices. It is anticipated that trading will begin around the $2.50 level, for the December option, but whether an advance or a decline will follow is a matter of some debate.

Mexican Oil Production.

Every indication points to a further increase in the importation of Mexican oil during the balance of the year. Production is steadily increasing, with the drilling of new wells, and pipe line facilities are being extended. The Mexican Petroleum Company is about ready to bring in a new well on a selected spot and it is anticipated that a big gusher will be the result. This will be the first well completed by this company since the ban on drilling was lifted by the Carranza administration. The increase of Mexican production, with facilities for getting oil to seaboard, will tend to help out on the petroleum shortage in this country. Demand here now is in excess of that which prevailed during the war.

The Chemical Merger.

There is renewal of talk that the merger of General Chemical, National Aniline and Chemical and Barrett Company is nearing completion. It was said yesterday that the price at which the stock of the various companies would go into the merger had been agreed upon. Should this be true, one of the chief stumbling blocks to the merger would be eliminated.

Money Pointing Downward.

The renewal rate yesterday was 8 per cent., 1 per cent. lower than on the day before, and after the renewal rate declined to 7 per cent., which in turn, was 1 per cent. lower than the low of the previous day. Thus the trend may be said to have been downward, even if not substantially so. Government withdrawals today will total $11,400,000 compared with $22,000,000 on Tuesday, and should leave something like $15,000,000 of Treasury money still on deposit with the local banks. These deposits, however, may be larger and also may be increased before the end of the week, thanks to the cross-currents in the Treasury's operations.

Stock Market Business.

For a time during the forenoon it looked very much as if the session on the Stock Exchange would develop into another "million share" day, and the market fraternity became mildly excited over the prospect. The last "million share" day was on May 20 and since then the brokerage business has been anything but the lucrative pursuit most outsiders think it always is; even the interest account is not functioning as well as it might because of the high rates brokers have to pay. But the brave hopes of noon turned to ashes by afternoon, for then the market became heavy and dull and at the finish the total for the full five hours mounted up to only 823,548 shares. That, however, was the largest total recorded since the million share day of May 20.

The Swiss Loan.

The $25,000,000 Swiss loan went off better even than the more optimistic of the banking syndicate had expected and early yesterday the announcement was sent out that the loan had been disposed of. That is quick work for a foreign issue these days and must have been extremely gratifying to the bankers who brought it out. Swiss securities, as a matter of fact, always have gone pretty well in this market and the high interest rate of the present offering, together with the callable feature, appear to have put this over in very strong position.

Liberties.

Liberty bonds turned pronouncedly weak yesterday afternoon, and for no apparent reason. Inquiry, however, uncovered the fact that a big selling order had come on the market in the afternoon and all of it, apparently and according to the belief of dealers, was put on the board. That the Liberty market is very thin was well demonstrated when prices began to fade away. Just who yesterday's seller was could not be learned, but it was surmised in trade circles that it was a corporation in need of ready money. The high rate paid in the coupon of the new Swiss loan, it was said, had given fresh impetus to selling of Liberties by corporations which are faced with the alternative of selling their war bonds at a loss or of doing new financing at prohibitive rates. Every time the investment market goes up this corporate selling of war bonds quickens, and dealers believe it will continue to do so as long as corporations hold considerable quantities of the bonds.

Silver Prices.

Announcement that the Government had arranged to buy 233,000 ounces of silver, to be delivered at the Philadelphia Mint, was coincident with an advance in the price of "foreign" silver of 1⅛ cents to 91¼, and while the "foreign" price is based on the London quotation it still is possible that the Government's purchase had something to do with the rise. But at that the Government's purchase at the "pegged" price of a dollar an ounce has not had the stimulating effect on the silver market it was expected to have. Since the working agreement was reached, on June 16, when the foreign price was 80 cents, there has been a considerable market gain, but 10 cents was recovered on the first day, and since then the fluctuations have been between 93 cents, at the maximum, and 89 cents at the minimum. A week ago Monday the high price was touched, and it looked as if the market then was definitely pointed upward, but by the end of last week the price was again under 90 cents.

A More Valuable Income

for several years after every important war the belligerent nations have gone through a period of high money rates. Judging from past experience investors are missing a golden opportunity if they do not take advantage of the present low prices of good long term bonds, thereby getting a large income which will increase in value and cannot be duplicated in later years.

6 MONTHS' FAILURES FEWEST SINCE 1881

HEAVY REVERSES IN JUNE

674 Reported—Highest in Year and Half—Indebtedness Swelled $33,000,000.

Despite the fact that the number of commercial failures during the first half of 1920 was the smallest for any corresponding period since 1881, there was substantial increase in assets and liabilities of embarrassed concerns. In commenting on this situation, in its survey of the half year, Dun's Review says, in part:

The tendency toward increase in failures that has lately developed in various sections of the country finds rather sharp reflection in the insolvency statement for the six months just ended, 3,352 commercial defaults, with aggregate liabilities of $86,743,876, being reported to R. G. Dun & Co. during that period. While the number of reverses is the smallest for the first half of any year since 1881, yet the margin of decrease from the figures of earlier years has narrowed appreciably, and a decided enlargement of amount of indebtedness now appears. Comparing with the remarkably favorable exhibit of 1919, which discloses only 3,463 failures for the half year, a numerical reduction of 3.2 per cent. is revealed; but this year's liabilities are 26.2 per cent. in excess of last year's total of $68,710,886, and are little more than 1 per cent. below those of the first six months of 1918. The half-yearly returns, moreover, do not present an exact picture of the change in the business mortality, for the increase in failures has been mainly of recent occurrence, and it is only by examining the June statistics that a true insight into existing conditions is obtained.

From month to month this year, the number of defaults has varied considerably, rising in one month and declining in the next, but June brought 674 insolvencies, which is the highest number of any month at all in a year and a half, and the indebtedness was swelled to about $33,000,000. An unusual number of large reverses account for the pronounced expansion in the liabilities, the amount not only being some 248 per cent. greater than that of June, 1919, but the heaviest of any month back to April, 1915, and the largest for June since 1914.

In the following table, the number of failures in each month of the half year is compared for three years, with figures of liabilities for 1920:

	Number.			Liabilities.
January	559	653	1,178	$7,240,032

First quarter.	1,627	1,964	3,300	$29,702,499
April	504	543	905	$13,224,133

The number of commercial failures in the United States, the amount of assets reported, and the amount of liabilities for the half year are shown below for fifteen years:

Year.	No.	Assets.	Liabilities.
1920.	3,352	$57,959,291	$86,743,876
1907.	7,488	56,085,360	94,721,350
1916.	9,405	109,986,429	111,241,421
1913.	8,163	91,129,616	132,909,061
1912.	8,317	71,957,418	108,012,223

When examined according to occupation, the half year's insolvency record discloses betterment, both numerically and otherwise, in manufacturing lines as compared with the figures of the same period of 1919, but the trading exhibit is adverse in each respect, and the liabilities of the class designated as "other commercial" are very much above last year's, although the number of failures is smaller.

SEEK $15,000,000 ROYALTIES

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 7.—Suit to collect royalties, dividends and profits said to amount to $15,000,000 or more, alleged to have been obtained from the use, and from licensing the use, of the Lowry process of creosoting wood blocks, and from the possession of 255 shares of Columbia Creosoting Company stock and one share of stock in the Indiana Creosoting Company, was filed this afternoon in Federal Court by Thomas Lowry of New York; Zetta McG. Lowry, his mother, of Kentucky; Margaret Lowry Van Werveke and George Van Werveke, her husband, and Helen B. Lowry, of New York, and Jean Bullit Lowry, heirs of Cuthbert B. Lowry, against Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky, Republican National Committeeman; Stoughton A. Fletcher, trustee, and the American Creosoting Company.

The complainants say that $70,000 was paid by Stoughton A. Fletcher, as trustee, to the administrator of the Lowry estate under the terms of a contract entered into Jan. 18, 1909, and they tender the $70,000, with 6 per cent. interest, back to the defendants as credit on the amount alleged to be due the complainants. It is alleged that this contract was entered into without proper authority by the Security Trust Company of Lexington, Ky., the administrator, with Mr. Fletcher as trustee for himself and Mr. Hert.

The complaint recites that Cuthbert B. Lowry formed an association with Mr. Hert and others for the formation of creosoting companies. Soon after that Mr. Lowry was killed in a railroad accident at New Orleans. Arrangements for the use of the Lowry process by the American Creosoting Company had not been completed at the time of Mr. Lowry's death, it is alleged, and it is for the profits from the use of the process by the American Company and its subsidiary companies that the complainants have brought suit.

NORTHWESTERN HEAD QUITS

Hough, President a Year, Resigns University's Heavy Tasks.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Dr. Lynn Harold Hough has resigned as President of Northwestern University, effective October 1, it was announced today. In a letter to the trustee, he said: "The duties of the Presidency demand more in the way of physical resource than I can bring to the task." He was named President of the University a year ago.

Dr. Hough, who is now in Chautauqua, N. Y., tendered his resignation last Monday, and he expects to go to Europe in two weeks. University officers said no one had been considered as his successor.

Born at Cadiz, O., in 1877, Dr. Hough entered the ministry in 1898 and was pastor of several Eastern churches before being called in 1913 to Garrett Biblical Institute of Northwestern University.

BRITISH MINERS ASK RISE.

Demand New Increase of Two Shillings Daily.

LONDON, July 7.—A conference of delegates representing 900,000 miners, assembled at Leamington today, adopted a resolution demanding that the Government concede an advance in wages of two shillings daily and immediately reduce the recent addition of 14 shillings per ton to the price of domestic coal.

Proposals for a five-day week and to give the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation power to call a strike without a ballot of the members were defeated.

For the present there is no threat of a strike, but the action was intended to strengthen the policy of forcing the Government into nationalizing the coal mines.

PROTEST COAL CAR ORDER.

Building Material Men Say It Has Shut Off Their Supplies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Representatives of the building industries will protest to the Interstate Commerce Commission, at a hearing tomorrow, against the order recently put into effect preventing the use of open-top freight cars except for carrying coal. The building material men, about seventy-five in number, met here tonight at the New Willard Hotel and mapped out their procedure at the hearing tomorrow.

The building material men claim that since the Interstate Commerce Commission handed down its order eighteen days ago they have been unable to obtain supplies or to ship them. They assert that while the movement of these supplies was about fifty per cent. of normal prior to the order, since that time it has been nil. Sand and gravel producers were said to be losing $1,500,000 daily, while $100,000,000 worth of highway construction was suspended.

Builders said the purpose of the commission in restricting the open-top cars to transport coal to New England and Western points had been defeated, for most of the coal had gone for export. One of the men claimed that coal advanced from $2.40 to $12 per ton the day after the order went into effect.

New England coal operators will be present tomorrow and will plead with the commission to continue the order in force.

LORDS DEFEAT GOVERNMENT

Demand Economy and End of British War Establishments.

LONDON, July 7.—The Government suffered a defeat in the House of Lords tonight when Baron Middleton's resolution strongly urging retrenchment in national expenditure was adopted by a vote of 95 to 23.

The resolution also demanded that the Government appoint special commissioners empowered to wind up existing departments for special war service and reduce to a normal level other inflated establishments.

3 SEIZED IN PIER PLOT.

Police Charge Attempt to Substitute Rubbish-filled Case.

Martin McCutcheon, 400 West Seventeenth Street; William Turner, 454 West Twenty-seventh Street, and Alexander Turner, his brother, 265 Tenth Avenue, were arrested yesterday following an alleged attempt to substitute rubbish for a case of cotton goods. They were held by Magistrate Fleischmann in the Jefferson Market Court in $2,000 bail each for a hearing tomorrow.

McCutcheon, a brother-in-law of the Turners, employed by Arnold Johnson, a truckman, 83 Worth Street, was on his way to Pier 86, North River, with a load of sixteen cases of cotton goods valued at $2,000 each, when, it is charged, he unloaded one of the cases at a stable on West Twenty-seventh Street. When he reached the pier McCutcheon, the police say, told the receiving clerk that he was one case short and would return for it.

Meanwhile, detectives from the West Thirtieth Street Station, the police said, saw the Turners repack the case with rubbish. Just as Detective McNamara arrested the Turners McCutcheon drove up and also was seized.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 7.—John D. Rockefeller will be 84 years old tomorrow. He will pass the day on his estate in the Pocantico Hills, receiving such friends as annually visit him on the anniversary of his birth.

It is thought probable that he will spend part of the morning on the golf course. No special plans have been made for the observance of the day.

Earnings 5.83 Times the Annual Interest

The stability of well-secured convertible short-term notes has long made this form of investment a favorite with conservative investors. The five-year secured 7½% gold notes described below occupy a very favorable position both as regards assets and earnings, the audited earnings for 1919 being equal to 5.83 times the annual interest on these notes.

With such earnings, the 8% yield made possible by present conditions is decidedly unusual and the privilege of conversion into the preferred and common stock adds an opportunity for enhancement in the value of the principal as well.

which has furnished us with the following information:

These $50,000,000 Secured Notes are the sole funded debt of the enterprise, excepting equipment notes and other items aggregating about $5,275,800, and against this the audited statement shows total net assets, including the proceeds of this note issue, of over five times the amount of the note issue.

The consolidated net earnings over a series of years make a consistent and convincing record, the audited statements showing an amount available for interest, depletion, etc., equal to 5.83 times the annual interest on these notes for the year 1919, and averaging over 5 times such interest for the past three years.

The notes have the benefit of a sinking fund provision at the rate of $2,000,000 every six months for the purchase of the notes at or below 100 and interest.

A feature is the noteholder's privilege of converting each $1,000 note into $1,000 par value (ten shares) 8% Cumulative Sinking Fund Preferred Stock and 2½ shares Common Stock of the Company.

These secured notes may be purchased in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100. Interest payable without deduction for the Federal Income Tax up to 2%.

SAYS COAL ROADS CONCEAL PROFITS

Squeeze Consumer and Worker, Lauck Asserts at Hearing Before Commission.

HE ASKS PUBLIC SHOWING

Operators' Objection to "Exhibits" Met by Charge of Monopoly "Similar to an Octopus."

SCRANTON, Pa., July 7.—A charge that the anthracite coal industry is dominated by a monopolistic system that "presses up to squeeze the consumer and down to squeeze the wage earner, by diverting profits at points where neither can see them through the screen of bookkeeping and legal devices," was made today before the Anthracite Coal Commission by W. Jett Lauck, in arguing the admissibility of exhibits on profiteering and monopoly which he submitted in behalf of the United Mine Workers of America. To these exhibits the representatives of the operators interposed objections. The Commission was appointed by President Wilson to arbitrate the differences between the miners and operators.

Effort of the mine owners to withhold figures from the public which might show the revenue and income of the companies resulted in the first executive session of the commission at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

S. D. Warriner of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, representing the operators, and Philip Murray, International Vice President of the United Mine Workers, representing the workers, talked with the members for forty-five minutes behind closed doors before Dr. W. O. Thompson, Chairman of the commission, again took the bench.

"The commission has ruled at this time that the public cross-examination continue, and there will probably be an early adjournment tomorrow, when a final decision on the public argument of the exhibits in controversy will be made," Chairman Thompson announced.

Throughout the afternoon, representatives of the mine workers displayed an urgent desire to have all sessions open to the public, especially the argument on their exhibits.

What Miners Seek to Show.

The Lauck exhibits in controversy are:

1—Relation of wages to cost of production, profits and prices.

2—Profits of anthracite coal mining companies.

3—Wholesale and retail prices of anthracite coal 1913-1920.

4—Freight rates and cost of transportation of anthracite coal.

5—Operating and financial performances of anthracite railroads.

7—Cost of producing anthracite coal at the mines in March, 1920.

Mr. Warriner, in opposing the request of the mine workers that the session be open, said:

"We are not trying our case before the public. The public is not interested in these extraneous matters. This is a matter for the Commission, not a matter for spreading in the newspapers."

Mr. Lauck had declared that the real profits of the anthracite industry were "at least seven times the apparent profits."

"The very fact that the operators object to these exhibits becoming a part of the official record in this case," said Mr. Lauck, "constitutes the strongest conceivable argument why this commission not only should receive this evidence, but should give it first consideration in arriving at a determination of this cause.

Coal Roads "Arms of Octopus."

"There is one point which we wish to make so clearly that there shall be no further doubt in the matter. For it is a point vital to the entire settlement of the controversy. We contend that there is no warrant for the assertion that the anthracite industry cannot pay higher wages without a further increase in the prices charged to the consumer. Such an assertion is based upon the alleged meagreness of present returns earned by the great anthracite companies.

"The method and structure of combination in the anthracite industry is a matter relevant and vital to this present controversy. Thorough investigation of this monopoly will reveal funds which do actually exist, but which are illegitimately withheld from the worker in wages and taken from the consumer in unwarranted prices.

"The anthracite industry has been organized into a huge combination, a monopoly similar in structure to an 'octopus.' Its head and body are a very small group of banking interests. Its entwining arms are seven railway systems, which control at their extremities the anthracite mining operations of the country.

Charges Profits Are Concealed.

"The books of the entire concern, records of the industry from mine via railroad to final disposal by the sales corporation, must be examined before any one can say just what are the profits derived from anthracite.

"Our contention is that such an examination of the books of the anthracite coal combination is essential to the settlement of this controversy on the basis of justice.

"The profits of the anthracite industry are to be found in the profits of the anthracite railroads and in the profits of the sales companies controlled by their stockholders. To these must be added the millions of dollars which go each year to those who hold the tens of millions of bonded indebtedness which have resulted from the financing of the industry.

"The point which we wish to make is that a well-defined process exists by which the profits of the anthracite industry are successfully concealed, the high prices being explained by apparent high costs. The losses of the railroad coal companies are written into the cost of transportation, through advances without interest and through the funding operations, which impose large fixed charges upon the railroad department.

"The high freight rates which such inflated transportation costs seem to justify are written into the cost of anthracite and serve to bridge the gap between the mine cost and the high prices which prevail."

SHOW SOME OPERATORS' COST.

Bituminous Rates in 1918 and Now Contrasted in Federal Reports.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The fifth report of the Federal Trade Commission's series on cost of producing bituminous coal in the United States, covering the States of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, was made public today. It presents information for the period from August, 1917, to December, 1918, based on monthly cost reports filed by the operators on forms prescribed by the commission, and covers about 93 per cent. of the output of Ohio during 1918, 86 per cent. of the output of Indiana and practically all of the output of Michigan.

Information is also presented for certain districts for 1916, 1917 and 1918, based partly on information obtained by the commission's agents directly from the operators' books and partly on cost sheets submitted by the operators. This later information covers from 20 to 80 per cent. of the total output for the various districts.

The report shows that wide differences existed in 1918 between the conditions met by the operators in the thirteen mining districts for which statistics are given, and is of particular interest at the present time for comparison with the series of monthly bulletins on current 1920 costs, which are being issued by the commission.

FIRST RAIL CLAIM SETTLED.

Government Will Pay $1,600,000 to Spokane, Portland & Seattle Road.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The first settlement with a railroad company of all claims arising out of Federal operation was announced today by the Railroad Administration, which has agreed to pay the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railroad $1,600,000 in cash, the sum remaining after the balancing of the claims of the railway company against the Government and of the Government against the railway company. The larger part of the sum represents compensation due to the company for use of its property by the Government.

Nearly 500 claims by railroads remain to be settled, and officials of the Railroad Administration believe the majority will be adjusted on the lump sum basis after balancing conflicting claims. Claims of some railroads run as high as $10,000,000 or $12,000,000, and it is impossible to estimate, officials say, the amount which eventually will be paid or the time necessary to wind up Government control of the railroads.

LOSS IN BROKEN EGGS THREATENS SUPPLY

CITE CARELESS HANDLING

Official Says Federal Bureau of Markets May Establish an Inspection Service.

Alarmed over what is described as a breakage "epidemic" of eggs in transit to large markets, causing an estimated loss in eggs shipped to New York alone of $25,000 a week for the last six weeks, representatives of the State and Federal Market Bureau, railroad and express company officials and produce merchants met yesterday afternoon in the New York office of the State Division of Foods and Markets, 90 West Broadway, at the call of Dr. Eugene H. Porter, State Commissioner of Farms and Markets. Herschel H. Jones, Director of the New York office, who presided, declared that the stoppage of this waste was especially desirable because of the shortage of eggs and the expected price advance this winter.

The conference decided to request the Mercantile Exchange, as representing the receivers of eggs, to appoint a special committee to investigate the situation, in co-operation with the railroads and express companies. This committee will confer with the National Poultry and Butter and Eggs Association of Chicago with regard to the placing of a traffic agent in New York to collect information from the trade regarding damages and to handle all claims for losses.

Roy C. Potts, who came from Washington to represent John A. Livingston, head of the Bureau of Markets; Mr. Jones and H. D. Phillips of the Bureau of Markets and Storage, Albany, will today call on officers of the Mercantile Exchange and also officials of the Trunk Lines in furtherance of the plan to reduce the breakage of eggs. Mr. Potts said that on his way to New York to attend the conference he stopped in Philadelphia on Tuesday and found that the "epidemic" of egg breaking prevailed there also. Reports have been received in Washington, he said, of similar losses in Boston and other cities.

Mr. Jones, Director of the New York office, said that there seemed to be a difference of opinion, even among the railroad men, as to the cause of the increase in breakage of eggs, but a majority believed that it was due to carelessness in switching of the railroad cars by new employes. The cars are bumped around a great deal more than formerly, causing the crates to slide in the car and jar against each other, which breaks the eggs on the top and bottom layers in the crates and stains others to a degree that makes them less salable.

Representatives of produce merchants who spoke, included J. A. Bernholz, George Cutler and George Wietzen. Mr. Cutler said that for the last two weeks the loss from breakage, not counting the cost of labor and material in repacking, amounted to 40 per cent. of the total freight on all his shipments.

Officials of the Erie, New York, New Haven & Hartford, Lehigh Valley, Central of New Jersey, the Toledo, St. Louis and Western railroads and the American Railway Express Company who were present were asked to explain the cause of the breakage and to suggest some plan to eliminate the waste.

Some railroad men thought the "epidemic" due to improper packing, while others believed it was due to careless handling of freight cars in transit. John Daniels of the American Railway Express Company said that his company had recognized the great loss from the breakage of eggs and had been carrying on a campaign among the employes to bring about a better handling of the shipments. An investigation, he said, had revealed that a large percentage of the breakage was due to improper packing by the shipper.

Mr. Jones said that the conference may lead to the establishment of an inspection service by the Federal Bureau of Markets which will make it possible for the shipper of eggs to have a better basis for action against the railroads for losses because of damage to eggs in transit.

FOR SUNDAY MOVIE VOTE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 7.—A decision handed down by Judge Soper in the Superior Court today upholds the action of the Legislature in providing for a referendum vote next Fall on the question of whether Sunday motion pictures will be permitted in Baltimore City. The ruling means a first blow to the Lord's Day Alliance and the case will be taken to the Court of Appeals.

The Lord's Day Alliance petitioned the court for a mandamus to prevent the Supervisors of Elections from printing the question on the ballots for next November, attacking the right of the Legislature to make such provision.

Upon its contention that the act was an improper delegation to the voters of the legislative power, because the question was general rather than local, Judge Soper ruled the Legislature was within its rights.

"Any alteration of the habits of a considerable portion of the people," said the decision, "is a matter which affects the entire population of the State. But this is as true, for instance, of the sale of intoxicating liquors in certain districts, as it is in the observance of the Sunday law.

"The Court of Appeals has decided that liquor questions are local questions and may be passed upon by the voters to the electorate. The closing or the opening of the moving picture theatres on Sunday is in the same way a local question."

RULES AGAINST MOTHER.

Court Grants Stay of Order Returning Child to Mrs. Lentino.

Justice Page of the Appellate Division granted a stay yesterday until an appeal can be made in October from an order of Surrogate Schulz in Bronx County directing that Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Feser of 1,326 Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, turn over to Mrs. Emma Lentino of 98 Spencer Street, Brooklyn, her daughter, Louise, aged 5 years, who had been adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Feser after Mrs. Lentino had signed a consent which read in part: "I hereby consent to allow my daughter, Louise, to live with and to be brought up by Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Feser as I do not love or care for her."

Mrs. Lentino's husband, Frank Lentino, stepfather of the child, is soon to be released from Sing Sing after serving a term there. For this and other reasons the Bronx County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children took an interest in the case after Mrs. Lentino had decided she wanted her daughter back and instituted successful proceedings before Surrogate Schulz. Philip Lowenthal, chief agent for the society, said in an affidavit that the child's physical and moral welfare will be best served by permitting her to remain with the Fesers.

PLAGUE INCREASES IN SOUTH

Fourth Case Develops in Pensacola, One in Port Arthur, Texas.

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 7.—The fourth case of bubonic plague was officially reported here today, Henry Hudson, driver for an express company, having contracted the disease.

Citizens at a mass meeting today demanded that the City Commission pass an ordinance providing for rat extermination. Mayor Sanders said the ordinance would be enacted as quickly as possible.

Word came from the Surgeon General's office in Washington that unless rats are killed the city would be placed under quarantine.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 7.—A negro said to have been employed on Galveston wharves died Tuesday of a disease which the City Health Officer today announced as bubonic plague.

LUBIN LOSES HIS APPEAL.

Must Serve Ten Years for Robbing Rossamondo of $30 in the Bronx.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 7.—Nathan Lubin, known among the police of New York City as "the king of pickpockets," must serve ten years' imprisonment, under a decision of the Court of Appeals late today, affirming the judgment of the lower Court.

Lubin, who was convicted of grand larceny, first degree, second offense, and of criminally receiving stolen property, was charged with having robbed Frank Rossamondo of $30 in the Bronx.

The defense was that the prisoner was intoxicated at the time and did not know what he was doing.

CITY UTILITIES AGAIN FACE COAL FAMINE

APPEALS TO CONFERENCE

Deputy Commissioner Hurries to Washington to Urge Relief Measures.

Coal shipments to New Yor fell off during the last week and so near are the public utilities to the danger line that the Public Service Commissioner authorized Deputy Commissioner Morgan T. Donnelly to go to Washington to attend the conferences today to be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the National Coal Association, coal operators and the representatives of the public utilities of this city, Philadelphia and the metropolitan district of New Jersey. It is expected that at this conference a plan will be decided upon whereby bituminous coal shipments will be increased so that public service corporations will be able to build up a reserve.

The Public Service Commission gave out yesterday a statement of the amount of bituminous coal in the bins of the prominent utility companies in this city as of July 6, and how long the present supply will last. This is the list:

	Tons In Hand.	Days' Supply.
Brooklyn Rap. Tran. Co.	5,045	4
Interborough R. T. Co.	11,604	5
Richmond Light & R. R. Co.	170	1
New York Steam Co.	806	1
New York Edison Co., including United Electric Light and Power Co.	62,560	16
Brooklyn Edison Co.	14,682	14
Kings Co. Lighting Co.	182	10
Consolidated Gas Co.	18,069	20
Brooklyn Union Gas Co.	600	15
Brooklyn Borough Gas Co.	372	46

This statement showed a falling off in the amount of soft coal received in this city last week and this was because of the slowing down of work during the Fourth of July holiday. The amount of bituminous coal held by the companies on the day the report was filed amounted to 137,820 tons, about 50,000 below the preceding week. It now is imperative that the amount of coal flowing into the tidewater terminals be increased.

In order to meet the situation the large companies are now pooling their coal interests and by loaning to companies in pressing need they have brought about a better distribution of the reserve stocks. The Public Service Commission was informed during the afternoon that two carloads of bituminous coal had been received by the New York and Richmond Gas Company, tiding it over the present crisis.

TO RESUME FUTURE TRADING

Chicago Wheat Interests Agree to End Three Years' Suspension.

CHICAGO, July 7.—An Advisory Committee of representatives of all wheat interests accepted today the report of the committee representing the leading grain exchanges, calling for the reopening of trade in wheat futures on July 15. The report provides that there shall be no trading in deliveries beyond March or this side of December.

The Advisory Committee also discussed the transportation situation as it affects the marketing or wheat. It was decided that the Exchange Committee, composed of two representatives from each of the eight grain exchanges, should become a permanent organization to take up any problems that may result from the reopening of trading in futures after a three years' suspension.

DENOUNCE MASTER IN GAS RATE CASE

Deputy Attorney General Chambers Says Rule of Practice Was Disregarded.

1,000 QUESTIONS EXCLUDED

Master Said He Proposed to Try Case on Business Basis—Argument for Public.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien will appear on behalf of the city today before Judge Learned Hand in the Federal District Court and oppose the Consolidated Gas Company's motion for final judgment to set aside the 80-cent gas rate law as confiscatory. Final arguments in the case to confirm the report of Special Master Abraham S. Gilbert, who sustained the contentions of the company, are going on before Judge Hand. Colonel William H. Hayward will close for the defense and William L. Ransom will reply for the complainant.

Deputy Attorney General Wilbur W. Chambers opened the arguments on behalf of the authorities and the public yesterday. He contended that the defendants did not have their day in court, according to constitutional guarantee. In support of this contention Mr. Chambers read from his brief as follows: "Common law proof has been dispensed with, as in the case of the books of the complainant, the right to be confronted with witnesses and the right to cross examine them have been denied.

"Cross-examination of witnesses called has been curtailed, limited and in some instances stopped completely. The burden of proof has been erroneously shifted from the complainant to the defendants."

Master's Rulings Criticized.

Mr. Chambers said the Special Master had disregarded all through the case the rule of Federal practice which provides that all evidence of witnesses shall be taken orally in open court excepting in such matters as are governed by statute law. The Special Master's attention had been called to this rule frequently, but he had declared himself to be above authority, and had said that there were few courts that had any business experience and that he proposed to try the case on a business basis.

The Master excluded questions in more than a thousand instances where no objection had been made by counsel for the complainant, said Mr. Chambers.

Judge Hand said he had frequently himself stopped counsel in cross-examinations when it seemed to him to be a waste of time. That was a function of the Master, he said, and unless it appeared from the whole record that justice had not been done it was not for the court to reject the findings. On the other hand, he ruled that if the matter excluded was essential and should have gone in it could still be put in evidence, but that he would still have to pass upon the whole record.

Arguing in support of the assertion that the company had come into court with unclean hands, Mr. Chambers declared the complainant had violated the plain terms of the law, which provides that it must in New York City provide gas of 22-candle illuminating power. He asserted that this had not been done.

Quality of Gas Inferior.

Tests made by city experts, he said, showed that the quality of gas served was below the required standard fixed in the statute. Mr. Chambers asserted that the Master erred about $11,000,000 on the valuation of the company's properties. He declared that the evidence showed that the gas plants should be scrapped and should no longer be carried as against the consumer. The plants, he added, were used only enough to have them come within the valuation viewpoint and were of no practical utility in the making of gas.

As to the complainant's argument that unaccounted for gas had a bearing on what might be a reasonable rate, the lawyer said the company tried to have the loss fixed at 7 per cent., but he doubted if any accurate determination of the lost gas could be made.

As to the valuation of the franchise, the Master ruled that he was bound by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the previous case in which the franchises were valued at $7,500,000, as of 1884. Mr. Chambers maintained that the higher court had fixed that value as of that time and that it was not intended to be fixed value for all time, hence Master Gilbert erred in accepting the valuation when in point of fact it had been shown at the present trial that the franchises had no value.

INSURES ITS 700 EMPLOYES.

New York Stock Exchange Takes Out $1,000,000 Group Policy.

The New York Stock Exchange announced yesterday that it had taken out a group insurance policy for the benefit of its employes with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the amount of the policy being $1,000,000. The insurance is available to employes who have been with the Exchange for six months or more. The lowest benefit is $500 and the highest $2,000, the latter in the case of any one who has been in the employ of the Exchange for fifteen years or more. The group insurance plan applies to 700 employes.

The policy has a disability clause which provides that if before reaching the age of 60 an employe is totally disabled the full amount of the death policy will be paid to him in sixty monthly installments. This would amount to $18 a month on a $1,000 policy.

Railway Executives to Meet.

The Standing Committee of the Association of Railway executives will meet early next week to hear the report of the sub-committee which was appointed to carry on negotiations with the Pullman and express companies relative to the contracts to be signed upon the termination of the Federal guarantee on Sept. 1.

TOBACCO DEAL DOUBTED.

Officials Deny Report, but Thomas F. Ryan Sails to Negotiate It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 7.—The Daily Mail has made inquiries concerning the NEW YORK TIMES statement that an Anglo-American combination is planning the purchase of France's tobacco monopoly. Sir Arthur Churchman, Deputy Chairman of the British-American Tobacco Company, said today: "This is the first intimation I have had of such a deal being in progress."

Another Deputy Chairman of the company said: "I know nothing whatever about it. No tobacco syndicate in the world is going to put up $400,000,000 for such a purpose. There is not that amount of money in the whole industry."

On the other hand, The Chronicle says the report did not occasion any surprise in London, and the chance of such a deal going through was regarded as not improbable.

Thomas F. Ryan will sail today on the Baltic for Europe, where, it is expected, he will carry on negotiations looking to the purchase by the Ryan-Whelan-Duke syndicate of the French tobacco monopoly. Mr. Ryan has steadfastly refused to comment upon the purpose of his trip abroad, and George J. Whelan, who is regarded as the active factor in whatever transactions are under way, has also refused to make any comment whatever on the reported proposed purchase of the French tobacco monopoly.

INDICTED AS PROFITEERS.

Three Packing Companies and a Sugar Concern Accused in Boston.

BOSTON, July 7.—Indictments charging profiteering in food were reported here late today by a Federal Grand Jury against E. C. Swift & Co., Armour & Co., N. E. Hollis & Co. and the Independent Sugar Company of this city. The indictments are the first to be returned in New England by a Federal Grand Jury for alleged food profiteering.

The Swift indictment charges that 17½ cents was received for beef which cost the corporation only 10½ cents a pound, yielding a net profit of 6½ cents. The Armour company, it is charged, sold New Zealand lam, which cost nine and a fraction cents, for 25½ cents a pound. The Hollis company, according to the indictment, charged 18 cents for beef which cost only 10½ cents a pound.

The indictment against the Independent Sugar Company charges that the corporation sold for 24.2 cents sugar which cost it 16 cents a pound.

CROPS SHORT IN JAMAICA.

More Food Will Be Imported Than in Any Year Since 1916.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, July 7.—As a result of the recent spell of dry weather and neglect by cultivators of planting ground of provision for bananas, a serious food situation faces this Island.

Jamaica will be obliged to import more food this year than she has imported in any year since 1916.

PORTRAIT OF DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE.

Spanish Jewelers' Demand Withdrawing Them from Money Market.

MADRID, July 6.—Spanish goldsmiths and jewelers are gathering all the American gold coins they can get for the purpose of melting them for the manufacture of jewelry. As a result these pieces of money are rapidly disappearing from the market and going into the melting pot, as American coins contain more pure gold than those current in Europe, which are generally eighteen carats fine.

Exchange officials who a few months ago displayed American coins in their windows are now declining to sell them and are offering paper dollars instead. Gold coins of other nations may still be obtained, but pre-war rates are being charged.

COAL MINERS FIRED UPON.

Men on Kentucky Side of Tug River Attacked from West Virginia.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., July 7.—Employes at the mine of the Borderland Coal Company, at Borderland, five miles east of Williamson, were fired upon this morning as they were entering the mine, which is on the Kentucky side of Tug River, according to reports reaching here. Those firing at the miners are said to have been on a mountainside on the opposite bank of the river, and they also directed shots at the tipple, which is on the West Virginia side. None of the shots was effective.

The miners are reported to have returned the fire, but whether any of the attacking party was struck has not been ascertained.

Borderland is in Mingo County, where union miners have been ordered out on strike.

WEATHER AIDS DROP AS COTTON SEE-SAWS

Net Losses of 35 to 50 Points Follow Favorable Weekly Report.

JAPANESE SALES RUMORED

Her Stocks Reported Large and Goods Market Flooded—Spots Rise to 41 Cents.

During the forenoon yesterday the cotton market went through a more or less perfunctory performance. Rains in some parts of the belt had caused a somewhat higher price level at the outset and scattered buying after the call advanced the list still further. But there seemed to be very well defined limits to the advance and every time prices showed at the maximum levels there promptly came into the market selling orders in sufficient volume to force them back again. Thus, the market went to the high prices of the day several times, but never could break through that invisible line. It stood up, though, and on the dips during the morning there was good buying, which sent values back up each time. So the market performed very much after the manner of a tennis ball.

But in the afternoon it was a different story. The weekly weather report was exceedingly favorable, bearing out all the private reports of good to ideal weather and growing conditions, and adding emphasis to many of them. This report definitely turned the market and, as compared with net gains of 25 to 45 points in the morning, there were net losses of 35 to nearly 50 points in the afternoon, making the day's range extend from 80 to 92 points at the extremes for the active options. July, the spot month, which sold just a shade under 40 cents, was less active, but firmer than the rest of the list, and at the other end May too was relatively inactive.

A report was circulated in the afternoon that Japanese agents were selling October and December, and the bears made much of this, arguing that the Japanese were loaded up with cotton and would have to liquidate. It is said that warehouse stocks in Japan are very large now, and that the goods market there is flooded with offerings.

Spot cotton here was very strong, advancing 100 points to 41 cents, the highest price since May 21, when the last big break was in progress.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day

Shipping Board Chairman Insists on Equality of Opportunity to Work.

Jersey City industrial leaders have expressed unanimous favor of the principles of the "open shop" in all industries, according to an announcement made yesterday by Willard G. Stanton, manager of the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, which has been conducting a referendum by mail. The vote was 827 for the "open shop" and none for the "closed shop."

The Industrial Committee of the Chamber, which took the referendum, reported that of 116 manufacturing plants in Jersey City 96 plants, employing 26,425 persons, were run on the "open shop" plan, and that twenty plants, with 4,287 workers, employed union men exclusively.

The resolutions on which the referendum was taken said in part:

"The Jersey City Chamber of Commerce believes that every workingman has a right to honest employment without regard to his affiliations with any organization, religious, civic, social or otherwise, and, further, that every man engaged in business has a right to employ whomsoever he pleases with the same freedom and without fear of intimidation or boycott."

Reports that an enumeration which is being made in this city by the Merchants' Association to find out to what extent its members are bound by "closed shop" agreements was part of a similar general "open shop" movement here, growing out of the activities of the Citizens' Transportation Committee, which was formed to break the trucking tie-up on the coastwise piers, were denied by William Fellowes Morgan.

A telegram sent by Rear Admiral Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, to C. W. Saunders, President of the Waterfront Employers' Union of San Francisco, on the attitude of the Shipping Board toward the "closed shop" was made public by the Merchants' Association. In part he said:

"The Shipping Board must insist that proper longshoremen be given an opportunity to work on its vessels regardless of affiliation with any particular organization. No other position is compatible with equality of opportunity for employment, which must be preserved in the public service.

"We do not intend to prohibit rational discrimination against individuals on account of their reputation, known participation in attacks on person or property in the course of industrial disputes, disloyalty or other legitimate disqualification for employment justifying their rejection by reasonable management, nor can there be objection to reasonable means to establish the identity of such persons. Such means must under no circumstances be permitted to become or to be used as a means of arbitrary discrimination in employment."

Accused of Cheating Friars.

Charles Lester Robinson, 54 years old, of 570 West 160th Street, a member of the Friar's Club, pleaded not guilty before Judge Nott in General Sessions yesterday to four counts of grand larceny charging him with inducing several Friars to put up a total of $15,000 to lease the Forest Hill Theatre of Newark as an investment, and then using the money to buy the place for himself. The complainant is Frederick S. Murray.

BIG COMMERCIAL LEASES.

Vacuum Cleaner Specialty Company in $750,000 Rental.

Harris, Vought & Co. completed negotiations started several months ago for the sub-leasing for a term of twenty-one years of the four-story business building at 104 West Forty-third Street for the St. Regis Restaurant, Inc., to the Vacum Cleaner Specialty Company, which also secured the four-story building at 107 West Forty-second Street under a twenty-one-year lease through the same brokers. The Vacuum Company now has control of a plot fronting twenty feet on Forty-second Street running 200 feet to Forty-third Street and fronting 22 feet 6 inches on Forty-third Street.

The Forty-third Street negotiations were delayed on account of a sub-lease which was subject to a cancellation in the event of the passage of any law prohibiting the sale of liquor. The entire transaction involves a rental of approximately $750,000. The Vacuum Company will use the premises as an electric specialty shop and executive offices.

Charles F. Noyes Company leased a store in 2,313 Broadway at a rate of $10 per square foot for a long term of years for So-Lite Company to Kwong Yuen & Co. The rate per square foot is one of the highest paid in this neighborhood for a store of this character. The lease is for five years.

Kempner & Son leased for a long term of years the store 2,104 Third Avenue to Henry Sheppard, who will alter and occupy it as a ladies' apparel shop; also leased the store and basement 525 Third Avenue for ten years to Nicholas Tamfinis and John Markos, who will alter and occupy as a restaurant.

Samuel H. Martin leased to A. Oranges for a client the east store and basement at 430 West 125th Street.

The purchasers, who are large dealers in bakers' supplies, will occupy the building for their business upon securing possession. The property was valued at $75,000.

Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum and Fisher & Irving Lewine purchased from Warren Leslie the garage at 541 and 543 West Fifty-second Street, on a plot 50 by 100, irregular. Negotiations are under way for the resale of the property. Harold L. Lewis was the broker in the transaction.

Sidney L. Warsawer sold for the Tannow Company the four-story building at 317 West Forty-eighth Street, on a plot 20 by 100, to a client for investment.

The eight and four story loft buildings, on plot 50 by 100, irregular, at 60 and 62 University Place, northwest corner of Tenth Street, have been sold by Elizabeth L. Goodnow to the Burden Realty Company, which resold the realty to the F. R. S. Realty Corporation.

The Bishop Gutta Percha Company purchased from the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church 403 to 407 East Twenty-third Street, adjoining the northeast corner of First Avenue, a six-story loft building, on plot 75 by 98.9. The Bishop company owns and occupies the property at 420 to 430 Twenty-fifth Street.

A. Goodman & Sons, bakers, who now own and occupy the building at 634 to 640 East Seventeenth Street, near Avenue C, have purchased from Lillie Keller the abutting five-story building, 25 by 93, at 645 East Sixteenth Street.

Brokers in Recent Deals.

The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker in the sale by the Postal Life Insurance Company of the ten and eleven story buildings at 530, 532-534, 536-538 Broadway and 85 Spring Street, a plot of 15,000 square feet, which property was purchased by Frederick Brown for approximately $2,000,000. The Noyes Company was also the broker in the $2,000,000 lease covering 99-101 William Street, a plot about 40 by 80 in size, secured by Bennett Ellison for sixty-three years from the Wendel Estate.

Shipping Board Chairman Insists on Equality of Opportunity to Work.

Jersey City industrial leaders have expressed unanimous favor of the principles of the "open shop" in all industries, according to an announcement made yesterday by Willard G. Stanton, manager of the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, which has been conducting a referendum by mail. The vote was 827 for the "open shop" and none for the "closed shop."

The Industrial Committee of the Chamber, which took the referendum, reported that of 116 manufacturing plants in Jersey City 96 plants, employing 20,425 persons, were run on the "open shop" plan, and that twenty plants, with 4,287 workers, employed union men exclusively.

The resolutions on which the referendum was taken said in part:

"The Jersey City Chamber of Commerce believes that every workingman has a right to honest employment without regard to his affiliations with any organization, religious, civic, social or otherwise, and, further, that every man engaged in business has a right to employ whomsoever he pleases with the same freedom and without fear of intimidation or boycott."

Reports that an enumeration which is being made in this city by the Merchants' Association to find out to what extent its members are bound by "closed shop" agreements was part of a similar general "open shop" movement here, growing out of the activities of the Citizens' Transportation Committee, which was formed to break the trucking tie-up on the coastwise piers, were denied by William Fellowes Morgan.

A telegram sent by Rear Admiral Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, to C. W. Saunders, President of the Waterfront Employers' Union of San Francisco, on the attitude of the Shipping Board toward the "closed shop" was made public by the Merchants' Association. In part he said:

"The Shipping Board must insist that proper longshoremen be given an opportunity to work on its vessels regardless of affiliation with any particular organization. No other position is compatible with equality of opportunity for employment, which must be preserved in the public service.

"We do not intend to prohibit rational discrimination against individuals on account of their reputation, known participation in attacks on person or property in the course of industrial disputes, disloyalty or other legitimate disqualification for employment justifying their rejection by responsible management, nor can there be objection to reasonable means to establish the identity of such persons. Such means must under no circumstances be permitted to become or to be used as a means of arbitrary discrimination in employment."

Accused of Cheating Friars.

Charles Lester Robinson, 54 years old, of 570 West 160th Street, a member of the Friar's Club, pleaded not guilty before Judge Nott in General Sessions yesterday to four counts of grand larceny charging him with inducing several Friars to put up a total of $15,000 to lease the Forest Hill Theatre of Newark as an investment, and then using the money to buy the place for himself. The complainant is Frederick S. Murray.

BIG COMMERCIAL LEASES.

Vacuum Cleaner Specialty Company in $750,000 Rental.

Harris, Vought & Co. completed negotiations started several months ago for the sub-leasing for a term of twenty-one years of the four-story business building at 104 West Forty-third Street for the St. Regis Restaurant, Inc., to the Vacum Cleaner Specialty Company, which also secured the four-story building at 107 West Forty-second Street under a twenty-one-year lease through the same brokers. The Vacuum Company now has control of a plot fronting twenty feet on Forty-second Street running 200 feet to Forty-third Street and fronting 22 feet 6 inches on Forty-third Street.

The Forty-third Street negotiations were delayed on account of a sub-lease which was subject to a cancellation in the event of the passage of any law prohibiting the sale of liquor. The entire transaction involves a rental of approximately $750,000. The Vacuum Company will use the premises as an electric specialty shop and executive offices.

Charles F. Noyes Company leased a store in 2,313 Broadway at a rate of $10 per square foot for a long term of years for So-Lite Company to Kwong Yuen & Co. The rate per square foot is one of the highest paid in this neighborhood for a store of this character. The lease is for five years.

The eight and four story loft buildings, on plot 50 by 100, irregular, at 60 and 62 University Place, northwest corner of Tenth Street, have been sold by Elizabeth L. Goodnow to the Burden Realty Company, which resold the realty to the F. R. S. Realty Corporation.

The Bishop Gutta Percha Company purchased from the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church 403 to 407 East Twenty-third Street, adjoining the northeast corner of First Avenue, a six-story loft building, on plot 75 by 98.9. The Bishop company owns and occupies the property at 420 to 430 Twenty-fifth Street.

OPERATORS FIGURE IN REALTY DEALS

A HEIGHTS-BRONX TRADE

Valuable West 160th and East 163d Street Properties in Exchange Transaction.

The Benenson Realty Company, of which Benjamin Benenson, the operator, is President, figured in three transactions yesterday involving apartment houses and commercial properties valued at about $1,100,000.

From the Wellfinanced Investing Company, A. Blumenthal, President, Mr. Benenson's company purchased the two six-story elevator houses covering the block front on the south side of 163d Street, between Fox and Simpson Streets, Bronx, valued at $500,000. These buildings contain eighty apartments and fifteen stores, and return $82,000 annually in rents. They front 206 feet on 163d Street, 175 feet on Simpson Street, and 120 feet on Fox Street.

Mr. Benenson's company gave in part payment the northwest corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 160th Street, known as the Plymouth, a six-story elevator house, 125 by 102 irregular, arranged in seven suites of four, five and six rooms on a floor, which the seller acquired last Wednesday. Negotiations are reported pending for a resale of the latter property to tenants on a co-operative plan. This parcel was held at $320,000.

The loft property sold by the Benenson Company is at 138 and 140 West Seventeenth Street, a ten-story structure, 43.1 by 93, returning $26,000 annually in rents. It was purchased by Fred Willett for about $200,000. The seller acquired this property last April.

In the third transaction the Benenson Company sold to John O'Flaherty for investment 510 and 512 West 147th Street, a five-story apartment house, 50 by 100, renting for $12,000 and held at $75,000.

Apartment House Deals.

Slawson & Hobbs sold for the Systell Holding Company, Louis Werner, President, the five-story apartment house at 566 West 173d Street, size 37.6 by 100, to a client for investment.

O'Reilly & Dahn sold for Mabel A. Dreyer to a client the southeast corner of 188th Street and Eighth Avenue, a five-story tenement on plot 25 by 80.

D. Kempner & Son sold for a client, to Elias Greenberg and John Jonas, the five-story tenement at 509 Lenox Avenue.

Deal Auction Today.

Today at noon in the Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, Joseph P. Day will offer at auction twenty-four lots at Deal Park, N. J. The lots are located on Crosby Avenue, Roseld Road, Washington Drive and Holly Terrace, near the Deal Railroad station, the Atlantic Ocean and the Deal Inn.

SALES IN BROOKLYN.

Small Investors Acquire Miscellaneous Kinds of Realty.

R. A. Schlesing sold the four-family houses at 2,021 Bleecker Street for J. Ottusch to J. Spatz and at 1,923 Bleecker Street for George Durmann to Victoria P. Ferrman; also sold the three-family house 1,715 Grove Street for Barbara Weber to Charles Martin; the six-family tenement 1,264 Greene Avenue for August Propfe to John Mink of Catskill, N. Y., and the four-family house 583 Onderdonk Avenue for Anna Zimmerman to Elizabeth Betz.

The same broker sold the three-family house 1,396 Jefferson Avenue for John Weller to Anna Weick; the four-family house 1,924 Nimrod Street for Cordula Gast to Christopher Grosel; the six-family tenement 612 Seneca Avenue for Joseph Strawitz to Albert Zoller, for investment; the six-family house 530 Bainbridge Street for Thomas Delaney to Henry Geberth, and the six-family tenement 703 Knickerbocker Avenue for John Weller to Henry Gross.

Frank H. Malone sold the two-family dwelling 43 Seventy-second Street for John Borroni to a purchaser for occupancy.

William E. Harmon & Co. sold a forty-foot plot at the corner of Church Avenue and East Ninety-first Street to H. S. Papean; a fifty-foot plot on the south side of East Ninety-sixth, near Church Avenue, to W. & H. Feldman, and the adjoining fifty feet to Olanoff & Spivack; the northwesterly corner of Ditmas Avenue and East Ninety-first Street to Louis Almonoff; also a forty-foot plot on the north side of East Ninety-fourth Street, near Ditmas Avenue, to Harry Tishler; a plot on Ditmas Avenue, near East Ninety-fifth Street, to Morris Hyams and Annie Mintz; five lots on the southerly side of East Ninety-fifth Street, near Ditmas Avenue, to William Schoof.

RECORD LOAN BUSINESS.

Real Estate Firm Plans $1,954,000 in Mortgages.

William A. White & Sons report the largest mortgage business, during the first six month of 1920, ever done in a similar period in the history of the firm.

The largest mortgage, with the exception of the $3,000,000 loan on the Woolworth Building recently announced, is one of $2,250,000, negotiated for Marcus Loew with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on the new office and theatre building being erected at the northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-fifth Street. This property covers 120 feet on Broadway and 185 feet on Forty-fifth Street, running through to Forty-sixth Street, where there is a frontage of 103 feet. The land for this operation was purchased at an approximate cost of $2,500,000 and the improvement when finished will bring the total cost of the operation to approximately $5,000,000. The Broadway frontage is being improved with a sixteen-story office building with a theatre in the rear going through from street to street. This will be the largest of the Loew properties and in addition to the theatre will provide space for the executive and booking offices of Loew's Inc.

Twenty-five loans of smaller amounts, aggregating $2,704,000, were also made, twenty-one at prevailing rates of six per cent. and four at five-and-a-half per cent. Among the larger loans are $320,000 (building and permanent) on the southeast corner of Gold and Frankfort Streets; $200,000, additional to $550,000, on 68 William Street; $150,000 on the Kew Garden Inn; $185,000 on the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirtieth Street; $150,000 on 14 and 16 East 67th Street and $200,000 (building and permanent loan) on the Advance Candy Company's factory at Willow Avenue and 138th Street, in the Bronx.

HARMON ON THE HUDSON

100 TRAINS DAILY

One of the great travellers of our country says "that Westchester County is the most wonderful country he has ever seen, and Harmon is the garden spot of Westchester County." Margaret Mayo, famous author, living at Harmon, says: "I have travelled the world over, but have found peace only at HARMON."

Are you going to pay this exorbitant rent the rest of your lives, or are you going to let us show you how we have provided homes for thousands upon thousands in the past thirty years?

Owing to the extreme rush of business last Sunday we beg to apoligize to the many interested couples who visited Harmon and caught us short of representatives to properly show them around. We have since increased our staff fourfold, to avoid a repitition, and to insure every one with a capable representative, to make their visit next Sunday a pleasant one.

Be our guests on Saturday, Sunday or Monday next and see for yourself. Our building plan is so perfected that any one can build at Harmon who is able to pay rent for an apartment in New York fit to live in.

Call at office for free transportation to visit HARMON—any day. Special train Saturday at 2 P. M. Sunday morning, 11:30, city time. Lunch will be served at the Clubhouse.

MRS. SHONTS LOSES IN APPEALS COURT

SURROGATE IS UPHELD

Widow's Statement That There Was No Will Is the Ground for the Final Decision.

The Court of Appeals handed down a decision at Albany late yesterday afternoon setting aside the order of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reinstating Mrs. Nilla D. Shonts as temporary administratrix of the estate of her husband, Theodore P. Shonts. The highest court upholds the action of Surrogate Fowler in removing Mrs. Shonts as administratrix because a will made by her husband was offered in court after she had herself appointed on her statement that there was no will. The naming of the Guaranty Trust Company, which was appointed by the Surrogate to act after he had removed Mrs. Shonts and which has remained in control of the estate as the result of the appeal taken from the Appellate Division ruling, is upheld by the Court of Appeals.

The reversal by the Appellate Division of Surrogate Fowler's decision was based on the ground that the Surrogate in removing Mrs. Shonts was in error in his assumption of fact that the temporary administratrix was appointed on the assumption that there was no will, and as to his conclusion of law that the production of an alleged will with a petition for its probate deprived the Surrogate's Court of jurisdiction to grant temporary administration. That court also ruled that the appointment of Mrs. Shonts was not obtained by a false suggestion of the material fact that there was no will, when, it was contested, she knew there was a will.

"BOY SCOUT" THIEF CAUGHT

Search for the "Boy Scout burglar" who for three weeks has been a source of much concern to residents of Bushwick, ended yesterday afternoon with the arrest of William Adams, 14 years old, of 27 Jefferson Street, just after he had robbed the home of Mrs. Bessie Leiveitz at 450 Bushwick Avenue of clothing and jewelry valued at $700. The boy's arrest was due to the vigil of Policeman Bode of the Vernon Avenue station, who saw the youth, dressed in a Boy Scout uniform, with a scout pack slung over his back, enter the building next door to that in which Mrs. Leiveitz resides. He saw the boy come out an hour later, laden with the loot he had gathered in the woman's apartment.

Within three weeks more than twenty homes in that part of Brooklyn have been robbed in the afternoon, according to the police.

Adams's pack was stuffed with clothing and jewelry, there were two watches in his leggings and in his campaign hat another gold watch and a wallet, containing thirty-one pawn tickets. The youth confessed he had committed most of the burglaries reported to the police. He will be arraigned in the Children's Court this morning.

3 HURT AS CAR HITS TRUCK.

Motorman Pinned Under Wreckage —Chauffeur Is Arrested.

A wrecking crew had to work for half an hour last night to free James Gallagher, 42 years old, of 2,548 Eighth Avenue, from the wreckage of the vestibule of the trolley car he was operating on Third Avenue and 152d Street, the Bronx, after it was in collision with an automobile truck. George Turner of 150 South Street, Mount Vernon, N. Y., chauffeur of the motor truck, suddenly swerved his vehicle in front of the trolley car. The truck was crushed against a pillar of the elevated road wrecking the front of the trolley car.

Gallagher was removed to Lincoln Hospital suffering from internal injuries, as were Morris Gruber, 15, of 996 Trinity Avenue, and Paul Mazelino, 25, of 205 East 149th Street, passengers on the trolley car, who suffered bruises. Turner was locked up in the Morrisania Station on a charge of felonious assault.

Taxes on Stock Dividends Reclaimed

TAXES paid to the Government on stock dividends may be reclaimed. Claims for credit should be filed and the credit applied against current taxes still unpaid. If the overpayment exceeds the taxes still due, a claim for refund may be made.

Our experience has been that many taxpayers, because of the technical procedure, have failed to take advantage of these refunds.

Our Tax Service Department is thoroughly equipped to recover taxes paid on stock dividends. Our Washington Office enables us to represent taxpayers directly and efficiently in all matters of tax adjustments.
